Quake possibility shakes up officials

by STEVE BROWN
Of our Springfield bureau

SPRINGFIELD — While Illinois residents may chuckle at jokes about earthquake-prone California sliding into the Pacific Ocean someday, state officials Wednesday warned the state is not immune from earthquakes.

Nine major fault lines similar to those in California run through the southern one-third of the state, making the threat of an earthquake in the next decade a "very real possibility," said E. Erie Jones, director of the state's emergency services and disaster agency.

Fault lines in Southern Illinois have produced several major earthquakes over the years, the worst in 1811 in the Murphysboro area. More recently, quakes registering 5.5 and 4.6 on the 9-point Richter scale were recorded in Southern Illinois in 1968 and 1972.

THE 1811 EARTHQUAKE in Illinois had an estimated intensity of 7.2 and was blamed for changing the course of the Mississippi River and creating Kaskaskia Island.

The earthquake in China last year that killed more than 100,000 persons registered 7.6, and the quake in Guatemala, also last year, that killed 23,000 persons registered 7.5. The 1906 San Francisco earthquake registered 8.2 and killed 452 persons.

THE 1968 QUAKE in Illinois, which had an epicenter near Broughton, nearly 300 miles south of Chicago, was blamed for broken underground utility lines in East St. Louis, Decatur and was felt in Cook County.

"A strong quake could be a real disaster for the southern part of the state because of the number of mines that have honeycombed the area," said Jones, a Palatine resident.

He said the mines, which run beneath some of the major Downstate cities, increase the chances of cave-ins during an earthquake.

Jones said experts note the chance of widespread damage is greater in the state because there are no large mountain ranges to control the spread of the shock waves.

JONES' COMMENTS came as state officials took part in a two-day planning exercise aimed at testing the state's preparedness for emergency operations.

The drill, known as "Operation Canyon Thunder," was designed by the 363d Civil Affairs Brigade, an Army Reserve unit, and was the first such test anywhere in the nation where the military designed the project for the state.

While the project was designed around the earthquake problem, Jones said the information gathered could be used in handling disaster situations throughout the state.

"We want to see how good our plans are," Jones said.

Col. Semour J. Gaynes, a Palatine resident and attorney in civilian life, said the exercise has been in the planning state for several years.

Fewer acts of vandalism say officials

by BILL HILL

On Princeton Avenue and Watling Street, some kids poured gasoline on lawns and set the grass on fire. The scars were in the shape of the letter "S."

On another night, Arlington Heights police investigated what is commonly referred to as "a lawn job" — someone had driven across the front yards of a residential area.

These are among the most common forms of vandalism, along with breaking windows and knocking down mailboxes, in Arlington Heights this summer.

THEY ARE MILD crimes when compared with the two homes ravaged by vandals in Prospect Heights and Hanover Park this month. In those cases, families returned from vacation trips to find the interiors of their homes ripped apart with damage estimates ranging from $13,000 to $20,000.

Large-scale destruction has been noticeably absent this summer in Arlington Heights and while police department statistics show that the over-all number of vandalism cases reported is similar to previous summers, park district and school officials report vandalism at their facilities has declined.

Vandalism repairs are down almost 45 per cent at park district buildings with only $887 spent so far this summer, as compared to $1,616 for the same period last year. Most destruction in the parks involves broken windows.

SIMILAR STATISTICS were not available from officials for High School Dist. 214, Arlington Heights Dist. 25, the Arlington Heights Chamber of Commerce and the village's public works department, but they all agreed the vandalism problem has been less severe this summer.

"Things have been much better this year," James Monroe, director of buildings for Dist. 25, said. "On an average weekend last year we'd have four to six broken windows. This year I don't even think we average two and a lot of those are due to baseball playing and accidents," he said.

Dist. 214 officials still are working on a long-range vandalism report but the feeling is that the rate of vandalism has declined in the past two years, Karen Uhrin, assistant to the superintendent, said.

Village-owned facilities, including streetlights, also seem to be less appealing to vandals than previous summers.

"WE'VE BEEN PRETTY lucky. It's been mostly small stuff this year," said Donald Renner, superintendent of utilities, said.

Many of the officials credit the less severe vandalism to an ordinance passed by the village last year which holds parents responsible for van-

ROBERT JENQUIN surveys the remains of his $100,000 home after a runaway brush fire roared through the foothills of Santa Barbara, Calif. The fire, caused by a person flying a kite that hit high tension wires, destroyed more than 200 homes and sent 2,000 persons fleeing to the beachfront. About 35 persons were injured. Damage was estimated at $20 million. (More photos on Page 8.)

2,000 flee Santa Barbara fire

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (UPI) — A wind-whipped fire officials said was caused by a person flying a kite that struck high tension wires raced through a wealthy oceanview suburb Wednesday, destroying more than 200 homes and sending more than 2,000 persons fleeing to the beachfront.

About 35 persons were reported injured, including a U.S. Forest Service crew workman who was struck by fire retardant dropped from an airplane. Damage was estimated at about $20 million.

The fire was declared 100 per cent contained Wednesday afternoon but evening winds from the canyon tops threatened to cause it to flare up again.

AT FIRST officials strongly suspected arson, but late in the afternoon District Atty. Stanley Rodden issued a statement saying evidence was the kite-flyer had caused the fire accidentally.

Rodden said the "suspect" had been given a lie detector test and witnesses had collaborated his statement. He was not identified.

Rodden said the string from a box kite, caused to drift by 20 mile per hour winds, pulled two high tension wires together.

The man who flew the kite issued a statement through his attorney which said, in part:

"I am deeply shocked and saddened by the great loss and suffering which resulted from the fire. I shall always regret the part, however innocent, I had in this tragic matter."

SANTA BARBARA County was declared a disaster area by Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. who sent in 120 National Guardmen and the Air National Guard to fly over and watch for looters. Six cases of looting were reported earlier and one person was arrested on suspicion of looting.

More than 2,000 persons fled from their Montecito neighborhood as entire blocks of luxury homes erupted in flames. Some refugees galloped away on horses from private stables.

They rushed to luxury hotels along the famed beachfront and to their yachts in a nearby harbor.

Fire units from as far away as San Diego, 200 miles southeast, joined a force of more than 800 firefighters on the lines.

Stocks plummet

The stock market suffered its worst loss in more than two years Wednesday. The Dow Jones average hit an 18-month low during a selloff sparked by fears of an economic slowdown. — Sect. 4, Page 1.

Pipeline down again

The oil flow through the Trans-Alaska pipeline, plagued by problems since the startup last month, was delayed again by a faulty weld Wednesday with the oil only 25 miles from its destination terminal at Valdez. The latest problem means the oil may not arrive at the terminal until late Thursday or early Friday. — Page 3.

Wood withdraws

Judge Harlington Wood, Jr. of Chicago withdrew Wednesday as a candidate for FBI director because of "personal reasons and family considerations." Wood was one of five selections made by a "search committee" and turned over to President Carter for a successor to Director Clarence Kelley. — Page 10.

Cubs split, Sox lose

The Cubs, thanks to a strong winning effort by Steve Renko, managed to gain a split in their doubleheader with Cincinnati, dropping game one, 6-2, but winning the nightcap, 5-1. That other first-place team in town, the White Sox, lost to Detroit, 3-1. — Sect. 2, Page 1.

Libya mobilizes for defense

Libya Wednesday began recruiting mercenaries and calling up its reserves and ordered full mobilization of its armed forces, warning Egypt it had its "finger on the trigger" to defend its desert border from further attacks.

In Cairo, Egypt said it had reached agreement on terms of an end to the border war between the two Arab neighbors through mediation by Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat and Kuwaiti foreign minister Sheikh Sabah al-Ahmed with President Anwar Sadat.

In Cyprus, a hotbed for arms and mercenary traffic during Lebanon's civil war, the Libyan Embassy began recruiting Arab volunteers for its army. An advertisement in the English-language Cyprus Mail and the pro-Palestinian Ta Nea announced the recruitment campaign.

THOUSANDS OF them have already reported to Libyan embassies in many countries," a Libyan embassy spokesman said.

In Beirut, the pro-Libyan newspaper As Safir reported in a dispatch from Tripoli that Libya had ordered full mobilization of its armed forces and that a call-up of reserves was under way.

The newspaper said a unilateral cease-fire in the border war called by Sadat Sunday night was nothing but a "mere truce."

Sadat declared a unilateral cease-fire late Sunday. Although the fighting that had mounted to what Libya termed "declared war" has stopped, Libya has made no official cease fire declaration.

"Why do the Egyptians ask (Libyan leader Col. Moammar) Khadafy to take a similar decision to Sadat's cease fire, knowing that it was not Khadafy who started the shooting," the official Libyan newspaper Al Jihad asked.

"THE MEN AND THE women of Libya have their finger on the trigger," an official statement carried by Libyan news agency. "Their resolve is to defend their lands and their border to the very last man and woman."

In announcing his cease fire Sunday, Sadat also demanded Soviet-built missile placements, radar and other electronic equipment deployed along the Libya-Egypt border be dismantled and moved back. Sadat also demanded Libya halt its sabotage raids across the border inside Egypt.

"Libya rejected these conditions," As Safir said.

In Cairo, a government spokesman said Sadat had met in Alexandria with Arafat and Al-Ahmed and that the two mediators "will issue a statement containing the points on which agreement has been reached."

A Palestinian spokesman in Cairo said the statement "would contain measures for stabilizing the cease-fire and promoting Arab solidarity."

Comments stir try for new trial

by KEN VANDERBECK

The attorney for the convicted murder of Phyllis Anderson Wednesday said he will ask for a new trial because statements made Tuesday by the jury's foreman show he may have withheld information that could have shown he was prejudiced toward the case.

Public defender Irwin Frazin said he will ask for a new trial for Marrion Logan, 31, because Donald Ring, 415 E. Ivy Ln., Arlington Heights, did not tell Judge James M. Bailey during jury selection that he was stranded by heavy rains a few blocks away from the Andersons on Chicago's South Side the same day.

Ring said Tuesday he and his family were stranded in their car on 87th Street, just a few blocks away from where Mrs. Anderson, 51, of Buffalo Grove was murdered.

The Anderson car had become stalled in a flooded viaduct on 69th Street and Harvard Avenue after being forced off the Dan Ryan Expressay. It was attacked by a rock-throwing gang of black youths. Mrs. Anderson was killed by four or five shots fired into the car by Logan.

RING WES HELPED through the nearly flooded street by black youths.

Frazin said Ring, principal of Elk Grove High School, "probably had more personal knowledge (of the circumstances surrounding the Anderson case) than the other jurors, which could have caused a prejudice of judgment on his part."

"And I feel the fact that he (Ring) was involved in too similar a situation (to the Andersons) would have been grounds to excuse him," Frazin said.

Ring, who was the first juror selected in the trial, said he thought he had no reason to divulge details of his incident because he considered it irrelevant to the case.

"During my interview with Judge Bailey I could have told him I was forced off the Dan Ryan Expressway the same day the Andersons were," Ring said Tuesday. He said he didn't disclose the incident to Judge Bailey becausee Bailey "might have thought it would have prejudiced my views."

DURING THE interviews, Judge Bailey asked broad questions, most of them requiring "Yes" and "no" answers.

Ring, as the other prospective jurors, was asked if he thought "anything in his background" would prejudice his ability to view the trial impartially. His reply was "no." He said he was not asked if he was near the scene where Mrs. Anderson was murdered.

Judge Bailey and Noval Morris, dean of the University of Chicago Law School, said they think Ring's post-trial statements are not strong enough to warrant a new trial.

"As far as I'm concerned, the trial is over," Judge Bailey said. "I don't see a new trial materializing."

"It's very unlikely (Ring's) statements mean that his views during the trial were prejudiced," Morris said.

MORRIS SAID the unanimous vote of guilty by the seven-man, five-women jury showed the rest of the jury was sure Logan was the murderer.

"Ring was only one in a jury of 12," Morris said. "Even if he had been prejudiced, his views wouldn't have made any difference to the outcome of the trial with the other jurors voting the way they did.

"And the fact that Ring said he did not encounter belligerent blacks makes it sound like he wouldn't have had any reason to be prejudiced anyway," Morris said.

Faulty welds force closing of oil pipeline

VALDEZ, Alaska (UPI) — The oil flow through the troubled $9 billion Trans-Alaska pipeline will have to be shut down, perhaps until Thursday, to allow government-ordered repairs on two faulty welds, officials said Wednesday.

That would mean oil in the pipeline, which has been plagued by problems since the start-up last month, would not arrive at the terminal until late Thursday or early Friday.

Originally, officials had expected the oil flow would only have to be slowed, not stopped, while repairs were made and that the oil would arrive early Thursday.

THE WELDS IN the underground section of pipeline must be radiographed (X-rayed) and the radiographs approved by government inspectors. It may even be necessary to hydrotest — to put water through the line — according to Ron Mierzejewski, spokesman for the Alyeska Pipeline Service Co.

"We're still shooting for a Monday tanker sailing with the first load," Mierzejewski said.

All welds were reinspected after an explosion at Pump Station No. 8 and the welds at the terminal were replaced. But the job was rejected by the government and had to be done again.

Before the weld problem was discovered a steel "scraper pig" leading the oil through the pipeline cleared Thompson Pass, 25 miles to the north, at midmorning and seemed headed for a terminal arrival.

In Fairbanks, where the pipeline was bombed last week by five dynamite sticks, a suspect faced arraignment on charges of malicious destruction of property. Larry D. Wertz, 26, lives near the pipeline and reportedly was upset with its construction.

AN ALYESKA spokeswoman said the blasts were "fairly amateurish."

"I guess he hadn't watched enough westerns to do a good job," said Beverly Ward.

The faulty weld at the Valdez terminal, unlike the explosions, managed to slow the oil flow.

"The weld is a mainline held to the east tank farm," Mierzejewski said. "We worked on it last week, but our replacement apparently didn't meet specifications in the radiograph (X-ray)."

HE SAID THE oil, which was speeded on its trip by gravity on the route down from Thompson Pass was slowed to 300,000 barrels a day to "buy time" until the faulty weld was repaired.

With the arrival only hours away, terminal workers and Valdez residents waited anxiously for the oil's progress and prepared a celebration to honor one of mankind's most difficult and controversial achievements.

An Atlantic-Richfield tanker, the ARCO Juneau, was en route from Cherry Point, Wash., to receive the first fill-up at the terminal across Prince William Sound from the town of Valdez.

Officials of Alaska Maritime agencies said the Juneau was scheduled to arrive at the entrance to Prince William Sound Friday afternoon and likely would be loaded over the weekend.

Park Ridge slaying clue sought in ballistics test

Investigators Wednesday were awaiting the results of ballistics tests that could shed light on the slayings Friday of four men found murdered in the elevator of their Park Ridge office.

The ballistics report from Cook County Sehriff's police had not arrived late Wednesday as investigators prepared for the start today of a Cook County grand jury probe into the case.

Terry Sullivan, assistant state's attorney handling the case, said investigators "have leads" but the tangled trail of the victims' past phony business schemes complicates the investigation.

Meanwhile, Park Ridge Director of Public Safety Joseph Moffitt said Wednesday investigators traced a safe deposit box key belonging to one of the victims to an Arlington Heights bank which he declined to name pending the grand jury inquiry.

AT LEAST TWO OF the victims, Joseph LaRose of Inverness and Malcolm Russell of Chicago, had been the target of state and federal investigations centering on pyramid sales schemes, a number of which were in the Northwest suburbs.

Investigators said the company that the four were starting in Park Ridge, U.S. Universal Inc., was the latest in their series of assorted shams.

The slayings also have been caught up in a wave of speculation surrounding a crime syndicate power struggle that may be behind six mob-style assassinations in the Chicago area in the last week.

The probe directly has involved Park Ridge police, Cook County sheriff's police and the state's attorney's office. It also has drawn on information from the state attorney general's office and at least one other local police department.

LAROSE WAS A principal in at least three defunct phony businesses that sold distributorships, including Holiday Magic Cosmetics in Des Plaines, Steed, Inc. in Itasca and Intercept Alarms in Elk Grove village.

Elk Grove Police Det. Ray Rose said Wednesday his department assisted Park Ridge police in the investigation surrounding the local alarm company, but declined to elaborate.

LaRose also was an associate of the owner of a Wheeling tire company who is the target of an impending indictment.

Assistant Atty. Gen Stuart Opdycke said LaRose ran Intercept Alarms with Jerome Weiss of Arlington Heights. Weiss for two years also ran Weiss Tire Co. at 1676 S. Wolf Rd., a business dissolved in December.

Opdycke said Weiss allegedly defrauded hundreds in the operation of the tire distributorship firm and said LaRose "was in our office several times" making statements about Weiss after the two men "had a falling out."

LaRose was not involved in the investigation, Opdycke added.

FEDERAL INVESTIGATORS have said Russell faced imminent indictment in connection with a confidence game he ran through a firm called Steel Liquidation Service in Chicago. Federal sources also said Russell was connected to another man, Barry Thacker, who is under federal indictment for an arson insurance fraud scheme.

Killed with LaRose and Russell were Donald Marchbanks of Palos Heights and John F. Vische of Country Club Hills.

The victims were shot with a .22 caliber weapon.

Funeral services for LaRose were Wednesday at St. Theresa Church in Palatine, with village police escorting the 20-car procession on part of its trip to St. Mary's Cemetery, Evergreen Park.

PATRICIA LaROSE, widow of slain Inverness businessman Joseph T. LaRose, leaves St. Theresa Catholic Church in Palatine Wednesday after funeral services for her late husband. LaRose, 35, was one of four men shot to death last Thursday in a Park Ridge office building elevator. He was president of U.S. Universal Inc., a smoke detector and burglar alarm company.

Protest at Kent State to continue

Kent, Ohio (UPI) — Demonstrators opposing construction of a Kent State University gymnasium near the spot where four students were killed by National Guardsmen vowed Wednesday to continue their protests.

"Tent city will be back here by no later than noon Thursday," said Carter Dodge, a member of the May 4 Coalition opposing the construction. "We will not be intimidated by harassment. We will be back.

About 150 protesters marched to the partially fenced-in site early Wednesday, and later in the day 15 persons charged with trespassing on the site surrendered at the Portage County Courthouse in Ravenna.

THE 15 WHO surrendered were among 27 persons for whom sheriffs' deputies obtained warrants after they were videotaped last Friday defying a court injunction ordering them to stay off the site of the proposed $6 million gymnasium complex. Bond was set at $2,000 each and a hearing was set Aug. 4.

Demonstrators pitched tents on the gymnasium site May 12. Authorities tore down the tents July 12 and arrested 193 persons.

Seith begins campaign for Senate

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) — Hinsdale lawyer Alex Seith, spending his 43rd birthday on a nine-city political flyaround, is announcing he wants to be the Democratic candidate for the United States Senate seat held by Charles Percy.

Seith began his flyaround in Aurora early Wednesday and was to end it in Carbondale late in the afternoon.

Seith said a major objective if elected is to halt the flow of money from local and state governments to the federal government and thereby "keep the money working for the state."

He said presently too many politicians are worried about how to get money back for the state once it is sent to the federal government.

"I'M SAYING it's our money and they're taking it from us," Seith said. It is time, he said, for state and local governments "to join together and say to Washington to stop taking our money and let us keep it."

Seith, a foreign affairs expert, said he wants to take a different approach to foreign policy and show Illinois residents how it affects their pocketbooks. Two examples of how American foreign policy does that, he said, were the Vietnam war and oil price hikes by Middle East nations.

Also, he said, Illinois is one of the largest exporters of the states and more markets should be found overseas for Illinois products such as grain.

Seith, who is married and has three children, kicked off his announcement flyaround in Aurora, where he was born. Other stops on the flyaround included Chicago, Rockford, Rock Island, Peoria, Springfield, Quincy, East St. Louis, and Carbondale.

SEITH WAS not the only senatorial candidate on a flyaround, however. Anthony R. Martin-Trigona, already an announced candidate for the Democratic Senate nomination, flew into several airports ahead of Seith and handed out literature.

Seith is a specialist in international law and a former president of the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations. He also is chairman of the Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals.

A member of President Carter's board on ambassadorial appointments, Seith also served on the task force which wrote the rules for the 1976 Democratic National Convention and drafted a charter for future conduct of party business.

Seith plans to spend several days in Southern Illinois.

ALEX SEITH, accompanied by his wife, Fran, talks to newsmen at Meigs Field Wednesday before continuing his nine-city fly-around. Seith, a Hinsdale lawyer described as a behind-the-scenes powerhouse in the Democratic Party, is seeking the U.S. Senate seat now being held by Sen. Charles Percy.

Raises for 16,000 state workers halted by Bakalis

by STEVE BROWN
Of our Springfield bureau

SPRINGFIELD — An estimated 16,000 state workers will not be receiving the bigger paycheck they had been expecting because State Comptroller Michael Bakalis Wednesday said he questions the legality of raises ordered by Gov. James R. Thompson.

Bakalis has asked Illinois Atty. Gen. William J. Scott to review nonunion workers' pay raises resulting from a contract agreement between the state and the American Federation of State County and Municipal Employes.

Bakalis said he will not delay raises, which amount to $100 bonuses and some longevity pay hikes, for the 40,000 workers who are union members or work in agencies with union contracts.

THE MOVE triggered sharp criticism from Thompson, who said he does not believe Illinois law bars the payments to the nonunion workers and said Bakalis' announcement will cost the employes about $350 each.

Besides questioning the legality of granting the raises to nonunion workers, Bakalis also asked Scott for an opinion on the power of the governor to order pay raises for employes of other elected officials.

A spokesman for Scott said Bakalis' request was received Tuesday and he does not expect an opinion before next week.

THOMPSON ASKED Scott to render a quick answer to Bakalis' questions so that the payments can be made.

However, Bakalis, a Democrat, declined to rule out the possibility that he might continue to withhold the payments even if Republican Scott rules the salary agreement for nonunion workers is legal.

"I can't say we will follow what he says at this time. We will have to wait to see what the reasoning and logic was for the opinion," Bakalis said.

An aide to the comptroller hinted that Bakalis might force a lawsuit on the question.

CONFUSION SURROUNDED exactly who would not be paid, because the American Federation of state county and municipal employes represents about 27,000 members but has bargaining units that cover another 17,000 employes. Those two groups will get the payments agreed to during negotiations.

Left out are 16,000 workers in state agencies that are not represented by union bargaining units. Thompson ordered the pay agreement extended to these workers.

Bakalis also said of the elected officials had budgeted for the pay increase for this fiscal year. Thompson told agency directors to absorb the increased costs.

The comptroller said he questions the governor's right to stretch his authority over other elected officials.

State Workers were expecting to receive the one-time bonus and longevity increases in paychecks beginning Friday.

Pope allows Americans to receive host in hands

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope Paul VI has granted a request by U.S. Roman Catholic bishops to allow communion recipients to receive the host in their hands instead of directly in their mouths, Vatican sources said Wednesday.

The sources said the Pope granted the request because two-thirds of the members of the U.S. conference of bishops voted in favor of communion by hand as an option for those receiving the sacrament.

Had the vote been less than two-thirds, the Pope would not have granted the change, the sources said.

They said distribution of communion wafers to the hands of recipients was an option available to all countries if enough bishops request it.

American Catholics have in the past always received communion by the priest putting the wafer directly into the recipient's mouth.

Under the change, the sources said, American Catholics can still receive the communion wafer by mouth if they so desire.

Report huge birds attack children

Two large black birds with eight-foot wingspans swooped into a backyard, attacked a group of children and took a 10-year-old boy for a 20-foot ride, his mother said Wednesday. Ruth Lowe of Lawndale said she was cleaning the family camper Monday evening when she heard a scream from her son, Marlan. When she reached the backyard, she said she saw Marlan, who weighs 70 pounds, about two feet off the ground fighting off one of the birds. She said the birds then dropped Marlan and flew toward Kickapoo Creek near Lawndale in central Illinois. Mrs. Lowe said her husband, Jake, and their friends, James O. and Betty Daniels of Lincoln, saw the birds fly away.

Mrs. Lowe said the birds were black with single white rings around their necks and eight-foot wingspans. Mrs. Lowe said she did not tell police immediately because she feared they would not believe her. Logan County officials said, because of the number of credible witnesses who reported seeing the birds, the story is not being discounted. Logan County Conservation Officer A. A. Mervar said he believes the witnesses saw a turkey or king vulture but said, "I don't think the child was picked up."

Man held in Trilla break-in

Cecil Lester Wright, 69, was arrested and charged with burglary Wednesday in the break-in at a Trilla garage and the abduction of a garage worker, Coles County police said. Wright, a Charleston resident, was arrested without incident in Mattoon and was taken to the Coles County jail in Charleston, Coles County Sheriff Paul Smith said. Smith said Wright became the prime suspect in the Tuesday break-in after witnesses identified photographs of him as the man who broke into the Paul Ford Garage, fired three shots at Mark Heath of Trilla and forced worker Ken Fritts of Trilla to drive his pickup truck a mile and a half northeast of the town.

18-year-old killed in road robbery try

An 18-year-old who apparently set up a road block on an exit ramp of the Stevenson expressway to rob motorists was shot to death Wednesday by an off-duty police officer. Police Sgt. Virgil F. Lowell, dressed in civilian clothes, was on his way to work when he had to get out of his car on the ramp near Cermak Road to remove a railroad tie and tree branch from the road. Rodney Quinn allegedly appeared from behind an abutment brandishing a .22-caliber revolver and ordered Lowell to get back into his car.

Lowell moved toward his car and then used it as a shield. He pulled out a pistol and fired three shots at Quinn, hitting him once in the chest, police said. Quinn was pronounced dead at the scene.

Marquette Park march planned

The Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. Coalition announced plans Wednesday for another Saturday march on the Southwest Side Marquette Park neighborhood. The Rev. A. I. Dunlap announced march plans for this coming Saturday and also said the group will march on subsequent Saturdays unless demands are met. Among them are that black Chicagoans get more jobs and ghetto areas be rehabilitated.

Sales, carnival highlight downtown Sidewalk Days

Bargains, carnival rides, nightly entertainment and a children's dog show are planned during Sidewalk Days starting today in downtown Arlington Heights.

The three days of sales and entertainment are sponsored by the Downtown Arlington Heights Merchants Assn. The carnival will be operating downtown between Vail and Dunton streets.

Other entertainment includes:

- Music festival at 7 p.m. today.
- Delores Eiler Dance Revue, 7 p.m., Friday.
- Dixieland by The Aristocrats, 11 a.m., Saturday.
- Ronnie Bell School of Dance, 2 p.m., Saturday.
- Kids' Dog Show, 9:30 a.m. Saturday.

Revised Luther Village plans ready

Revised plans for the controversial Luther Village will be submitted to Arlington Heights officials in late September, the attorney for the Lutheran Home said Wednesday.

William J. Moore said if the retirement village proposed for 53 acres north of the Lutheran Home and Service for the Aged, 800 W. Oakton St., is approved, construction will begin early next spring.

Angry residents near the site objected to the proposed five-story buildings and 14 units per acre and early this year formed the Northwest Highlands Homeowners Assn. to oppose the project.

MOORE SAID THE buildings would be lowered from five to four stories and no more than six adjacent buildings will be connected, instead of the original eight.

Those changes were recommended by members of the plan commission, which last January approved the home's request that the land be rezoned from single-family to institutional use.

"There were too many units on the property as it was devised and the length of the buildings was too long," Moore said.

"The property owners in the neighborhood had valid objections to the plans. But the site is big enough to make modifications and there is no financial problem in decreasing the number of units."

MOORE SAID HE will ask this week that an Aug. 29 hearing scheduled before the zoning board of appeals to ask for an exemption from parking space requirements be postponed until late September.

The home's officials will ask that half the normally required number of parking places for the 500 apartment units be approved.

If the project is approved by trustees, the 250 single-story townhouses and 500 two-to five-story apartments will be built in phases during the next five years.

Panel to shed some light on park fixtures

Complaints from nearby residents who say Recreation Park's ball diamond lights shine into their homes have prompted the Arlington Heights Park Board to consider modifying the fixtures.

"It's another aggravation on top of everything else," John Rokosz of 203 N. Haddow Ave. told the commissioners this week.

"But the board has promised to take steps to eliminate the problem," he said, "and I'm confident it will. I feel we've made our noise and now we can work together."

Parks Director Thomas Thornton said he has received one telephone complaint from a nearby resident besides the several citizens who asked for relief at this week's park board meeting.

"It has always been our intention after the lights were up to review the situation to determine whether shields or something are necessary," Thornton said.

He said by the end of the summer lighting consultant Wallace Weld of Northbrook, who designed the lights, will recommend whether modifications to eliminate reflection on to nearby homes is necessary.

The $90,000 lights, mounted on 70- and 80-foot high poles and using 120 1,000-watt bulbs, were installed two weeks ago by H & H Electric Co. of River Grove.

BRUSHY MOUNTAIN Prison Warden Stonney Lane, left, clutches the arm of James Earl Ray as he entered court in Wartburg, Tenn. where he pleaded innocent to state charges of escaping from prison where he is serving a 99-year sentence for the murder of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. Ray's attorney said the not guilty plea was based on the contention Ray has been held illegally for nine years.

Guarding President now more difficult

The Secret Service chief told Congress Wednesday it has become more difficult to protect the President on domestic travels because local law enforcement agencies are supplying less information about potential trouble-makers. Secret Service Director H. S. Knight said the lack of information was so serious that in at least one case his agency recommended the President change his travel plans. He would not name the city. "I don't want the American public to panic or the White House to panic and think that the President's life is in danger. What it does do is make our job infinitely more difficult," Knight said.

Knight said in the past 18 months there has been a 40 to 50 per cent decrease in the amount of intelligence material received by the service and its quality has dropped 20-25 per cent. Knight would not speculate on the cause of the information drop-off. However, Glen King, of the International Association of Chiefs of Police, and Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, placed the blame on the recently passed Freedom of Information Act and the Privacy Act. They said many law enforcers have destroyed their intelligence files, fearing the information could be made public under the acts, and for the same reason have cut down or eliminated intelligence reports to other agencies including the FBI and Secret Service.

FBI took records illegally: judge

A federal judge ruled Wednesday that the FBI had illegally seized thousands of documents when it raided the Founding Church of Scientology in Washington July 8. But U.S. District Judge William Bryant temporarily stayed his order that the documents be returned to the church until the government has a chance to appeal his ruling. Bryant, in his ruling, said the search warrant used by the FBI was so general that it allowed agents "to rummage on too loose a rein" and that "as far as I'm concerned, I think it transcends the outer limit so I rule that the warrant is a general warrant and that the property be returned." Government lawyers contended the FBI acted "completely within the bounds" of the Constitution and that they would appeal Bryant's ruling within 10 days.

Carter vows nuclear aid for Italy

President Carter Wednesday promised Prime Minister Giulio Andreotti Ameircan uranium and financial help for Italy's nuclear power program and the two leaders agreed to cooperate in making human rights a part of East-West detente. In a joint statement issued after two days of talks, Carter praised Italy's role in NATO and its "commitment to democratic institutions" — a tacit recognition by the White House of the political necessity of Andreott's recent pact allowing the Italian Communist Party a voice in government. Carter and Andreotti reached agreements on economic, financial and defense relations, including arms procurements, and pledged continued bilateral contacts at cabinet level in the next few months. Andreotti's visit had been viewed principally as aimed at getting acquainted with the new President and the fact there are no serious problems between the countries was underlined by the statement's emphasis the leaders found "basic agreement on major issues."

Rebels plan to cut Angola

Pro-Western guerrillas in Angola will establish an independent republic in the south next year even if it means another bloody civil war, a guerrilla spokesman said Wednesday. Jorge Sangumba, foreign affairs spokesman for the National Union for the Total Independence of Angola, told the Johannesburg newspaper Beeld the guerrillas plan to cut the country just about in half, declaring a separate republic south of the 11th parallel. The parallel passes near Novo Redondo on the Atlantic coastline, about 170 miles south of the capital of Luanda. "The goal of the republic is not to divide Angola," Sangumba said in an interview. "On the contrary, our eventual aim is to unite Angola and to free it from Russian and Cuban domination. "We see that as our call in Africa, to drive out those imperialists."

Fresh Ethiopian victories claimed

Eritrean secessionists and Somali rebels both claimed fresh victories over Ethiopian forces Wednesday with the United States and Britian expressing readiness to sell defensive weapons to Somalia. Eritrean spokesmen said their forces had captured the Eritrean town of Agordat, controlling the main road to the Sudan border, isolated the province capital of Asmara and now controlled the entire province except for three major towns.

The American and British announcement that they were ready to sell defensive weapons to Somalia, Ethiopia's neighbor and enemy, came after months of delicate talks, conducted mainly by Saudi Arabia, to try to woo Somalia from the Soviet camp. The United States and Britain both said Somalia had approached them for weapons, a move which diplomatic sources said could speed up the exodus of some of the 6,000 Soviet technicians in the Texas-sized nation.

Flood death toll hits 64, $200 million in damages

JOHNSTOWN, Pa. (UPI) — Searchers digging through tons of rubble and debris found the bodies of two more persons Wednesday, raising the death toll from last week's disastrous flash floods to 64.

Fourteen of the victims were still unidentified. About 2,000 were homeless and property damage from the rampaging waters was estimated at $200 million.

Residents of Johnstown had another scare Wednesday when authorities sealed off a two-block downtown area in fear of a possible gas explosion.

Authorities said gas fumes were detected in a sewer, but they soon determined it was not dangerous and allowed persons to return to work.

AS THE SEARCH for the missing went into its seventh day, three German Shepherds specially trained to sniff out bodies were brought in to join another Shepherd aiding recovery efforts.

One of the searches centered in the downstream community of Seward where nine residents of a trailer court were swept away during the 12-inch rainfall that inundated the area July 20.

Rescuers were hampered by deep pits of muck that swallowed up a bulldozer Tuesday.

Sewage plants across the disaster area remained in bad shape.

Last week Assistant Village Atty. Ernest Blomquist successfully prosecuted a 17-year-old Arlington Heights youth for running down 25 mailboxes with a car. The youth was fined $100 and ordered to pay nearly $300 in restitution to owners of the mailboxes who appeared in court to testify. If all owners of he damaged boxes had testified, restitution would have totaled nearly $800, Bloomquist said.

"You can't tell yet if this law is going to serve as a deterrent, but it's good to know it has held up in court," Blomquist said. "Hopefully it will encourage other residents who are victims of vandalism to report it and testify in court. The whole key is having a witness testify," he said.

THAT CASE involving 25 mailboxes has been the severest case of vandalism reported in Arlington Heights this summer, Police Capt. Paul Buckholz said. But that does not mean a case like those in Prospect Heights and Hanover Park is unlikely to occur here, he said.

"All you have to do is remember what those kids did to those two schools," Buckholz said, in reference to December 1975 when three youths smashed windows, desks, bookshelves and office equipment at Dunton School in Arlington Heights and Gregory School in Mount Prospect. Total damage for the two schools was estimated at $100,000.

"I've never seen anything to beat those two schools, including those two houses," Buckholz said.

BUCKHOLZ, TOO, agrees that the vandalism problem has been less severe.

"I can't prove it in statistics, but I think that is because more people are reporting stuff, which holds our stats up," he said.

"I really think the pendulum has begun to swing the other direction," Buckholz said. "People's tolerance level is down and with their help we are much more effective in fighting vandalism."

A Santa Barbara man surveys the remains of his home that burned in Tuesday night's brush fire.

Skies ablaze; California fire shows no mercy

It had been hot and dry since the beginning of summer, but the past few nights were even more uncomfortable in Santa Barbara.

The usual evening sea breeze faltered in the face of a hot wind blowing out of the mountains toward the ocean. Temperatures remained in the 90s throughout the night, and local residents began to worry about the danger of fire.

Their worst fears were realized late Tuesday, when a brush fire whipped by the wind rushed down the mountains, destroying 200 homes and forcing 2,000 residents to flee for safety on the ocean beaches.

The fire left 35 injured and $20 million in property damages.

Scattered cases of looting were reported, and California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. declared Santa Barbara County a disaster area.

Carter backs U.S. view on 3 Israeli settlements

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter Wednesday gave reluctant public endorsement to the State Dept. view that Israel raised "an obstacle to peace" by sanctioning three new Jewish settlements in occupied Arab territory.

In Jerusalem, Prime Minister Menahem Begin expressed "deep distress" at the U.S. condemnation and said he had warned Carter during their meetings last week that Israel would continue to establish such settlements.

Despite the new source of friction in U.S.-Israeli relations, senators who conferred with Carter Wednesday morning said they found him even "more optimistic" than usual about Middle East peace prospects.

THE PRESIDENT at first ignored reporters' questions on the Israeli settlement issue as he bade farewell to Italy's visiting Prime Minister Giulio Andreotti.

"I don't want to comment," he said. The reporters persisted, however, and Carter finally replied tersely, "the statement made yesterday speaks for me."

On Tuesday, Sec. of State Cyrus Vance said the United States has told Israel repeatedly "we are of the opinion that the placing of these settlements is contrary to international law and presents an obstacle to peace."

Begin's government Tuesday said it was giving official recognition to three settlements established by Jews in the West Bank Jordan territories occupied by Israeli troops since the 1967 war.

"We left no doubt in our talks (in Washington) about our position concerning settlements in the land of Israel," Begin said Wednesday in a report to parliament.

"Jews have the right to live anywhere in Judea and Samaria (the West Bank) and the Gaza Strip."

SENATORS GEORGE McGovern, D-S.D., and Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, told reporters the President had delivered an upbeat assessment of peace prospects during a breakfast meeting with a congressional delegation.

"He seemed more optimistic than I've seen him about the Arabs and Israelis settling their differences," McGovern said. "He was very optimistic we'll go to Geneva."

Carter has secured agreement in principle from Egypt and Israel to resume the Geneva Middle East peace conference, possibly in October. The conference has not met since its original, unfruitful session in 1973.

Metzenbaum said the President "seemed to have a pretty positive view about the Middle East. He feels the Geneva Conference will go through."

Metzenbaum said Carter appeared to have "accepted" the Israeli settlement announcement "as a reality" he could do nothing about.

OK of Korea pullout plans seen

TOKYO (UPI) — Defense Sec. Harold Brown predicted Wednesday that Congress will approve a $2 billion package to cover withdrawal of U.S. troops from Korea.

U.S. officials said Brown told Japanese Defense Minister Asao Mihara he "believed there would be sufficient support to carry out the program" after the Carter administration presents its case to Congress.

Officials said the question was raised by the Japanese, who are concerned that any weakening of military forces in South Korea might lead to North Korean aggression.

While the investigation of charges that Congressmen took bribes from Korean lobbyists was not discussed, officials said the talks involved Japanese fears the U.S. pullout might not involve a program to provide South Korea with modern weapons to fill the gap.

Officials said Brown also told the Japanese an American general will remain in charge of the joint command that will be set up with the South Koreans during the withdrawal.

Wood backs out of consideration for FBI chief

JUDGE HARLINGTON WOOD

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. Circuit Court Judge Harlington Wood Jr. of Chicago withdrew Wednesday as a candidate for FBI director because of "personal reasons and family considerations," the Justice Dept. announced.

President Gerald Ford named Wood to the appeals court to fill the vacancy created when John Paul Stevens was named to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Wood was one of five persons selected by a "search committee" and the names were turned over to President Carter to make the final selection for a successor to Clarence Kelley, who announced he will retire next Jan. 1.

The Justice Dept. said Wood sent a notice of his intentions in a telegram to Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell, saying he "wished to withdraw because of personal reasons and family considerations."

BELL INFORMED Carter and Wood is being removed from consideration, the department said.

Wood was administrative assistant to Deputy Atty. Gen. Richard Kleindienst when some Watergate events were taking place. He told the Los Angeles Times "I never really had any suspicions of that sort of thing . . . maybe I was too naive or something."

The other four selected by the search committee were Wayne County, Mich., Sheriff William Lucas, Detroit; Massachusetts Superior Court Justice John J. Irwin Jr.; Los Angeles County District Atty. John K. Van de Kamp, and FBI Agent Neil J. Welch of Philadelphia.

Since the search committee turned over the five names to Carter, the President and Bell have interviewed a sixth person, FBI Counsel John A. Mintz, who was said to be Kelley's choice for the job.

WOOD, 57, was the first of the original five to meet with the President.

He was appointed a U.S. attorney by President Dwight Eisenhower in 1958, resumed private practice during the Democratic years of the 1960s and in 1969 joined President Richard Nixon's Justice Dept.

Wood was assistant attorney general for the civil division when he left in 1973 — ahead of the worst of the Watergate scandal — to become U.S. District Court judge in his hometown of Springfield, Ill.

Kay·Bee's fun philosophy

We believe a toy and hobby shop should be bursting at the seams with merchandise: backgammon to baseball; beads to baby doll buggies. More, when you're looking for something special, you ought to have lots to choose from. And finally, we believe in having expert personnel around to advise, help and serve you. In short, we believe in taking your fun seriously. That's our fun philosophy. That's how we put joy back into toy shopping.

Korean probe nearly finished: Bell

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Justice Dept. advised Congress Wednesday its secret probe of Korean influence peddling is nearly finished and might produce "a very few" indictments by autumn.

In an unprecedented but limited briefing that left some members of Congress grumbling in disappointment, Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell and a top aide made a bare-bones progress report on the grand jury investigation and said it would remove the cloud of scandal hanging over Congress.

"Roughly we have exhausted 80 per cent of that (evidence) which is available and have 20 per cent to go in my rough estimate," Assistant Atty. Gen Benjamin Civiletti told about 100 House members who attended the 35-minute briefing on Capitol Hill.

"We feel that we are, as to a few cases, at the stage in which we are reviewing and analysing . . . preparatory to grand jury indictments. We are at that stage in a very few cases.

"WE EXPECT in the very near future — in the early fall — to have a few more cases at that exact same stage."

Neither Bell nor Civiletti, who heads the department's criminal division, would indicate whether prospective indictments might include members of Congress.

The Justice Dept. is investigating allegations that South Korean agents have been trying to bribe members of Congress with cash, gifts, free trips, parties and other favors for years in an effort to influence legislation.

The House Ethics Committee is conducting a separate but parallel probe of the same allegations, and critics claim both investigations have moved too slowly and too timidly in the politically sensitive case.

REP. JOHN FLYNT, D-Ga., chairman of the ethics panel, said he found the briefing "as comprehensive and as forthright as it could possibly be," given the secret nature of grand jury proceedings.

But other members of Congress called it uninformative and confusing, especially since the briefers declined to answer questions.

"I think those guys are so good at mumbling they ought to run for office," said Rep. Michael Blouin, D-Iowa.

"Their purpose," said Rep. Millicent Fenwick, R-N.J., "is to follow, no matter where, any lead that suggests a crime has been committed and (to say) we will prosecute it no matter who is involved. And I didn't hear that."

ALCOHOLISM AFFECTS YOU!

Did you know that alcoholism . . .

- Affects over 10 million Americans, half are women.
- Is considered one of the most serious health problems in the country.
- Causes over 80,000 deaths per year.
- Is involved in at least half of all cases of child abuse.
- Costs industries and thus the consumer, $15 billion a year in losses.
- Is a major cause of divorce and broken homes.
- Is a major cause of impotency in men.

Pols pack sacks for annual picnics

It's time to roll out the barrel and call "batter up." Political picnic season is on for Republican and Democratic township organizations.

The annual picnics are an opportunity for committeemen to put on a party for precinct captains, candidates and volunteer workers and maybe raise some money for the party's treasury as well.

1977 is a political "off year" during which the local parties are inactive. But the low profiles come to an end on picnic days at area forest preserves.

The following is a schedule of Republican and Democratic picnics coming up:

• Schaumburg Township Republicans' annual picnic will begin at 11 a.m. Aug. 28 in the Deer Grove forest preserve. The organization's annual dinner dance is set for Oct. 15.

• Wheeling Township Democrats' picnic will start at noon and go to 7 p.m. Aug. 6 at Dam No. 1 in the Wheeling forest preserve.

• Palatine Township Democrats will throw a picnic from noon to dusk Sept. 11 at the Deer Grove forest preserve. The party's annual dinner dance will be Oct. 21.

• Wheeling Township Republicans will foresake the woods for a Casino Night, Sept. 30 at the Plum Grove Club. The event will replace the party's usual dinner.

• Elk Grove township Republicans will gather at 1 p.m. Aug. 14 in Grove No. 9 in Busse Woods for food, baseball and tug-of-war at the party's annual picnic.

Barker case gets court delay

A decision on whether Nancy Barker, 22, is able to stand trial for the April 23 stabbing death of her father in their Arlington Heights home has been postponed until Aug. 18.

Judge James M. Bailey Wednesday ordered the case delayed because of a backlog of cases in his court.

Last month Judge Bailey ordered Miss Barker placed in the custody of the Illinois Dept. of Mental Health for treatment.

Psychiatrists from the department are expected to report on her condition Aug. 18. If there is no change, she will remain for more help.

Miss Barker was indicted in May for murdering her father, Robert Barker, 61, at their home at 710 Chestnut Ave. by stabbing him with a kitchen knife.

CANCER DETECTION
HEART ATTACK PREVENTION

A resting electrocardiogram is taken at the Northwest Center for Early Disease Detection, Inc. to detect any heart abnormalities.

Of every six people who get cancer today, two will be saved and four will die. Of the four who would otherwise die, one might be saved with earlier diagnosis and prompt treatment. (According to American Cancer Society publication '76 Cancer Facts and Figures.)

The health examination services available at the Northwest Center for Early Disease Detection include all cancer detection procedures recommended by the American Cancer Society, Illinois Division.

Heart Disease accounts for nearly half of all deaths each year. Unlike most Cancer, Heart Attack can be postponed through reducing one's risk factors such as diet, exercise, blood pressure, smoking, etc. Dr. Morris Collen, a well-known specialist in preventive medicine, was quoted in the January, 1977 Issue of FORTUNE "if one has a checkup every year or two at age thirty-five and thereafter, directed at postponable diseases, the mortality rate from those diseases after seven years is approximately 50 percent of what it would have been without exams."

The Northwest Center for Early Disease Detection, Inc. offers a preventive health screening examination designed for three purposes:

1. To establish a health profile for each individual to be used as a baseline for future care.
2. To analyze an individual's risk factors for heart disease and cancer and statistically forecast probable life expectancy and suggest ways it might actually be increased by reducing the risk factors found.
3. Screen for treatable disease. Early detection and prompt treatment increase the probability of a favorable outcome.

This meticulous 3 hour, low cost examination includes a computerized medical history, health risk analysis, physical examination, proctosigmoidoscopy, chest x-ray, electrocardiogram, blood pressure, over 30 chemical determinations on blood and urine, vision, audiometry, spirometry, glaucoma test, body measurements. Women also receive a pap smear and instruction in breast self-examination. Exercise stress test, 24 hour holter monitor, and echocardiography are available as options.

Give yourself the best protection available today against cancer and heart disease by calling your physician or the Northwest Center for Early Disease Detection, Inc. located at 1000 Grand Canyon Parkway, Hoffman Estates, Illinois (Near Woodfield Mall.) Master Charge accepted. Telephone (312) 885-1360.

Frost sends chill through Michigan

The frost was on the cucumbers and tomatoes in Michigan Wednesday. A cold snap sent the mercury to freezing in the state's Lower Peninsula and spread a chill across midwestern and eastern cities that broiled last week in 100-degree heat.

While northlanders reveled in cool, brisk breezes — or even worried about freeze damage to vegetables — Texans heated up in temperatures near 100 degrees.

Heavy rains hit parts of the northern Rockies.

MICHIGAN'S schizophrenic weather flipped from summery to autumnal. Several communities in the northern section of the Lower Peninsula recorded freezing 31-degree temperatures.

There was disagreement about possible damage to crops.

The National Weather Service in a preliminary assessment said "a killing frost took many garden products all around the central northern Lower Michigan area."

But John Kottke, agricultural weather forecaster at Grand Rapids, Mich., said "I don't think there was any widespread damage as far as field crops go."

"IT MIGHT HAVE been bad if the duration (of the freeze) was several hours," Kottke said, "but it was a pretty short period, just before sunrise. Fruit crops are in good shape because of higher temperatures at tree level. Vegetable crops might suffer because they're at ground level."

Cool air pouring down from Canada sent temperatures to record lows for the date from Kansas to Maine. An early morning low of 44 at Pittsburgh was not only a record for the date but also the second-lowest temperature ever known there in the month of July.

Record-making or record-matching lows included 37 at Concord, N.H., 41 at Alpena, Mich., 42 at Lansing, Mich., 45 at Rochester, N.Y., 46 at Toledo, Ohio, 47 at Albany, N.Y., and Scranton, Pa., 53 at Roanoke, Va., and Beckley, W. Va., 54 at Atlantic City, N.J., and 59 at Concordia, Kan.

In northern Texas, temperatures climbed again toward 105 degrees which were reached Tuesday at several cities, including Dallas.

Dist. 214 considers needs

Taxpayers still reeling from their property tax bills doubtless would have something to say if asked today what they think of the proposals for major remodeling work in High School Dist. 214's eight schools.

The fact that the initial reaction would be overwhelmingly negative does not necessarily mean Dist. 214 should not undertake a renovation program. But it does provide a focus for further discussions of the improvement program by the Dist. 214 board and administration.

The preliminary proposals presented this week by the Dist. 214 administration do not yet carry a price tag, even though board Pres. Jack Costello said he would expect the total price to be as much as $30 million.

The administration proposals include a major rebuilding job at Arlington High School, including a two-story academic addition; construction of swimming pools at five schools and additions to physical education facilities.

The proposals can be described as a "wish list." The Dist. 214 board must now take the responsibility for paring down the number of projects into a set of realistic, high priority items.

In considering those priorities, the board should give particular consideration to several things:

• The district's future enrollment. While declining enrollment in the elementary schools has not yet had a major impact on Dist. 214, it will have an effect in the future. Many expansions, particularly of office space, may not be needed as enrollment goes down.

• The need to provide more space for women's physical education programs. All the schools need more P.E. space because of new federal guidelines equalizing opportunities for men and women. The board and community have a clear duty to provide adequately and realistically for the new programs, whether through rearrangement of existing space or new facilities.

• The logic of doing massive renovation work at Arlington High School. Arlington, the oldest school in the district, would be the focus of a major reconstruction program under the administration's proposal. Here, the board must be particularly cautious because the school is in an older community and may suffer more from declining enrollment than other schools. The board must decide whether major investment there is wise.

Finally, the board must pay close attention to the impact of any building program on the taxpayers' pocketbooks. As reaction to this year's tax bills proves, property owners are reaching the point where they cannot afford any more. Any government that asks for more money will have to justify itself even more than in the past.

It may be that Dist. 214 officials will decide it is their duty to ask voters to approve a remodeling program. Before they do, however, they must make sure they have considered all the alternatives.

City-MSD road battle unneeded

The "Battle of Wille Road" last week in Des Plaines was a costly and unnecessary display of temper on the part of city officials.

Des Plaines has never liked the fact that the Metropolitan Sanitary District is building a sewage treatment plant in the city at Oakton Street and Elmhurst Road. For 10 years, the city battled the MSD in court, spending nearly $50,000 in a losing cause to stop construction of the plant.

Failing to stop the MSD in court, the city, instead, adopted a policy of harrassment. It reached new levels last week.

Wille Road, a seldom-used access route through the big plant site, is property of the City of Des Plaines. In order to divert Higgins Creek, the MSD had to close the road temporarily and lay a culvert under it. So as to not inconvenience those who use Wille Road, the MSD built a bypass route — one actually better than Wille Road itself.

But this wasn't good enough for the city. The MSD failed to get permission from Des Plaines to do this work. City officials demanded that the road be rebuilt within 24 hours or the city would dump gravel into the culvert, costing the MSD and the taxpayers considerable time and money.

The city eventually backed down on the deadline and allowed MSD contractors to finish their work and reopen the route. But in the meantime, Des Plaines had stationed police officers, public works crews and trucks on an all-day vigil at the site, a costly price to pay for a spat over an access road.

Certainly the MSD should have first received permission from the city to put a culvert through Wille Road. But the city's reaction to the oversight was unwarranted.

Who's that robot in your kitchen?

It's doubtful that the domestic android being planned by Quasar Industries will ever outdo little Artoo Detoo in the adorable department.

However, it's somehow fitting that the announcement that Quasar plans to market the household robot in two years was made just a week before Artoo and his "Star Wars" companions open in a Northwest suburban theater.

Quasar says they will sell the robots, called the "ultimate appliance" for less than $4,000. They can be programed to serve dinner and vacuum the rug; they will even have a 250-word taped vocabulary.

All of which has a distinctly unreal sound. Most of us have seen too many science fiction movies to accept the idea of our own personal robot with equanimity.

However, if Quasar can guarantee that their species of robot will remain friendly to man — none of this "robot-takes-over-the-world" type of business — they just may have a hit on their hands.

After all, an android can be handy when the station breaks are too short to get a snack.

Paul Greenberg

If only Richard Nixon had had the breaks, Watergate might still be only the name of an apartment complex in Washington.

If Nixon had controlled Congress, he could have seen to it that the Senate select committee assigned to investigate Watergate was stacked with complacent Republicans. Instead of being headed by wily old Sam Ervin, it would have been chaired into oblivion by some party hack. And no more would have been heard of the matter.

If counsel to the investigative committee proved too interested in getting to the bottom of this thing, the committee chairman could have told him to lay off. And if that didn't work, the counsel would have been hounded into handing in his resignation. And no more would have been heard of the matter.

WHEN THE demand for a special prosecutor arose, the President could have failed to see any necessity for such a move and expressed complete confidence in the Justice Department's own investigation. If only Richard Nixon had had enough popular trust, and enough congressmen in his corner, no more would have been heard.

Out at his Elba, Nixon may be tempted to review his downfall, going over each fateful step with a remorse only a chess player or a resigned president can know. But he won't have to go through the old clips or recent history to see where he slipped up. All he need do is read today's news, particularly all those Democratic responses to the demand for a serious investigation of Korean influence on Capital Hill and how it was obtained. Anyone who's interested in how Democrats stonewall might note this pattern:

First, contain the congressional investigation within a standing House committee. No select committee, no televised hearings on the major networks and public broadcasting system.

Second, make sure the committee is kept under tight rein. See that it's well populated with party stalwarts and chaired by someone as reliable as John Flynt, Democrat of Georgia.

THIRD, WHEN the committee's special counsel gets too curious (probably because he wasn't screened carefully enough before being hired) have the chairman deliver a stinging personal attack against the counsel, impugning his motives, his integrity, his accounts, his temperament, and the way he wears his tie. Top it off by accusing counsel of seeking a confrontation over this issue.

Fourth, when learned counsel has no choice but to resign when treated this way by the distinguished committee chairman, don't pay much attention. Don't even mention the resignation of the counsel in a two-page, very presidential letter expressing complete confidence in how the investigation is going. Ignore the entire matter, lest obvious parallels be drawn with the Saturday Night Massacre. That's how firestorms get started.

If necessary to quiet the public, throw some Big Names into the hopper as possible successors to former counsel. They can always be Archibald Coxed later.

Fifth, when the opposition inevitably demands a special prosecutor to look into the scandal, reject the idea as, in Jimmy Carter's words, "inappropriate and unwarranted." Emphasize the number of agents already involved in the case and the number of documents floating around, as if that were an infallible index of the sincerity and effectiveness of an investigation. Point out, to quote President Carter again, that the investigation is being conducted by "experienced prosecutors, joined by career investigators of the FBI, the Internal Revenue Service and other agencies." Mention that "thousands of individual documents" have been obtained and that "substantial progress is being made."

If all this sounds familiar, it should be — from Nixon's various and unconvincing responses to Watergate. Those lines didn't work for Richard Nixon. He didn't have the congressmen — or the popular trust — to put them over. And that was supposed to be what made Jimmy Carter and the Democrats different in 1976, wasn't it, that they could be trusted?

'Fight commercial zoning'

In reference to The Herald item of July 14 concerning "Wilke-Euclid business site" . . .

Broker Harold Johnson is quoted — "an out of town corporation is looking for a site for corporate headquarters with some warehousing." That's how it starts out. But after the zoning is approved, it can end up 20 per cent offices and 80 per cent warehousing . . . or any of 57 other uses, not counting possible variations and special uses. Too late to back up then. Mr. J. also wants to be sure the plans are agreeable to the residents! That's like asking the prisoners if they prefer to be shot or hanged.

Ald. Lorraine Godawa, our courageous freshman who so ably leads the anti-porno group, is reported as saying . . . "—it would be beneficial to the city if the right type of company builds there, and interesting to see what it could stimulate in taxes and development." Dear Lady, remember warehousing and retail shops means goods in and out. How would you like to live next to the alley used by the semi-trailer diesels as they snarl in and out past your bedroom window at all hours? Or there is a change in plan after zoning and the new plan puts the rear end of a convenience store next to your house? Milk deliveries at 4 a.m. . . . a roaring garbage truck at 7 a.m . . . and if you think I am exaggerating, come over to Plum Grove and we can show it to you. It is easy to minimize the effect of commercial intrusion on a residential area when it's in another ward, and the homes affected are owned by someone else.

Except for Ald. Retzke (bless him!), the council is said to be in favor of annexing the two fast food restaurants at Plum Grove and Euclid. Presumably the motivation is to open the way for annexing 1.3 acres to the west. The owner of this property said "I'd rather go into Rolling Meadows than Palatine." Of course he would, it's his best and probably only way to get commercial zoning, and a handsome price! Once this happens, the strip development proceeds with a string of franchisers and restaurant bars with girlies (dressed, of course), if the Mayor's subtle entertainment stamp becomes law.

To the citizens of Ward 1: If this obvious trend of affairs troubles you, then you had best let our aldermen know — they can be counted on to help. Or, you can participate in government by means of the 20 minutes of council time set aside for this purpose. Once the commercial zoning at Plum Grove and Euclid gets beyond its present boundaries, with the sanction of the city, we are on our way to duplicating the Wilke-Algonquin jungle.

Water question

After reading Thursday's July 14 Herald, I couldn't resist writing.

On Page 1 — "Sprinkling law fails to slow shortage"

On Page 7 — "138-home plan gets village approval"

Now read — re-read the articles. They sure make sense?

I think it's wonderful that people want to move to Arlington Heights, but they'll sure change their minds when they find there's a water problem.

If we continue to approve building plans, we won't have to worry about water problems. There just won't be any water.

'Appoint Jones'

Robert Guss, Palatine village board president, is in a dilemma over who he can recommend for the controversial Condemnation Board. I suggest that he publicly announce the name of Wendell Jones as chairman of this board.

Jones started this very controversial re-building of the "downtown" area. Let the stigma of association with this board be attached to his name. In fact, let Guss, Fonte and Jones serve on this Board. Don't "scramble" too fast for the door, fellows.

No easy answer to night of N.Y. blackout looting

by DAVID ANABLE

From the ninth floor of the soaring, modern state office building in the heart of Harlem you look out on dilapidated tenements. Beyond, there's "the grass" — Central Park. And finally, in the distance is "the money" — the silhouettes, shimmering in 100-degree heat, of mid-and lower-Manhattan's high-rise offices and luxury apartments.

So near . . . and yet so totally out of reach.

Yes, there are subways and buses from one part of town to the other. But as you travel northward from the clean-cut affluence of Rockefeller Center your fellow passengers mysteriously change color from white to black. And when you arrive in Harlem (or it could as well be the south Bronx or parts of Brooklyn or Queens) the summer sun has somehow become more oppressive. The city smells are stronger. Garbage litters the gutters. Buildings stand vacant and vandalized.

IT IS A DIFFERENT world. Here "we" are poor and "they" are rich; "we" are oppressed, "they" the oppressors; "we" are the jobless, "they" the unfeeling employers.

It's a distorted view. But rightly or wrongly, many ghetto dwellers see themselves as having little stake in American society — "That's all they want, man, a piece of the pie."

So on the night of July 13, when Consolidated Edison failed and the lights went out, they grabbed in the dark what they were denied in the light.

That, at least, is one of the many "explanations" for the blackout disorders. There are plenty of others. Here's a sampling gathered from the streets, from black spokesmen and office holders.

• "THE REAL PROBLEM is the lack of economic opportunity. People don't have jobs; businesses don't have the kind of support they need."

• "Many police didn't show up. If the police lived in New York it might be different. But if they live (out of town) in Spring Valley or Hempstead then they think twice before heading for Bedford-Stuyvesant or Harlem. It's frightening that 10,000 police didn't respond to an emergency."

• "What surprises me is that anyone should raise an eyebrow in surprise (at violence) when people are locked in poverty. They are getting rid of the pent-up aggressions which are attached to the monthly welfare checks, which are insufficient to meet the needs displayed nightly on TV."

The life of the ghetto is a vicious cycle which has yet to be broken. For years it grinds on unnoticed under the surface of the broader spectrum of American life. Periodically it bursts into the open, is examined, analyzed, adjusted a little, pontificated about a lot.

Then as tempers and temperatures cool it subsides back under a deceptive calm, still revolving largely unresolved, a dynamo potentially far more destructive than the lightning bolts which brought New York to a standstill on a stifling night and day earlier this month.

Perhaps, this time, the lesson will be learned. In the words of state Senator Carl McCall, "I hope this would be a signal that things have got to be done."

But what things? That is not so easily answered in a city that has become two cities.

Scheidler abortion stand criticized

On Saturday, July 8, the readers of The Herald editorial page were treated once again to the sniveling dribble of Joseph M. Scheidler, the executive director of the Illinois Right to Life Council. This time, his pathetic arguments were focused around the question of the recent United States Supreme Court decision to suspend funds for welfare abortions and the statement the Illinois taxpayers "obviously don't want to pay for it."

One of the first observations that occurs to any thinking individual is that Mr. Scheidler's apparently deep and personally secret insights into what Illinois taxpayers think is faulty — how does he know that they "don't want to pay for it?" Does he have some secret and exclusive pipeline into the minds of each and every one of us "taxpayers in Illinois?"

Scheidler called the act of an abortion a "convenience of the mother" or for the "doctors' gain." Certainly Mr. Scheidler would not have us believe any normal woman would go out and get herself pregnant just so that she can then go through the wonderful "convenience of an abortion" as he is suggesting here so very ineptly. What does he think an abortion is, something a woman who needs it relishes?

Furthermore, in a recent letter written by Mr. Scheidler and printed in a Chicago newspaper, he asserted that a great majority of doctors who can perform these operations are "greatly revolted by the act" and that many would "prefer not to do it at all" if it were not necessary and in such demand by their patients who request it.

Yet, in The Herald, Mr. Scheidler proceeded to speak from the other side of his mouth when he stated abortions obviously were only for the "gain of the doctor." Now, who are we to believe — what, indeed, are we to believe when even Mr. Scheidler cannot keep his own story straight?

The only way for a man and a woman (or the woman in the absence of the husband) to come to a decision on whether to have an abortion is for them to come to a decision on their own, free from society's moralistic inhibitions, or the foolish utterances of such groups that serve their outdated, groundless believers.

Divers say they've photographed Quebec's monster

LAC POHENEGAMOOK, Que. (UPI) — A team of divers hunting Quebec's version of the Loch Ness monster said Tuesday they have photographed a large "unidentified creature" that may be the subject of a 60-year-old local legend.

Professional diver Bob Murray said the large black creature was spotted and photographed Saturday and Sunday in this lake 120 miles east of Quebec City and some 30 miles from the south shore of the St. Lawrence River.

The photographs will be processed within a few days and submitted for scientific appraisal, Murray said.

"The object was swimming in the center of the lake," Murray said. "It was black and making quite a wake. There were no boats around and it wasn't a fish." He said he wasn't able to identify the creature.

THE DAYLIGHT sightings followed 10 days of intensive search with the use of self-recording sonar detection equipment. Murray said the devices also recorded the creature which once swam 15 feet beneath their boat.

"I don't know what it is but it's over 25 feet long and almost 10 feet wide," Murray said.

Don McPhee, an underwater instructor with the Canadian Armed Forces, said the three-man team had also spotted large sturgeon in the lake but "nowhere near the size of the creature we saw."

The divers said the photographs were taken through a telephoto lens from a mountain on the shore having a commanding view of the lake.

OVER THE PAST 60 years, local residents have reported dozens of sightings of a creature in the lake, which is six miles long, one mile wide and varies in depth from 80 to 100 feet.

"Something passed very close to me while I was swimming," one resort owner said. "I don't know what it was but it was big. I got out of there fast."

Descriptions of the creature have varied. Some say it was serpent-like while others described it as having a thick body and long arching neck with a horse-like head.

The diving team, which also includes Josef Vykydal, an underwater camera specialist, put together $5,000 to finance the expedition. With their sightings they now hope to raise financial assistance to continue and expand the search.

Among other things, the divers want to explore an underwater cave through which extremely strong currents flow, they said. They said they also charted a huge fissure in the center of the lakebed which reached over 250 feet in depth.

Carcass no monster just a sea lion

LONDON (UPI) — A Scottish zoologist says the "sea monster" hauled from the waters off New Zealand by Japanese fishermen is nothing but a decomposed sea lion and certainly no relation to the Loch Ness monster.

Dr. Alan Fraser-Brunner, aquarium curator at the Edinburgh zoo, squashed speculation the "monster" might have been a phristoric plesiosaurus, believed extinct for 130 million years.

The rotting carcass, described as like a snake with a turtle's body and front and rear flippers, came up in the fishermens' nets last April. After measuring and photographing it, they thew it back into the sea for fear it would contaminate the rest of their catch.

THE PHOTOGRAPHS were immediately hailed by British fans of the Loch Ness monster as adding weight to their theory that a prehistoric animal lives in the Scottish lake.

WEDNESDAY NIGHT BASEBALL. The Recreation Park lights were shining on the bats and gloves of Logan Square and Park Ridge Wednesday as the final Ninth District playoff opened. Logan Square easily won the opener, 9-0 behind the seven-hit pitching of Phil Czosnyka. The best-of-five series continues with a game at 6 tonight. Mike Marshall of Logan Square will face Park Ridge's Bruce Ringstrand as the two teams fight for the right to play in next week's Cook County tourney. See story on page 2. (Photo by Anne Cusack)

Arroyo halts Sox bats, 3-1

by BOB GALLAS

Sox manager Bob Lemon leaned back in his chair and paused just a moment. "Everybody's human around here, you know," he said to no one in particular.

Indeed the White Sox did prove they were human Wednesday, at least they proved they could lose in July. Fernando Arroyo and the Detroit Tigers did what few have done this month, beat the Sox, which they did by a 3-1 margin before 39,177 fans at Comiskey Park.

Wilbur Wood had his knuckler dancing a polka when it should have done a waltz, or at least a fox trot, and that made the difference in the end.

WOOD GROOVED a fastball with a man on in the Tiger second and Aurelio Rodriguez, a .213 hitter, pumped it into the seats for a two-run homer. But Wilbur could think only of the six walks he gave up afterwards.

"A few too many walks tonight but the ball was breaking so quick, it was breaking out of the strike zone," said Wood. "In the final analysis, the walks did me in."

Two of the Detroit runs came via the walk, the man aboard when Rodriguez homered and another in the Tiger ninth, when Detroit scored on what Wood called a "walk, ping, bloop" rally. Detroit added their third run on a walk, swinging bunt and a blooper into the outfield.

But Lemon pointed out the missed scoring opportunities as the key to the matter. The Sox left the bases full twice and two men in scoring position in the fifth on a leadoff single and double, without producing more than a run.

The Sox opened with a run in the first when they loaded the bases with one out. However only one run was produced as Ralph Garr scored on an infield out. And that was to be it for the South Side Hitmen, scoring wise anyway.

The loss, coupled with Kansas City's come-from-behind win Wednesday, cut the Sox lead to four games with the Royals coming into town for a four-game weekend series.

"I DIDN'T think much of the homer then," Wood summarized. "The way we've been scoring runs, I wasn't concerned."

But the Sox, who had scored 45 runs in five straight wins since the All-Star break, met their match in Arroyo, a 25-year-old righthander who hadn't won his last eight times out, during which time he'd lost six games. Arroyo, a sinkerball specialist, had the Sox beating the ball into the dirt.

"I moved up a foot and a half on him, something I never do, and the ball still broke down at least a foot," said Brian Downing, who had one hit in four trips, but just missed a two-for-four night by inches.

Downing smacked a shot off Rodriguez at third in the seventh inning and while most of the fans thought Rodriguez had touched the ball while in fair territory, which would have given Downing a one-out double, umpire Steve Palermo called it foul. Downing eventually hiked back to the plate where he grounded out.

"I HIT THE bleep out of it, but I really didn't see it," said Downing, who hustled all the way to second before learning the trip was in vain.

But third base coach Bobby Knoop did see it and even he later admitted the ball was foul, though that was too late to ease the boos that pelted Palermo for the rest of the evening.

Wood went the distance but earned his third loss against five wins. Arroyo had 1-2/3 innings perfect relief help from John Hiller, who notched a save. Arroyo is now 6-9.

The loss was only the fifth this month for the South Siders, who are 19-5 in July.

SOX SHORTS: Wednesday's crowd put the Sox season attendance at 920,524 . . . that's more than the 914,945 the club drew all last season . . . Richie Zisk's 71 RBIs puts him second in the A.L. to Larry Hisle's 86 . . . The Sox top both leagues in batting with a .285 average . . . Jorge Orta's 15-game hitting streak was snapped Wednesday . . . The Sox went into action Wednesday with a five-game lead in the A.L. West, the longest lead held by the club since Eddie Stankey's team held a 5½-game lead on July 1, 1967.

Split with Reds

Renko keeps Cubs in first place

by ART MUGALIAN

You could miss the scar on Steve Renko's neck only if you were looking the other way.

"That's a nice necklace I've got, isn't it?" said the tall Cub righthander, sitting in front of his locker Wednesday at Wrigley Field.

RENKO HAD JUST pitched eight of the most beautiful innings that 42,342 paying Cub fans hadn't really expected to see. They were eight innings against the World Champion Cincinnati Reds, eight innings that pleased Renko and certainly surprised and pleased Cub manager Herman Franks, who continues to manage a first-place team, thanks to Renko.

Eight innings from Renko — plus one perfect relief frame from Willie Hernandez — gave the Cubs a 5-1 win in the second game of a doubleheader after the Reds had opened the day with a 6-2 victory to break their eight-game losing streak.

IT WAS RENKO'S first win of the year, although it depended as much on the Cubs' five-run rally in the eighth as it did on Renko's superb three-hit pitching. But, for the eight-year, major-league veteran, the performance was proof that he has recovered from an operation in April to remove a benign growth from his throat.

"I never really thought about what the operation was going to do to my career," said Renko, who retired 21 Reds in order at one point in Wednesday's game. "I didn't have time to be scared. Four days after they found the nodule, they cut it out."

Renko went on the disabled list and people were starting to ask if the big ex-Expo would ever be able to help the Cubs. When he finally returned, the 6-6 Kansan spot-started four games, including a nifty seven-inning effort in St. Louis. But he showed next to nothing on two other occasions. Again his dependability was questioned. His ERA was 4.85.

"All I can do is go out there when they want me to and when I'm able to," said Renko, who struck out five and walked nobody.

"I had a little better stuff against St. Louis," he said, "but today I had better location with my pitches. I threw a lot of sliders in on the hands. That was a good pitch for me."

THE CUBS TRAILED, 1-0, in the nightcap from the first through the eighth because the Reds scored almost immediately on Renko with a single by Ken Griffey and an RBI double by George Foster, the majors' leading home run and RBI man. After Foster's double, though, Renko set down every Red he faced until ex-Cub Bill Plummer doubled with two out in the eighth.

"I didn't know he retired 21 straight," said Franks. "No wonder I wasn't so nervous then. What was getting me was that we were down a run. It would have been a shame if he pitched like that and didn't get a win."

So the Cubs went out and got Renko some runs in the bottom of the eighth. Ivan DeJesus, in the throes of a 1-for-31 slump, tripled to right and scored the tying run when Gene Clines, hitting for Renko, bounced one over the mound to shortstop Dave Concepcion, whose throw to the plate was too late to get DeJesus.

Jose Cardenal delivered a hit-and-run single to send Clines to third and Larry Biittner followed with a single to right field, pushing the Cubs in front. Sacrifice flies by Jerry Morales and Manny Trillo and an RBI single for Steve Ontiveros padded the lead.

"I HAD A FEELING we'd score," said Renko. "After DeJesus tripled, I knew we'd tie it, and if we could tie it we could win it.

Franks, breathing a sigh of relief, admitted that he was prepared to bring Bruce Sutter into the game if Hernandez had found trouble in the ninth. Sutter, recuperating from his knotted shoulder muscle, warmed up but wasn't needed.

"That's the way we played the first half of the season," Franks said. "If we needed a few runs late in the game, we'd get 'em."

The Cubs were next to helpless in the opener against Reds' rookie Mario Soto, a 21-year-old native of the Dominican Republic who got his first big league win in his first start. He went the distance and struck out nine. Foster hammered his 32nd HR and Johnny Bench became the fourth catcher ever with 1,000 RBIs.

IN THAT GAME, Cub starter Mike Krukow had to leave when he was hit in the right bicep by a fourth-inning line drive off the bat of Mike Lum. The shot went for a hit, gave the Reds a 2-1 lead and sent Krukow to the hospital for X-rays, which were negative. The righthander may not miss a turn.

If he should be out of action for more than a day or two, Franks knows where to look for a replacement.

"If Renko can keep coming like that — if he can come half that good," said Franks, "it'd be great."

Sting hopes still alive

FT. LAUDERDALE, Fla. — The Chicago Sting revitalized dying hopes of landing a North American Soccer League playoff spot Wednesday night by defeating the division-leading Ft. Lauderdale Strikers, 2-1.

In a bruising contest played before a sellout throng of 11,150 Striker supporters, the Sting rallied for a 1-0 halftime deficit to capture the crucial verdict.

"To come from behind on a foreign field and in front of their hometown fans is really something," Sting coach Willy Roy admitted. "To beat ont of the best teams in the league is really encouraging. No one can take us lightly now."

The Strikers, riding the crest of a seven-game winning streak, took command of the first half on a goal by David Chadwick.

But the Sting countered for a tie at 67:94 when Jimmy Kelly converted a pass from Bennie Alon from five yards away.

Willie Morgan earned the Sting clincher unassisted at the 70:31 mark when he cashed from 12 yards away.

The Strikers outshot the Sting 29-11 and Sting goalie Mervyn Cawston played a brilliant game in goal to prevent a Striker rout, turning aside 13 saves to four for the Strikers.

Youngsters win Olympic medals

Approximately 300 contestants participated in the final day of the Paddock Olympics at Wheeling High School Wednesday.

Boys and girls ages eight to 13, competed in 10 events, including the 50-yard dash, softball throw, tennis singles, team relay, team softball, jump rope, kickball, 100-yard dash, tug-of-war, and standing long jump.

All participants received Paddock Olympic patches and the first through fifth place finishers in each event earned ribbons.

For the second consecutive year, team standings were not kept. The emphasis was upon individual participation.

Park districts participating in the 11th annual Olympics included Des Plaines, Arlington Heights, Salt Creek, Wheeling, River Trails, Hoffman Estates, Prospect Heights, and Rolling Meadows.

Des Plaines won the boys' and girls' team shuttle relay.

The following are the age champions in each other event. Friday's Herald will have complete results.

ALL THAT WAS NEEDED. Logan Square's Mike Marshall watches his triple shoot past the Park Ridge outfielders in the first inning Wednesday night. It drove in Rick Heredia with the first run of the Lions' 9-0 victory in the opening game of the final series in the Ninth District.

Lions bombard Park Ridge, 9-0

by DON FRISKE

The Logan Square Lions used hitting and pitching to eliminate Park Ridge's basic strategy in the opening game of the final round in the Ninth District tournament Wednesday night.

By defeating Park Ridge 9-0, the Lions wiped out their opponent's chance of sweeping this best-of-three series to determine which team will advance to the Cook County tourney next week.

That may seem like a small point, but for Park Ridge, a team with a roster of 10, fast series become a necessity. They swept both Schaumburg and Tattler Post in best-of-three affairs to earn the right to play Logan Square.

LION COACH John Wendell went with Phil Czosnyka as his starting pitcher. The Logan Square ace worked the full nine innings, allowing only seven hits with the same number of strike outs.

On the other side of the diamond, Park Ridge coach Doug Sellegren had to go with Bill Fratto, his third pitcher. Sellegren originally planned to use Rob Earhart, the team's toughest pitcher.

But he broke a finger on his right hand last week in a softball game to further deplete the Park Ridge lineup.

It probably wouldn't have made a nine-run difference, however, as the Lions scored all they needed in the first inning. After Jim Passolt singled to left and was forced at second by Rick Heredia, Mike Marshall slammed a triple to the hole between right and center fields.

HE PROMPTLY SCORED on the same play when the ball got away from the third baseman on the relay throw.

The Lions added three runs in the third on two errors and singles by Mike Ledna, Passolt and Marshall to go with a double by Tim Prokof.

No one warmed up in the Park Ridge bullpen. Fratto had to provide his own relief.

But there was to be none of that for Park Ridge Wednesday night.

FOLLOWING SOLO runs in the fifth and sixth innings, Logan Square finally shut down its offense with two more in the eighth. They came on an error, a walk and a single by Heredia up the middle.

Park Ridge's one opportunity to end Czosnyka's shutout hopes came before the Recreation Park lights were still being overpowered by the setting sun. With runners on first and second and nobody out in the first, Czosnyka got the next three batters on flyouts.

From that point until the ninth inning, Czosnyka was able to work with no more than one Park Ridge runner on base. Two men reached with one out in the ninth, but the game ended on a snappy doubleplay.

The series moves to game No. 2 tonight at 6 on the Rec Park field. Marshall will start for the Lions, who will be the visiting team, while Bruce Ringstrand will work for Park Ridge.

Registration for softball tourney

Teams in the Northwest Suburbs are invited to compete with some of the top 12-inch slo-pitch teams in the Fox River Valley in the first annual Dairy Queen Invitational. This 16 team single elimination tournament, sponsored by Elgin's east side Dairy Queen, will be held at Leiseberg Park in Bartlett the weekend of Aug. 13-14.

Prizes to be awarded include a large team trophy, 12 individual trophies, and $70 traveling expenses for the first place team. Second and third place teams will likewise receive team trophies and traveling expenses. A trophy will also be awarded to the tournament's leading hitter.

The first 16 teams to pay the $50 entry fee will earn positions in the tournament field. For more information please contact tournament director Clay Tiknis at 837-7638 or Jim Kampert at 837-8354. Deadline for entries is Aug. 6.

Crippled children win in Shriner's game

Jim Murray

So far as the little boy in the hospital bed at the Shriners Hospital for Crippled Children was concerned, the football player standing before him might as well have been from Mars. football player standing before him might as well have been from Mars. In the first place, he had one more of everything than most of the kids around him, one more leg, one more arm, one more eye, 10 more fingers and toes.

If someone tackled him, he wouldn't turn into a little mound of bone shards. He could do something mysterious called "kicking." This had to be explained to the little children in the third-floor ward because flying would be about as possible for most of them as kicking.

In the first place, to kick, your feet have to be pointed in the same direction. No, correction, first you have to have feet. Your legs have to be the same length. Your knees have to hinge. You have to have hands.

HARDLY ANY of the kids in the hospital qualify. To them, happiness is being able to wear shoes. They stare at the football players as if they came from outer space. Not even if they had pointed ears and antennae growing out of their heads could they look more unreal to the kids. The kids thought only doctors had appendages that worked — like fingers or arms.

Kids come with parts missing. They come dissembled like Christmas wagons. Only, no instructions are enclosed. They got damaged in transit, or botched in assembly, and they don't even come marked "This End Up" or "Fragile," although God knows they are. And, you can't take them back after the holidays and exchange them.

Take little Stacy in Bed No. 3. Stacy looks, from a distance, as if he might grow up to be a fine wide receiver. Only, for that, you need fingers. Stacy has claws. He could no more catch a football than a lobster could. He will need extensive surgery just to be able to pick up a spoon. Stacy doesn't want to go to the Rose Bowl some day. He just wants to be able to eat out some day. Or to wear shoes. His feet are clawed, too. God forgot the toes.

THE FOOTBALL players frightened Stacy, who began to cryy, "I want my mommy." All the kids at the Shrine Hospital want their mommies. But mommies sometimes tendto bug out or to cry, "Where's the rest of her?" when presented with two-thirds of a child — or a child with mittens for hands or lumps for feet or bones so brittle they shatter in a fresh breeze like crystal at a high note.

It takes money and brains and skill and surgery to reassemble these broken dolls, to dry up these tears, and last Saturday night in the Rose Bowl the annual Shrine All-Star high school game was played. They didn't play this one for the old Gipper or Alma Mater Dear or even the AP poll. They played this one for Stacy. And Minerva, who needs hands and feet and a lot of love. And Sarah, whose bones need expanding rods so they won't look like a pile of broken teacups when someone bumps into her.

Football coaches go around with stopwatches and scales and tape measures to recruit players who can run the 100 in 9.5, or break the scales at 280, or who are 6-8 and can catch a thrown ball in a crowd. The Shriners recruit at the border and down the neck of Central and South America. They're looking for kids who can't crawl the 100 in under an hour, or who could be weighed in a meat market, and who never will be over 5 feet tall even when they get feet.

THERE ARE some countries which reject polio vaccines as sissy stuff, it seems and they are not required for their macho population. But no one has ever figured how to cape a virus or jab polio, and the Shriners squad is as big as Notre Dame's every year. There are plenty of kids in the world who need a Shrine scholarship more than a football scholarship and who will spend their life on a board with roller skates if they don't get it.

You'll pay good money to watch these kids play for USC or UCLA in a year or so. The Rams squad is full of graduates of this game. If you know of a better use for money than buying hands or feet for a child who never had any, let us in on it. Because, when we say, let's hear it, let's give these kids a hand, we mean it literally.

Pittsburgh pulls within 2 games

From Herald Wire Services

By winning the nightcap to split a doubleheader with the Cincinnati Reds at Wrigley Field Wednesday, the Cubs guaranteed they would keep possession of first place no matter what the Philadelphia Phillies did in their night game at Los Angeles Wednesday night.

Leading the Phillies by one game in the standings following the doubleheader, the Cubs will begin today's single afternoon game with Cincinnati leading the Phillies by either a half or one-and-a-half games Pitsburgh trails by two games.

Wednesday, Pittsburgh edged Houston 3-2, St. Louis defeated Atlanta 5-3 and New York downed San Francisco 7-4.

Rennie Stennett's RBI single in the bottom of the 11th inning scored Bill Robinson with the winning run when the Pittsburgh Pirates edged the Houston Astros 3-2 for their seventh straight win.

Robinson opened the inning with a walk off reliever Bo McLaughlin. Al Oliver's ensuing sacrifice bunt was thrown wildly past second by McLaughlin, allowing Robinson to advance to third. Stennett then stroked a single to right to bring home Robinson with the winning run.

GARRY TEMPLETON knocked in the tie-breaking run with a sacrifice fly and Tony Scott brought home an insurance run with his third straight single as the St. Louis Cardinals took their fifth straight with a 5-3 decision over the Atlanta Braves.

Heity Cruz singled off reliever Rick Camp to open the seventh and went to second on a wild pitch. With one out, Camp walked Mike Phillips and pinch-hitter Dave Rader was safe on Rod Gilbreath's throwing error. Don Collins replaced Camp and walked Lou Brock, forcing in Cruz with the tying run. Templeton scored Phillips with a deep fly to center and Scott chased home Rader with an infield hit.

Rookie Steve Henderson drove in two runs and scored two others Wednesday as the New York Mets scored a 7-4 victory over the San Francisco Giants. Henderson led a 16-hit attack on five pitchers. He walked and scored in the third inning, tripled in Lenny Randle and scored on a double by John Stearns in the fourth and singled in a run in the seventh.

KC edges Indians in 11 innings, 5-4

AL baseball

Consecutive 11th-inning singles by Bob Heise, Joe Zdeb and George Brett Wednesday night lifted the Kansas City Royals to a 5-4 victory over the Cleveland Indians.

In other American League action Wednesday, Baltimore defeated New York 6-4, and Milwaukee bettered Boston 14-5. California was at Oakland, and Minnesota was at Seattle on the West Coast Wednesday night.

Rich Waits, the fourth Cleveland pitcher, did not retire a batter in the 11th as his record fell to 5-3. Doug Bird went the final two innings for Kansas City in posting his club-record seventh straight triumph in relief.

The Royals tied the score at 4-4 when they scored two runs in the ninth on John Mayberry's bunt single, a triple by Amos Otis and a suicide squeeze bunt by Heise that the Cleveland infield let roll for a single.

HOME RUNS BY Eddie Murray and Lee May, plus a two-run single by Elliott Maddox, highlighted a five-run, eighth-inning rally when the Baltimore Orioles beat the New York Yankees 6-4.

The Orioles' victory, coupled with the Red Sox' loss, increased Baltimore's lead in the American League East to two games over Boston and three games over New York.

The Yankees had broken a 1-1 tie in the seventh when Dell Aston's sacrifice fly scored Willie Randolph, who had opened with a triple. Murray and May began the Orioles' eighth with homers to knock out starter and loser Jim Hunter.

JIM WYNN SCORED the tie-breaking run on George Scott's error and Charlie Moore followed with a run-scoring single when the Milwaukee Brewers rallied for four runs in the eighth inning to beat the Boston Red Sox 14-5, and snap their five-game losing streak.

Cecil Cooper and Don Money started the inning with singles and Jim Wynn's RBI single chased reliever Bob Stanley. One out later, Jamie Quirk singled in Money and then Scott let Lenn Sakata's grounder go through his legs allowing Wynn to score.

Moore's single scored Quirk with the fourth run of the inning and the Brewers added seven runs in the ninth with the help of RBI singles by Sal Bando and Ken McMullen and Yon Joshua's two-run double.

Woodfield Cubs win, bid tonight for state honors

Dave Manning's pitching and hitting keyed the Woodfield Cubs' 7-3 win against Champaign in the semifinals of the State Babe Ruth Baseball Tournament in Galesburg.

Manning pitched the entire game, striking out nine batters and walking six.

However, it was as a hitter, that Manning made his real contribution. His bases-loaded double drove in three runs in the bottom of the fifth and helped Woodfield overcome Champaign's 3-2 lead.

Woodfield now plays the winner of Wednesday's Rock Island-Champaign contest for the state championship Thursday night.

Helping the Cubs achieve a 7-0 record in tournament play so far, are Manager Wally Janiec, Coach George Lucas, and General Manager Dick Porter. The team is sponsored by North Point Bank of Arlington Heights.

Nets pay heavy toll for move to Jersey

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — The New York Nets said Wednesday that, having agreed to pay a second indemnity to the New York Knicks to settle a territorial basketball dispute, they will move to New Jersey for the 1977-78 season. Under the agreement, the Nets agree to pay the money, reportedly between $2 and $4 million, to settle the controversy which threatened to halt the Nets' plans to move here to the Meadowlands sports complex.

Roy Boe, president of the Nets, said the agreement did not involve any players or draft choices and the undisclosed sum would be paid over the next few years. The Knicks claimed the Nets could not move their home territory within 75 miles of New York City, but the Nets — who previously played at the Nassau Coliseum in Uniondale, N.Y., 30 miles away, and paid a $4 million indemnification for that privilege when they left the now-defunct American Basketball Assoc. to join the National Basketball Assoc. prior to the 1976-77 season — said they were free to move to New Jersey.

Courageous rules sailing trials

NEWPORT, R.I. — Defending cup-winner Courageous narrowly defeated Enterprise Wednesday to continue its domination of America's Cup racing on the final day of July's observation trials. In a slow, tight race in light winds, skipper Ted Turner and his crew outmaneuvered Lowell North's Enterprise by 43 seconds, taking advantage of a slight wind shift.

Courageous jumped to a 10 second lead at the start but the two boats traded he lead around he 15-mile course. Known bes for performing well in light air, Enterprise led at each turn, but the margin diminished from 40 seconds at the fourth mark to 17 seconds at the fifth. Courageous moved ahead at the finish as the eight knot winds from the southeas shifed to 10 knots from the southwest.

FBI joins search for thoroughbred

FRANKFORT ky. — The FBI said Wednesday its search for the missing thoroughbred mare believed to be in foal to former Triple Crown winner Secretariat had spread to 20 states. However, officials said they still don't know where the horse is despite receiving "numerous" tips from the public each day.

The FBI and state police also said they have not and don't immediately plan to issue any other warrants for persons that may be connected with the June 25 theft of the mare from the Claiborne Farm in Paris. The comments came after Tuesday's arrest by FBI and Kentucky state troopers of William M. McCandless, who surrendered to Lexington authorities. McCandless, 30, who was named last week in warrants issued by a federal magistrate and local authorities, was accused of stealing Franfreluche, the mare for whom a $25,000 reward had been offered.

Animal feed company buys Blues

ST. LOUIS — Ralston Purina Co. Wednesday announced tentative agreement to buy the financially ailing St. Louis Blues of the National Hockey League. R. Hal Dean, board chairman and chief executive officer, said the transaction will represent a cash commitment of about $4 million for Ralston, the world's largest manufacturer of animal feed.

The club has been principally owned by Sid Salomon Jr. since its founding 10 years ago. Salomon has been in poor health and the operation of the St. Louis Arena has been a financial drain on the Blues. Dean said Ralston will buy all shares of stock in the Blues, which he said "will be an entity operating separately and apart from Ralston Purina Co. We expect the hockey club to pay its own way."

Ask Andy

Team didn't huddle in first sports

Andy sends the Encyclopaedia Britannica's 1977 Yearbook of Science and the Future to Ingrid Solarczyk, 13, of Newport Beach, Calif., for her question:

HOW DID SPORTS START?

Sporting competition is part of the modern way of life. Most of us enjoy keeping in shape physically, so we take in lots of sporting events. And we love to root for the team, so we take part as spectators in still more sporting events.

From the very earliest of civilized societies have come sporting competition. There has always been, it seems, the desire to train and compete. At first the game was war, but eventually man became smart enough to learn how to live together, and the attention shifted to more peaceful competition.

Individual sporting events are perhaps the oldest known. Large groups or teams of players were not necessary. Included in this grouping are the modern sports of archery, bowling, swimming and golf. All have roots in ancient history.

Olympic Games originated in Greece in 776 B.C. The latest international competition was in Montreal, Canada, in 1976 and will be in Moscow in 1980.

The first modern Olympic Games took place in Athens, Greece, in 1896. Four years later, in 1900, women were allowed to compete for the first time. With the exception of the war years of 1916, 1940 and 1944, Olympic games have been held every four years.

Winter Olympics started in 1924. The 1976 games were held in Innsbruck, Austria, while the 1980 competition has been set for Lake Placid, N.Y.

About 130 countries have Olympic committees today. Each nation is allowed to enter as many as three athletes in each individual event. There is no age limit for those who take part in the competition.

Each year the host nation is allowed to introduce a new sporting event into the competition.

What would you say are the most popular sports being enjoyed today from both the participation and observation side? The experts say they include the following: baseball, basketball, boxing, football, golf, soccer, swimming and tennis.

Sports is also big business. Billions are spent every year by people who buy sporting equipment and tickets to attend sports events.

Andy sends the book 200 Illustrated Science Experiments to Michelle Kovatch, 12, of Edison, N.J., for her question:

WHAT IS IODIZED SALT?

Iodized salt is common table salt that contains a small quantity of an iodide as a supplement to the diet. It is especially recommended for a person with an iodine deficiency.

Salt is necessary for health. Every body cell must have salt in order to live and work. Tears, sweat and even blood are salty. About 0.9 per cent of the blood and the body cells is made up of salt. Often when medicine is injected into the bloodstream, it is mixed with a salt solution that is composed of sterile water and 0.9 per cent salt.

Less than 5 per cent of the salt production of the world is used for seasoning foods. Most is used for processing food, making glass, soap and other products. It is extimated there are more than 14,000 uses for salt.

Do you have a question to Ask Andy? Send it on a post card with your name, age and complete address to Ask Andy in care of The Herald, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006. Entries are open to boys and girls 7 to 17.

West pulls big swindle

We have to congratulate West on a most successful swindle. We leave it to you readers to decide whether South should have fallen into the trap.

South won the spade lead with dummy's ace, led a club and finessed his jack. West dropped the nine!

South pondered a bit, entered dummy with the king of diamonds, cashed the ace of diamonds to discard a spade and repeated the club finesse. The time West produced the queen and cashed his queen of diamonds. All of a sudden South was squeezed. He had to keep his queen of hearts guarded so he was forced to chuck a club.

Now West threw South in with a spade. He ran off the rest of the clubs but that only gave him eight tricks and he had to lead a heart to give East the rest.

South explained that he was afraid that if he did not repeat the club finesse and East did hold four to the queen, East would get in and lead a small heart to a probable honor in the West hand. A reasonable fear, but we still rather think that South should have just continued clubs after the jack held.

A familiar sight in the Northwest suburbs: the death of a farm and the birth of a subdivision.

Farmland—what little there is of it—skyrocketing

by DAVE IBATA

The few remaining farmers who work the fields of the Northwest suburbs are finding themselves in possession of potential gold mines — not in their crops, but in their land.

Farmland values have soared nationwide during the past four years, pricing many beginning farmers out of the business and contributing to skyrocketing costs of development.

Northwest Cook County has the dubious honor of possessing some of the most expensive open land in the country. An average acre of farmland here sells for $20,000.

AND THESE FARMS, surrounded on all sides by suburban sprawl, present the last avenues of development for area builders.

"We have builders coming in every day looking for scattered lots, hoping to find something," said Roger H. Evans, of Roger H. Evans Realtors, 309 E. Palatine Rd., Prospect Heights.

Evans said farmland in the Northwest suburbs has sold for as high as $30,000 an acre. The development potential of farmland — its proximity to sewer and water lines, highways and commuter transportation — determines local prices, he said.

Most developers are building single-family homes at the fastest clip seen in the area in 18 years, Evans said.

MOST OPTIMUM land already has been snatched up, Evans said, "and builders now have to buy land that's not as desirable."

For example, Evans said, "On one side will be an industrial park, on the other side will be condominium apartments, and in the middle you have $75,000 homes."

Evans provided an illustration of rising prices:

A 3-bedroom, single-family home built on land that sold for $3,500 an acre in 1967 fetched a purchase price of between $20,000 and $25,000. An identical home built today on $15,000-an-acre land sells for between $65,000 and $70,000.

FARMLAND BEING used for residential subdivisions is scattered throughout the Northwest suburbs, mostly in or around Mount Prospect, Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates, Palatine, Wheeling, Buffalo Grove, Prospect Heights and Elk Grove Village.

Mount Prospect and Schaumburg are among the most active areas, Evans said. The Mount Prospect area reported 507 building permits, including 45 for single-family homes, issued between January and May, Evans said.

The Schaumburg area reported 519 permits issued, all for single-family homes, during the same period, he said.

Pressures for development have kicked farmland prices higher in the Chicago area than for the rest of Illinois. Farmland prices for the state averaged $1,184 an acre in 1976, a 41 per cent increase over 1975 prices.

NATIONALLY, the value of farmland rose 16 per cent to $495.5 billion between February 1976 and 1977, and is expected to go up another 8 to 10 per cent this year, according to the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture.

Of the farmland sold nationally, the amount purchased for such non-agricultural use as subdivisions increased 5 per cent to 20 per cent, the USDA said.

Norman Strassenburg is president of the Cook County Farm Bureau and auctioneer of farmlands. He said in the Chicago area, "There is a definite demand for vacant properties right now."

He said, "There really isn't any land in Cook County being sold just for agricultural purposes anymore . . . It's prohibitive to buy just for farmland."

FRANKLIN J. REISS, agricultural economist for the University of Illinois, Champaign-Urbana, said different factors affect farmland prices in the Chicago area, compared to prices Downstate.

"The market (around Chicago) is governed by the prospects of suburban expansion," Reiss said. "That market was rather depressed for a year or two, but recently picked up again."

Evans cited factors that affect land prices in the area:

- Chicago's position as a world trade center.
- A mix of industry in the Chicago area unmatched by most other U.S. cities.
- Readily accessible commuter railroads and tollways in the Northwest suburbs.
- The presence of Centex Industrial Park, one of the country's largest, in Elk Grove Village.
- Continuing growth in residential and industrial development.

Increased farmland prices nationally "had its initial impact about 1973, when crop production around the world fell below normal," Reiss said.

More grain exports from the United States started flowing overseas, he said.

"Also, the devaluation of the dollar made our prices cheaper, and so the impact of production declines elsewhere, together with devaluation, simply had a demand impact on our market, and grain prices went up," Reiss said.

FARMERS EARNED higher incomes, and put their extra money to use by expanding their land holdings, Reiss said. This, coupled with inflation, drove prices up, he said.

High land values notwithstanding, the builder makes a very small profit on the land he develops, Evans said.

"Land is the last factor in profit," Evans said.

He said profits, in descending order, depend on labor, management, financing and, finally, the value of the land.

Profit, he said, is based "basically on his finesse of being a builder, rather than on his finesse on being the developer of the land."

And, Evans added, "The public is ready to pay premiums for housing because financing is readily available."

Shhh! Farmers at work while land values grow

by DAVE IBATA

Perhaps for sentimental reasons, or perhaps because of hope for financial gain, farmers in the Northwest suburbs continue working their land, hoping for modest profits in exchange for their crops.

And the longer they hold on to their land, the more valuable their land becomes.

Only about a half-dozen families still own working farms in the Northwest suburbs of Cook County. Almost all of the county's 631 farms lie in the southern half of the county.

BUT IN THE Northwest suburbs, what little farmland remains sells for an average of $20,000 an acre. That can result in a small, potential fortune for each farm owner.

"A lot of farmers are saying, 'I'm just going to wait. I'm making an adequate living," said Roger H. Evans, a Prospect Heights realty agent. "He (the farmer) feels it's that much money in the bank."

However, in the face of increased costs of operation and high real estate taxes, the suburban farmer must be a frugal manager of money.

Norman Strassenburg, president of the Cook County Farm Bureau, said an area farmer must work between at least 100 and 150 acres of land to break even on a profitable vegetable crop.

BUT MOST Chicago-area farmers till grain products, such as corn and wheat, and need a minimum of 600 acres to break even, Strassenburg said.

"Farming no longer is a game of chance," he said. "It's an exacting profession. Only the large farmers would survive. Now this is true throughout the county. A 150-to 200-acre farm 25 years ago could give a guy a decent living, but not today."

Eighteen years ago, everything surrounding us was farms. Now the subdivisions surround the farms.

A working farm butting up against a newly developed residential subdivision is a common sight in the Northwest suburbs — but not a welcome one for farmers, said Franklin J. Reiss, agricultural economist at the University of Illinois, Champaign-Urbana.

He called such phenomena "leap frogging — open spaces packed between developments.

"The whole thing gets kind of inefficient and uneconomical," he said.

Besides, farmers and city-folk make poor neighbors, Reiss said.

"I'VE ACTUALLY seen a legal petition to gain an injunction to stop a farmer from cultivating land because he was polluting houses with dust," Reiss said.

"They're not good neighbors because urban people who have not had any contact with farms are sometimes very disrespectful of a farmer's position in trying to grow crops," Reiss said. "Kids ride their motorcycles through the land, knocking down crops, and neighbors dump refuse onto their property."

In return, Reiss said, "a housewife opens her window on a nice spring day and gets a lungful of her neighbor's manure pit."

Because of leap-frogging, farmers often must move heavy machinery from parcel to parcel through the streets of residential subdivisions, causing hazards to children and tying up traffic, Reiss said. Herbicides used by farmers sometimes blow over to a nearby subdivision and kill garden plants, he said.

AND IN THE end, perhaps largely out of disgust, the farmer sells his land.

Irv Ahrens, of 2616 Schoenbeck Rd., Arlington Heights, sees suburban development from a farmer's perspective. His family rents and works 160 acres in the Northwest suburbs.

A large tract of their land has been earmarked as the future site of Harper College's new campus.

Ahrens said he started farming in the Northwest suburban area 23 years ago.

"It's getting more difficult every year," he said.

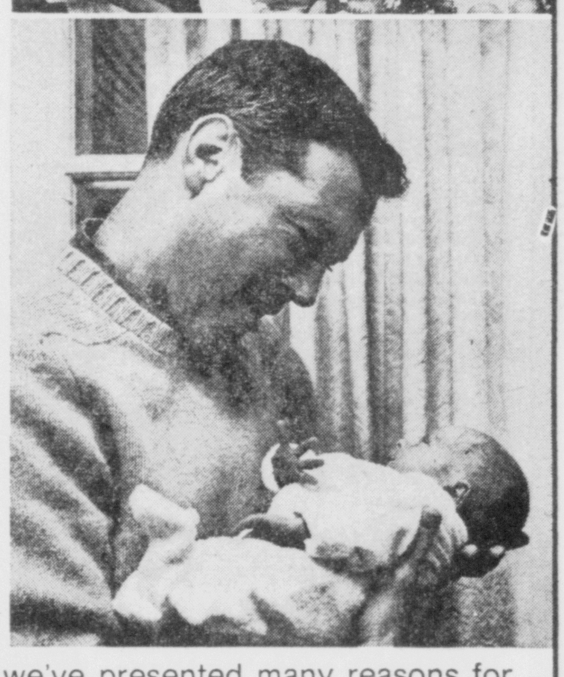
AHRENS SAID his family farmed 427 acres in 1976. It was the most they had ever farmed. This year all but 160 acres went to developers, and Ahrens said he expects to lose his last parcel of land in 1978.

"There's always farmers that leave, so you acquire their ground," he said. "But there's only three or four farmers left in the area."

The suburbs, he said, "certainly have grown and changed in the last 18 years. Everything surrounding us was farms. Now the subdivisions surround the farms."

"We've purchased a small farm up in Wisconsin," Ahrens said. "When we have to move, that's where we'll be going."

The Sense of Saving



At First Federal Savings we've presented many reasons for saving over the years. But quite frankly, your reason for saving is yours alone . . . and it should be. Saving has its own built-in purpose. The "sense of saving" is keeping some of what you earn and having the money work for you through the safe accumulation of interest earnings at First Federal Savings. We've seen people with modest incomes become financially secure, through savings. In a sense, they are investing in themselves and that makes sense. It's what made our great country great. Come in. We have a savings plan for you.

Costs put squeeze on farmers

By United Press International

Soaring farmland costs and declining crop prices have caused problems for farmers nationwide.

The Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service predicts 3,000 farms will go out of business this year, primarily because dropping crop prices won't pay expenses.

"We were getting four or five farm sales a week," said Georgia Holt, president of the Spearman, Tex., chapter of Women Involved in Farm Economics. "The younger ones are being forced out for cost and credit. The older ones don't think it's worth it.

"There's absolutely no encouragement for a younger man to go into the business," said Mrs. Holt. "He can't make a decent living."

NOR CAN SOME established farmers owning high-priced land in the corn belt. They have been selling out to neighbors and buying similar-producing, but cheaper land in Northern Missouri.

Enough have crossed state lines into primarily rural Northern Missouri that the average rural land values jumped 20 per cent annually for five years until totally tillable land doubled in value.

Rich Missouri bottom land that used to sell for well under $1,000 an acre now sells for $1,600 an acre, when it can be found.

"But that looks cheap to a farmer from Indiana or Illinois who is sitting on $2,000-or $3,000-an-acre land and cannot expand because of the prices," said Larry Shutt, a real estate broker in Odessa, Mo. So, Shutt says, the out-of-state farmer buys a chunk of Missouri land either to expand his own operation or to set up his sons in business.

THE COUNTY EXECUTIVE of New York's Suffolk County had a similar, but innovative, idea of buying land to preserve agriculture from ever-increasing urban encroachment. John V. N. Klein has persuaded the county to launch a program to purchase the development rights of 12,000-15,000 acres of farmland.

Under the program, the farmers and their heirs would retain title to the property as long as the land is used exclusively for agriculture.

The county legislature already has appropriated $21 million for the first phase of the program, involving 3,000 acres, the county is going to pay the farmers an agreed-upon price for the rights, based on the difference between the value of the property as farmland and its value if it were converted to residential or commercial use.

And in Maine, state officials are worrying because the amount of land being used in farming has decreased 62 per cent in 15 years.

CAROL MAJDALANY, research associate for the Commission on Maine's Future, says the problem is that farmland is also some of the best land for housing developments because "the soil is the best for sewage disposal and won't shift."

Ms. Majdalany says farmers along a corridor either side of I-95 are selling their land to finance retirements.

"Farms are not being passed on in a family tradition," she said. "They are either being sold to larger farms or being sold to housing developers."

And once good farmland is converted to housing units, parking lots and shopping centers, it is lost to farming forever.

Just who can sell a mobile home?

Don G. Campbell

About real estate

In one way or another, everybody is a salesman. For many, it's their entire livelihood. For some, it's a sometimes thing. Others are simply in the business of selling themselves.

A few, it seems, are strictly self-appointed.

Dear Mr. Campbell: I am trying to sell a mobile home I paid cash for in 1975.

However, the manager of my mobile home park says no one can sell his or her unit through a real estate agent. He claims homes must be sold through him, exclusively. Is right? Does the manager have to have a real estate license for this? He's seldom home to sell. — Mrs. M.R.

Yours is an interesting situation. The main question here, according to the real estate people I've discussed this with, is whether there is land involved in the transaction or not.

Are we talking about the mobile home simply as a mobile home sitting on rented or leased ground? Or are we talking about the sale of a mobile home which is sitting ona piece of ground of which it is considered a part?

Without the land being included, the mobile home is simply a piece of personal property and no real estate liciense would be required to sell it. This doesn't mean, however, that a licensed real estate broker couldn't sell it for you He would be operating simply as an individual in a sales capacity.

The key to the thing, I am told, lies in what sort of agreement you signed with the manager of the ark when you moved in. It suggests the land is a part of the deal. Otherwise, why not just move the home out of the park and sell it on your own from some other location?

You'd better have a lawyer look over the agreement, though, and see what this peculiar stipulation really means.

Dear Mr. Campbell: You constantly tell readers to never buy a house outright, but to buy it on the longest mortgage they can get. I simply do not understand this logic with mortgage interest rates so high. — Mr. B.C.

You are somewhat mistaken. I do not always try to talk readers out of buying a home outright. There are instances (such as retirement) when the peace of mind of outright ownership — and the predictability of monthly expenses — makes it the wise route to go.

I say that in most cases, where the home buyer still has 10, 15 or 20 years ahead of him before retirement, outright ownership doesn't pay. The tax deductibility of mortgage interest is one of the few tax "shelters" available to many of us. Also, why lay out 1977 dollars to pay off a house when you can stretch that over 10, 15 or 20 years during which time the dollar is going to get progressively cheaper due to inflation?

Dear Mr. Campbell: Thanks to an inheritance, we have come into several thousand dollars. As an investment, we have thought of buying a new home and renting our present home. We've got enough inheritance to make the down payment on a new home without having to sell this one. Does this make sense? —Mrs. A.G.H.

There's nothing wrong with it as long as you're prepared to step into the role of landlord and realize that a couple of months' vacacny can (at least as far as the bookkeeping goes) throw you into the red for the year.

There are many less worrisome ways to invest your inheritance, but if this appeals to you 8 and if home values keep appreciating as in the past — I don't see anything wrong with it.

Dear. Mr. Campbell: You've probably heard how house prices in California have gone up until they're getting ridiculous. Do you think there's a danger here for the ordinary homeowner? — Mr. T.F.P.

In any kind of a run-away market where it looks like there is no ceiling there is a very real danger. The danger comes in getting swept up in the frenzy, forgetting real values and over-extending yourself to "jump on the bandwagon."

In a madhouse atmosphere like this, the bubble has to burst sometime — and it doesn't take a sharp drop in real estate prices to do it. A few months of level prices could.

What you should know about your home

Homes are like cars. Even though you've owned or driven one before, when you take delivery of a new car, it's a good idea to know where the controls are, what buttons to press, and what kind of maintenance is required.

The same is true for a home, according to Thomas McDade, vice president of United Development Co., Chicago. Homebuyers should learn all about their home when they move in, he said.

"In all of our residential communities, we make it a standard practice to take each new buyer on an inspection trip of the home before delivery," he said. "This is done not only to spot things that need correcting but also to help the buyer become familiar with the operation of the home."

McDADE CITED what homebuyers should learn about their homes.:

• Electrical circuits and controls. Find out where the circuit breaker panel is. In older homes, it's the fuse box. Then turn on all the lights in the house and flip the circuit breaker switches or unscrew the fuses one by one, each time noting which lights go out.

This procedure will enable you to draw a diagram of the house showing which circuit breaker switch or fuse controls which outlets and switches. Then, should you overload a circuit later on, causing a circuit breaker to go off or a fuse to blow, you'll know exactly where to start looking for the trouble.

• Plumbing. Know where the master valve is that controls water to the entire house. Then locate all individual shut-off valves that control the water flow in sinks, lavatories, toilets, dishwasher and washing machine, and outside water connections.

If your home has a sump pump in the basement, know where the pump is located and how it should be maintained. The pump may need periodic cleaning to keep it free from debris.

Know how to adjust the temperature on the water tank, and also set up a schedule for periodic draining. Otherwise the tank will accumulate sediment that will reduce the efficiency of the unit.

• Heating and air conditioning. Go over the furnace and air conditioning unit. Learn how and when filters should be changed. Find out if the motors need periodic oiling. If the furnace has a humidifier, learn how to adjust and maintain it.

"Pay attention to the location and operation of on and off master controls for the air conditioner," McDade said. "Sometimes a person will complain that the air conditioner isn't working, without realizing that the electrical switch is in the off position even though the thermostat is set for cooling."

It's also a good idea to lay in a supply of replacement air filters for use when the filters in the furnace become too dirty for continued use.

• Appliances. Learn how to operate all the appliances that come with the home — range, vent hoods and fans, dishwasher, refrigerator, disposer, washer, dryer and garage door opener. If the home is brand-new, the builder should give you instruction booklets and warranties for all appliances. If you are buying a home from a previous owner, ask for the booklets. If the owner doesn't have them any more, try writing to the manufacturer. When you gather all the instruction booklets, keep them in a handy place.

Before calling the builder or serviceman to complain that an appliance is out of order, read the instruction booklet first, McDade said. Often the trouble is something very simple, like forgetting to put in the plug.

• Fireplace. If you don't already know, you should learn how to open and close the damper and how to light a fire. Make sure you have a fire-screen to prevent glowing embers from flying into the room.

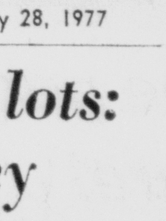
Corner lots: Are they worth more



Bernard Meltzer

On real estate

One of the traditional real estate concepts that I do not believe in is the question of whether a corner residential lot is more valuable than an interior parcel on the same block. This is a question which often bothers my readers, also.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: After saving for many years, we have decided to buy a new home in a very fancy residential district. They are building $125,000 houses on 1½-acre lots. Since we are the first family to reserve a lot, we can have our choice of 20 potential sites.

My husband thinks we should take the corner property because he says this is the most valuable. Do you agree with this?—Don't Know.

If you were purchasing a commercial site, I might agree with your husband. However, I do not consider residential lots to be more valuable if they are located at the corner.

The old concept of corner houses being more valuable than interior homes developed with the initial row houses that were built in the Eastern cities of the United States.

At that time, if you had the corner house, you had far more light and air than an interior house.

However, with single-family detached houses on large lots, there is no additional light or air for a corner house. But you do have additional noise from traffic, which now travels in two directions adjacent to your house.

What's more, you have the liability of maintaining two sidewalks, and a lack of privacy. If I were you, I would choose one of the interior lots.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: Do you consider this a good time to get into the real estate sales business? I have been thinking of applying for a salesman's license. I am not sure that this is a good idea.—Need Expert Advice.

The residential sales market seems to be on an upswing at the present time. Industrial and commercial sales are still faltering in most areas.

The competition among real estate brokers is very keen presently. If you do apply for a salesman's license and start selling, you must expect to work very hard and keep long hours. However, to be successful at almost anything, these same criteria apply.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I read one of your recent columns concerning construction of a doghouse. In it, you advised your reader that a wood doghouse should be treated with a wood preservative.

While your article does not specify which type of preservative is recommended for the construction of doghouses, it is possible one could conclude that you are referring to the kind of wood preservatives that are toxic to animals. To avoid any problems, I think you should stress that you should only use a preservative safe for home use.

The consumer should always read and follow the product's label directions to ensure the safety of the user and others.—U.S. Environmental Protection Agency.

This is a point well taken. If your dog can't read the label, please read it for him and make sure that your doghouse is a safe one.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: We bought a very top-priced air conditioner two years ago. It worked perfectly until this year. Somehow it doesn't seem to be cooling as efficiently as it did before.

Is there something we should be doing to maintain the unit. We're not too bright about things like that, so we need advice.—Hate the Heat.

Though constant attention to an air-conditioning unit is not necessary, some periodic care should be exercised. If you keep your unit clean, in most cases it will run like new.

An air conditioner is basically a refrigeration unit which cools and dehumidifies the air, so it will not do much good unless air circulates through it. The blower is a fan that draws air from the room into the air-conditioning unit and then circulates it into the room after it has cooled.

That flow of air should be continuous. If it is slowed down the efficiency of the air conditioner is lessened. The filter keeps the dirt and dust off the coils and other parts of the air-conditioning unit. But, in so doing, the filter fills with dirt and cuts down on the air entering the unit.

In order for the air conditioner to work perfectly, it must be cleaned at least once a month. Most filters come out easily. Look through the filter. If you can't see through it, it needs cleaning. While the filter is out, clean the grill work and all openings into the air conditioner with a vacuum cleaner. Then clean all exposed parts.

Housing activity spurs gains in building industry

Construction contracting by the end of this year will exceed earlier estimates of a 15 per cent improvement over 1976 and reach $127.5 billion, a 19 per cent gain according to a national study on construction activity.

Most of the increase will stem from a "high plateau" of housing activity during the remainder of 1977.

McGraw-Hill Information Systems Co., in its second scheduled update of the 1977 Dodge/Sweet's Construction Outlook, reported that there are no important new variables to cope with since the first revision of the Dodge/Sweet's forecast earlier this year.

The latest analysis reveals: residential construction will total $56.5 billion, a 29-per-cent increase, with more one- and two-family home building than anticipated earlier in the year; nonresidential construction contracting will reach $33.8 billion, a 12 per cent gain; nonbuilding construction will reach $37.2 billion, 11 per cent ahead of 1976.

The Dodge estimate of housing starts has been raised to 1.75 million units — an increase of 50,000 units — consisting of 1.275 million one-and two-family houses and 475,000 apartment units.

In the nonresidential building area, according to Dodge economist George A. Christie, commercial building "now looks a bit stronger, and institutional construction a bit weaker, than earlier expectations."

With business indicating plans for substantial capital spending this year, "The second half of 1977 should bring an acceleration in the rate of contracting for manufacturing buildings," he said.

Like nonresidential building, nonbuilding construction is "advancing as expected. This year's expected increase in contract value will be due largely to the strength of special public works funds involving highways and sewer systems," Christie said.

LET'S TALK IT OVER

JERRY BOUSCHARD

Prospective home buyers should consider a great many factors besides the number of rooms in a home and the fact that it has a "darling" kitchen. What is planned for that neighborhood . . . what changes will be taking place? Perhaps a new freeway or major highway will go in nearby. Will a big new apartment building be built so close that congested streets and difficult parking result?

In general, changes in a neighborhood are planned and take place over a lengthy period. The wise buyer investigates to make sure his big investment isn't spoiled by unwelcome changes.

Our job is to keep up to date on trends and city planning. Our experience and information is yours for the asking. Just stop by and "Talk It Over" with us.

Pressure is key to cutting glass

Herman Baum

The house doctor

Dear House Doctor: My wife is a budding artist and it is my job to frame the pictures she paints.

I am making frames from stock molding as you once explained, but cutting the glass is a problem. Can you explain the procedure? C. K.

Cutting glass successfully is mainly a matter of learning the correct pressure to place on the glass cutter. The equipment used by many hardware stores does this automatically, but you must learn it by practice.

Glass which is to be cut must be placed on a firm, smooth surface. Do not place padding beneath it as this may cause the glass to break. Even the best glass cutter is an inexpensive tool, so do not skimp on cost.

The best straightedge for your use is a yardstick, the kind that is given away as advertising material, as these are not varnished. Dampen the side that will be in contact with the glass and this will prevent its sliding out of position. Lubricate the cutter dipping it in kerosene.

Now comes the real test of your expertise. Hold the cutter with your index finger on the flat part of the handle and with the bevelled lower end parallel to the glass. Move the cutter in one firm, even stroke. Be sure that the scored line extends completely across the glass with no skips at the ends.

With the line scored, place the straightedge beneath the glass with an edge coinciding with the scored line. Hold the glass firmly in place and press down on the waste side. If you did a good job with the cutter, the glass will break in a clean line.

Glass cutters have notches for nibbling off strips of glass that are too narrow to be broken off as described, but pliers do a better job. If any roughness remains on the cut edge, this can be smoothed by rubbing with a sharpening stone lubricated with water.

Adjust the saw blade for a cutting depth of about ¼ inch and cut along the marked line. Make several passes, lowering the blade a ¼ inch each time until the full depth of the blade is reached. The blocks can then be easily broken up with a hammer.

Dear House Doctor: Our house has terrazzo floors. The floors, in front of the kitchen stove and around the toilet are badly stained. I have tried cleaning them with bleaches and cleaners, but nothing works. What do you suggest? Mrs. A. R.

Some terrazzo stains defy all bleaching methods, but I have had success with an electric drill fitted with a sanding disk and waterproof sandpaper. Dampen the floor and grind the stain out.

The sanded area must be sealed when dry. It is a rough job and you may prefer to have a terrazzo contractor do the work

Dear House Doctor: We live in a 2-family house and each tenant has his own well and water pump. Our neighbor has no trouble, but at times our pump will run for hours and deliver no water. What is the cause? G. C.

If your well and your neighbor's are close together, it may be that his well is deeper than yours. When his pump is in operation, it lowers the water so you get none, and several hours may be required for the water table to rise to cover your well point.

A new well should be located as far as possible from your neighbor's and should extend a little deeper than your present one.

Dear House Doctor: My knotty pine kitchen cabinets have turned dark. How can I lighten the color? Mrs. H. E.

The varnish has been darkened by grease, heat, smoke and all the other adverse conditions in a kitchen. Remove the varnish with a paint and varnish remover, sandpaper the surface and apply high gloss varnish.

Dear House Doctor: Please give me the title of a book that contains detailed information on the construction of fireplaces. P. W. P.

The Government Printing Office in Washington, D.C., has an excellent booklet on this subject. It is Farmers' Bulletin No. 1889. The last price quotation I have is 30 cents, but it may be more now.

Dear House Doctor: How do I cut a hole in a concrete block wall so I can install a door? R. E.

You will need a portable electric saw and a masonry blade to fit it. The blade is a thin disk made of material that will cut concrete.

Mark the opening on the wall, being certain the size is proper for accepting the door jamb and that the corners are square.

State getting $11 million for housing

Illinois will receive $11.5 million in federal aid this year to help build an estimated 3,815 housing units, mostly in mixed-income developments, A. D. Van Meter, chairman of the Illinois Housing Development Authority, said this week.

The funds for fiscal 1977, provided under Section 8 of the Housing and Community Development Act, will subsidize 2,425 units of low-income family and elderly housing "to be mixed with and indistinguishable from the unassisted units," he said.

A specific share of the units will be allocated to each of seven metropolitan and non-metropolitan areas of Illinois, according to IHDA Director Robert J. Harmon.

IHDA WILL FINANCE the 3,815 units by combining its own mortgage loan program with new federal funds. Of those, 1,390 will be unassisted family units, 1,220 will be subsidized family units and 1,205 will be subsidized elderly units.

Under the Section 8 Program, qualified tenants pay no more than one-fourth of their incomes for rent, with the federal government paying the difference between that and market rates.

Developers wishing to participate in the program must submit their proposals to IHDA, 201 N. Wells St., Chicago, 60606, by Aug. 12, Harmon said.

The Chicago metropolitan area will receive funds for 2,550 units, including 725 subsidized elderly, 725 subsidized family and 1,100 unassisted family units.

Counties included in the Chicago-area funds are Cook, Lake, Will, Kane, McHenry and DuPage.

DONALD F. MORTON
Chairman & President

Mortgage rates are an insignificant factor in the spiraling cost of homes, a study conducted by the Congressional Budget Office reveals.

Published earlier this year, the study noted that in the six-year period from 1970 through 1975, sales prices of U.S. homes rose 67.9% whereas interest rates increased only 6%. (Declines in interest rates in 1976 and 1977 would show a wider disparity over an eight-year period.)

Far more significant factors in the increased costs of home ownership, according to the Congressional report, were maintenance and repairs (up 117.7% in 1970-75), property taxes (104.6%), insurance (89%), and heat and utilities (72.8%).

A surprising discovery was that for home owners who did not move in this period, the increase in home costs (22.8%) was lower than the gain in median family income (39.0%) and the rise in the Consumer Price Index (38.5%). So also, those who repurchased a home in this period found increased housing costs (27.3%) to be below income and CPI gains.

First-time buyers were most hurt by the rise in home prices and costs. For those who purchased existing homes, the rise in costs was 63.0% for the 1970-75 period, and for those buying new housing, it amounted to 82.4%.

The United States League of Savings Associations draws two principal conclusions from the CBO study: 1) efforts to control home ownership costs should include an examination of such components as maintenance, property taxes, and insurance; 2) steps should be taken to help the home buyer.

The League comments favorably upon proposed Congressional legislation such as the "Young Families Housing Act of 1977" which would overcome the principal barriers to home ownership for the young family — the high monthly payment and high first-time down payment.

The proposed bill would authorize graduated monthly payments which would be lowest in the first years but would rise gradually from year to year. It would also allow for individual housing savings accounts which could be accumulated over 120 months to a maximum of $10,000. A family could save up to $2,500 per year in such an account, with the principal deducted from taxable income and the compounded interest tax-free — on the proviso that the account would be used for home purchase.

A similar principle is already in force in the provisions Congress has made for retirement through the Individual Retirement Account and the Keogh plan.

Since home ownership is a highly desired and worthwhile objective, something should be done to keep it within range of young families.

GM shows record $1.1 billion profit

General Motors, riding the crest of record new car and truck sales, reported a record $1.1 billion second-quarter profit Wednesday — the first time the world's largest auto company topped the billion-dollar mark in any three-month period. GM's earnings of $3.82 a share were 20.7 per cent higher than last year's $909 million or $3.16 a share, the previous April-June high. Sales of $14.9 billion, up 18.8 per cent from $12.5 billion, also were a record for any quarter in the firm's history. Despite the record sales and profits, GM top executives noted the firm's profit margin remained well below record levels — slightly more than 7 cents for each dollar of sales. That compares with 8.3 per cent in 1973's second quarter and the 11 per cent profit margin in 1965.

Strike cripples coalfields

Tens of thousands of striking miners crippled Appalachian coalfields Wednesday with a mushrooming wildcat walkout to protest cutbacks in health benefits. Rebel United Mine Workers district officials called a march on Washington next week to back up the demands of some 31,000 strikers in West Virginia and Kentucky.

Telephone union sets strike date

More than a half million telephone employes represented by the Communications Workers of America will strike the Bell System nationwide at 12:01 a.m., Aug. 7, unless a new national agreement has been reached, the union announced Wednesday. Glenn E. Watts, CWA president, said the strike date was set Tuesday night by the union's executive board. National negotiations resumed Wednesday.

Treasury food units here closed

An Oak Lawn Treasury discount food store will be affected by the J.C. Penney Co. decision to close 28 supermarkets, according to William Chisholm, president of the Supermarkets Interstate, Inc., in Omaha, Neb. Chisholm said Wednesday that supermarkets in the Treasury stores located in Rolling Meadows and Niles had already closed. An additional 19 food stores will either be sold or closed by Supermarkets Interstate, a Penney subsidiary. The move will put Penneys out of the supermarket business, Chisholm said.

Borg-Warner earnings, sales up

Borg-Warner Corp., the machinery, plastics and chemical producer, earned $1.35 a share in the second quarter, up from $1.26 a year ago as sales climbed to $517.6 million from $491.4 million. Net income was $28.6 million, up from $24.5 million. First half profit was $48 billion or $2.30 a share on sales of $987.3 million against $41.5 million or $2.14 a share a year earlier on sales of $924.3 million. The company has a Des Plaines facility.

Franchisers sue McDonald's

Operators of five McDonald's restaurants in the Phoenix area have filed suit in U.S. District Court, accusing McDonald's Corp. of fixing prices and restricting competition between franchises. The antitrust suit alleged that the company has retaliated against the five operators by denying their applications for new restaurants because they published newspaper coupons offering discounts on Big Mac sandwiches. The suit contends the company will grant new franchises only to those persons who agree to adhere to its pricing policies.

Dollar recovers from slump

The U.S. dollar recovered from its slump Wednesday but many European dealers expected the currency rate to stabilize at the present low levels. Sterling made strong gains after the Bank of England announced that the exchange rate, rather than the dollar-sterling rate, was now the best indicator of the pound's performance. The pound closed at $1.7370 against $1.7203 — its best level for 10 months — despite some dollar buying.

Dow hits 18-month low, off 19.75

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market suffred its worst loss in more than two years Wednesday, with the Dow Jones industrial average reaching an 18-month low during a selloff sparked by fears of an economic slowdown.

The Dow average plunged 19.75 points to 888.43, the worst loss since it fell 20.88 points on May 6, 1975 when investors cashed in on a 270-point gain the average had made in a five-month spurt. The Dow's close Wednesday was the lowest since it finished at 877.83 on Jan. 5, 1976.

The lower earnings reported this week by Exxon, U.S. Steel and Bethlehem Steel — three of the nation's largest basic industry companies — convinced many institutional investors the economy was headed for a slowdown in the near future. Many basic industry stocks are Dow average components.

The government's report of a record $2.82 billion June merchandise trade deficit, bringing the total for the year to $12.59 billion, was one selling trigger Wednesday.

The afct that the Dow went through the 900 level and failed to pick up support was another reason for the selloff that brought the average's three-day setback to 34.99 points.

Trade deficit up $2 billion

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. trade deficit climbed by a record $2.8 billion in June, increasing the red ink for first half of 1977 to nearly twice the amount for any full year in history, the government said Wednesday.

The large June jump, which included a large increase in imported oil, pushed the deficit upward to $12.6 billion for the first six months of this year, almost exactly on target with administration projections of a $20 billion to $25 billion deficit for 1977.

The previous yearly high was $6.4 billion in 1972.

Earlier in the year, administration officials were saying the deficit was no cause for alarm because increased American imports were helping other countries trying to recover from recession.

However, that argument has been altered in recent weeks.

ASSISTANT COMMERCE Sec. Frank Weil said in a speech Wednesday in Bonn, West Germany that demand for foreign oil has upset the U.S. trade balance to the extent that "it could take us a decade or more to get back into sustainable equilibrium."

He warned that large, coutinuing trade deficits could weaken the dollar, aggravate inflation, encourage misallocation of resources and undermine economic growth.

Treasury Sec. Michael Blumenthal said recently, "There is no belittling the fact that a $25 billion trade deficit is too large — and is something that has to be carefully watched and reduced."

Courtenay Slater, chief economist for the Commerce Dept. said the size of the deficit "ought to concern everybody."

3 Memco stores to leave area

Three Chicago area Memco Membership Department Stores, including an outlet at 1700 Rand Rd., Arlington Heights, will be closed by their parent company, Lucky Stores, Inc.

"What's going to go on is a series of inventory clearances," a Lucky Stores spokesman said Wednesday. "The inventory clearance sales are in preparation for closing."

Memco stores have been a "marginal operation" in the Chicago market, although the company's Memco and Gemco general merchandise stores are successful in California and other states, the spokesman said. "We really didn't have the ability to be a factor in that (Chicago) market," he said.

Following the extensive remodeling and clearance sales in the three Chicago area stores, the outlets will reopen as large Eagle Family Centers. Memco stores are located in Niles and Lombard, in addition to Arlington Heights.

THE MEMCO STORES opened approximately five years ago. A membershp fee of $1 is charged to customers, who then may purchase merchandise.

The timetable for closing the Memco stores and opening Eagle stores has not been decided.

Lucky Stores, Inc. operates 65 Memco and Gemco stores throughout the country. The firm has 855 stores nationwide, including supermarkets, membership department stores, fabric stores, restaurants, drug stores and automotive stores.

Big Apple's woes take bite out of municipal bond yield

Louis Rukeyser

NEW YORK — "New York, New York" is more than a movie title this summer. It's also the four-word explanation of why a nationwide bonanza for municipal bond investors has come, at least temporarily, to an end.

Two years ago — when, if New York City didn't actually drop dead, it certainly gave heart attacks to a number of investors in its securities — it was a different story. Tremors reverberated even to states and communities whose finances had never been in Big Apple-pie disorder, and they found themselves forced to pay historically high rates of interest to attract buyers.

The disproportionately high yields on municipal bonds continued long after New York's troubles moved off the front pages in Keokuk and Peoria. As recently as last summer, the Bond Buyer 20-bond index was producing a tax-free return around 7 per cent. By the start of this summer, the yield had fallen nearly 1½ points and stood at its lowest level since March 1974.

Certainly few neutral observers think New York's financial woes now are a thing of the past. But just as the big city helped torpedo investor confidence all over the country, so it has now helped restore it: Municipal Assistance (Big Mac) bonds that, despite the state's support, had to pay an astronomical 11 per cent tax-free return in late 1975, last month sold out ($250 million worth) at 7½ per cent.

Still high, by historical standards, but a dramatic improvement that was felt from Maine to Maui.

New York's impact has been salutary in another way. Confronted with its unmistakable evidence of what reckless and unrestrained spending can do to a community's credit, governmental subdivisions all over the country have been pulling in their fiscal horns. State and local spending, which grew annually at 5 to 7 per cent in the mid-and late-1960s and at 3.3 per cent as recently as 1974, was curbed to a 2.6 per cent increase in 1975 and 1.3 per cent last year.

Social Security deficit needs emergency attention

Hobart Rowen

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Social Security system, one of the most popular programs ever undertaken by this government, is running a deficit. In fact, its money reserves could be exhausted some time in the early 1980s. But there is no need for the millions who depend on Social Security to push the panic button.

There are short-range and long-range problems that demand, and will get, congressional action — and it is not essential that it be done overnight.

Social Security is supposed to collect enough taxes from those working to meet current benefit costs. But the system hes been paying out more than it has been taking in. The $35.4 billion in reserves of the Old-Age and Survivors fund, given present taxes and benefit schedules, will be exhausted in 1983.

The Disability Insurance trust fund, which amounted to only $5.7 billion at the end of 1976, is scheduled to run a deficit of $3.2 billion this year and $4.1 billion in 1978 because of a big surge in claims. That problem needs emergency attention.

THE MAIN REASON that the basic system is in trouble now is that high unemployment rates of 1975 through 1977 curtailed tax collections at the very time that Social Security benefits were increased to keep retirees even with inflation.

But beyond that, the problem is complicated by two factors affecting the soundness of the system 20 years down the road. The first is a technical mistake in the law that increases retirement benefits after 1995 to a level greater than intended. What happened, to explain and simplify a very complex issue, was that Congress allowed an inflation adjustment that over-compensated for real needs. As a result, many retirees would get benefits far above the best pay they ever earned.

Second, the percentage of older persons in the population is beginning to rise. This means that sometime after the year 2000, there will be relatively more people getting benefits than are working and paying into the system.

On way of tackling this problem has been suggested by former Social Security Administrator Robert W. Ball. It is to reverse the recent trend toward early retirement.

PRESIDENT CARTER has proposed a three-part program to Congress that would put the system on a sounder financial basis by pouring in $35 billion in additional taxes for the trust fund from 1978-82.

First, revenues would be increased through higher payroll taxes on employers and employes. For employers, the change would be more dramatic — a tax (by 1981) on their entire payroll, not simply the first $16,500 of an employe's earnings. As for employes, the amount of taxable earnings would be raised $2,400 in four stages through 1985.

Second, the inflation adjustment would be corrected so that benefits could not exceed pre-retirement wages.

AND THIRD, general revenues would be tapped to replace payroll taxes "lost" when unemployment topped 6 per cent during the recent recession. A temporary program running to 1982, this would supply $14.1 billion to the trust fund.

Use of general revenues to pay part of Social Security costs is an emotionally charged issue. Conservatives generally argue vociferously against this approach, in the belief that the "discipline" of payroll taxes will be lost.

What seems to many to be equally important is a reduction in some benefit schedules. Loosened eligibility standards, for example, have boosted spending out of the disability fund by a whopping 21 per cent a year over five years.

There are lots of other reforms needed, as shown in a report by the Congressional Budget Office. For example, because average lifetime earnings are taken as the criterion for current needs, "Costly windfalls (are provided) to some non-needy."

Pork for a patio dinner

The familiar suggestion "let's eat out" takes on new meaning when days are warm and languid. Rather than implying a restaurant meal, these words conjure up such pleasant pictures as a barbecue grill sizzling in the back yard or a picnic in a park.

A barbecue can combine the best features of both simplicity and splendor when the menu is planned around pork. It is easy to cook a pork roast on the rotisserie or broil chops on the grill. Marinades and sauces add tempting flavors.

Iced Tea by the pitcherful

MADE WITH TEABAGS OR TEA LEAVES AND BOILING WATER:

Bring 1 quart of cold water to a boil in a saucepan. Remove from heat and immediately add 15 teabags or ⅓ cup loose tea leaves. Stir, cover and let stand 5 minutes. Stir again and strain into a pitcher holding another quart of cold water. Makes 2 quarts.

MADE WITH TEABAGS AND COLD WATER:

Fill a quart jar or pitcher with cold water. Add 8 to 10 teabags (remove tags), Cover and let stand at room temperature or in the refrigerator at least 6 hours or overnight. Remove bags, squeezing against side of container. Makes 1 quart. Recipe may be doubled.

MADE WITH INSTANT POWDER OR ICED TEA MIX AND COLD WATER:

Allow 2 rounded tablespoons of instant tea powder for each quart of cold water. Stir to dissolve. If using lemon-flavored iced tea mix, use ½ cup (or 2 small envelopes) to a quart of cold water.

Sausage Pocket Sandwiches

- 3 loaves pita (Arabian or Middle Eastern) bread
- 1 can (16 ounces) baked beans in molasses sauce
- 2 tablespoons catsup
- 1 medium onion, thinly sliced
- 12 slices ham or minced ham
- 12 slices cotto salami
- 12 slices pickle and pimiento loaf
- 1½ cups cole slaw (approximately 1 pound)

Cut loaves in half and enlarge pockets when necessary. Mash beans and mix with catsup to blend. Spread ¼ cup bean mixture inside lower half of each pocket. Separate onion into rings and place an equal portion in each pocket. Roll or fold 2 slices each of ham, cotto salami and pickle and pimiento loaf and insert in each pocket on top of onion rings. Place ¼ cup cole slaw in pocket on top of meat under top crust. Makes 6 sandwiches.

Oriental Pork Chops and Vegetables

- 6 to 8 pork rib or loin chops, cut 1 to 1¼ inches thick
- ½ cup soy sauce
- ¼ cup water
- ¼ cup sherry
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- ½ teaspoon garlic powder
- ¼ teaspoon ginger
- 2 medium cucumbers, cut in 2-inch strips
- 2 small onions, sliced in rings
- 2 cups sliced mushrooms
- 2 cups sliced celery
- 2 cups thinly sliced zucchini
- 12 cherry tomatoes, halved
- 1 tablespoon sesame seed

Combine soy sauce, water, sherry, lemon juice, garlic and ginger in small saucepan and cook 5 minutes, stirring to blend. Cool. Place chops in plastic bag or utility dish; add marinade and turn to coat chops on all sides. Tie bag securely or cover dish and marinate in refrigerator 4 hours or overnight.

Remove chops; reserve marinade and heat. Place chops on grill over ash-covered coals or on rack in broiler pan so surface of meat is 4 to 5 inches from heat. Broil 8 minutes; turn and broil 8 minutes. Continue broiling 5 to 10 minutes or until done, turning and brushing with half the marinade occasionally.

While chops are broiling, combine cucumbers, onions, mushrooms, celery and zucchini and ¼ cup marinade in pan or foil packet and cook, covered, 10 minutes. Fold in tomatoes and sprinkle with sesame seed before serving. Serves 6 to 8.

Broiled Bacon-a-Bobs

- 9 to 12 slices bacon, cut in half
- 9 to 12 water chestnuts
- 9 to 12 kumquats

Wrap half slices of bacon around water chestnuts and kumquats, and thread alternately on skewers. Place kabobs on grill or rack in broiler pan and broil over low to moderate heat 10 minutes or until bacon is done, turning several times. Serves 6 to 8.

Frosty Peaches 'n Cream Pie

- 2 tablespoons orange juice
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 1 package (10 ounces) marshmallows
- 3 to 4 medium peaches, pared and chopped, (approximately 1¼ cups)
- 1 cup heavy cream, whipped
- 1 single baked pie shell*
- ¼ cup orange juice
- ¼ cup sugar
- 1 peach, pared and cut in 6 or 8 wedges

Combine orange juice and lemon juice in medium saucepan, bring to boil, reduce heat and add marshmallows, stirring until melted. Cool slightly; stir in peaches. Fold whipped cream into cool peach mixture and turn into baked pie shell. Freeze for 2 hours or more.

Before serving, remove pie from freezer and place in refrigerator for 1 hour. For garnish, combine orange juice and sugar in small saucepan and cook for 8 to 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add peach wedges and continue cooking 3 to 5 minutes. Remove peach wedges from syrup and drain thoroughly on absorbent paper. Arrange cool glazed slices in pinwheel on top of pie when it is removed from freezer. Serves 6 to 8.

*Single Baked Pie Shell

1½ cups Homemade Pastry Mix
2 to 4 tablespoons ice water

Add water to mix, a small amount at a time, mixing quickly and evenly until dough just holds in a ball. Roll to about ⅛ inch thickness and line 9-inch pie pan, allowing 1 inch pastry to extend over edge. Fold overhanging pastry under crust and crimp edge. Prick pastry with a fork. Bake in 450-degree oven 8 to 10 minutes.

Homemade Pastry Mix

- 7 cups flour
- 4 teaspoons salt
- 1¾ cups lard for soft wheat flour
- or 2 cups lard for hard wheat flour

Mix flour and salt well. Cut lard into flour mixture with a fork or pastry blender until crumbs are about the size of small peas. Cover and store in refrigerator until ready to use. This mixture will keep at least a month in refrigerator. Makes 10 cups pastry mix.

CANNING HAS always been part of Babe Busse's lifestyle. She and her husband, Marv, process some 150 quarts of produce each summer, including relish, pickles and tomato juice.

Canning projects keep cook indoors all summer

Lois Seiler

Cook of the week

While beaches and backyards beckon housewives outdoors during the summer months, Babe Busse of Elk Grove Village spends many a long hour in the kitchen canning a variety of homegrown produce.

Fortunately for Babe, her home is air-conditioned and her husband, Marv, is a willing helper in this ambitious endeavor. Seeing her shelves stocked with glistening jars of relishes, juices, jams and vegetables gives Babe a great deal of satisfaction, and the Busses enjoy the benefits of this effort all year long.

Canning is a part of Babe's lifestyle. She grew up helping her mother with this chore, and not only uses all of her mother's recipes, but has taught them to her daughter and two daughters-in-law, who also have become conscientious canners.

Marv is the gardener in the family, tending a sizeable vegetable garden on the Busses' 1½ acres. Pickles and corn come from their daughter and son-in-law's 300-acre farm, and other vegetables often are supplemented by friends who know Babe's penchant for canning. Interesting foods such as corn relish, pickles, celery sauce, tomato juice and pickled yellow beans can be found among the 150 quarts of produce Babe and Marv process each summer.

BABE DOES GET out to the backyard for the task of cutting 16 cups of corn from the cob for her corn relish. A big cutting board on the picnic table makes an ideal spot. The corn is mixed with tomatoes, onions, green and red pepper and celery, then cooked in vinegar sweetened with sugar, seasoned with salt and celery salt and sealed in sterilized jars. The relish has a savory sweet-sour flavor, and is excellent with pork, hamburgers or any picnic fare.

Pickles, to paraphrase Peter Piper, should be processed when they are plump and freshly picked. Although one must make haste in preparing them while they are fresh, it takes nine days to complete the pickling process for Babe's favorite pickle.

They are soaked in a salt brine for three days, in clear water for another three days, and then in a vinegar-sugar syrup for the final three days. This

Safety precautions vital when canning food at home

Overrun with backyard berries or glutted with garden vegetables? Your huge harvest will last much longer if you can it.

"Canning is a real popular thing these days for people of all ages, both male and female," said Lynn Bredemeyer, Cooperative Extension Service adviser, at a recent canning and freezing demonstration in Arlington Heights. And although some of these persons take to canning out of the belief that home processed food is safer than the store-bought kind, this is a fallacy, she said. "There is much more danger of contamination in home canned foods than in commercially canned foods."

DURING THE canning process, the heat must destroy microorganisms such as enzymes, molds and yeast that cause spoilage, as well as the bacteria that causes botulism poisoning. Boiling will destroy microorganisms in acid foods such as fruit, tomatoes, pickles and pickled vegetables. All other vegetables are low-acid and must be processed at a temperature of 240 degrees in a steam pressure canner.

To can high-acid foods, place filled jars in a water-bath canner and make sure the water level is at least one inch above the tops of the jars. Jars must be placed on a rack with room for the boiling water to circulate around them. Wait until water comes to a rolling boil before beginning to count processing time. Remove the jars from the canner as soon as time is up and complete the seals immediately.

A STEAM PRESSURE canner must be used to process low-acid foods. The gauge must be tested yearly, Mrs. Bredemeyer said, and all parts must be checked to see that they are in working order. A gauge tester may be checked out of the Rolling Meadows extension office or purchased.

After packing the low-acid foods into jars, place two inches of boiling water in the bottom of the canner before jars are set on the rack inside. After the canner is covered and the heat is turned on, steam should be allowed to escape for at least 10 minutes before the weighted gauge is put over the opening.

WAIT UNTIL THE pressure builds up ti 10 pounds before counting processing time. After time is up, take the canner off the stove until the pressure reads 0, slowly remove the weighted gauge and let steam escape before unfastening the cover. Cool jars about 12 hours after seals are completed.

Mrs. Bredemeyer offered some more canning suggestions based upon U.S. Department of Agriculture recommendations:

Use reliable source books and recipes. "Back to earth" books and old family recipes may not give the most accurate or up-to-date information.

- Use only heat-tempered Mason-type jars, not peanut butter jars or the like, and specially made caps for canning. Do not re-use the caps.
- Use only fresh produce and do not use tomatoes that are overly ripe or with mold on top. "That is one of the biggest dangers and that is when the tomatoes are low-acid," she explained.
- Never try to can in the oven or in a microwave. Also, do not process any foods, except jellies, in an open kettle.

Micro-roasting a speedy process

Eileen Kelly
Let's learn to micro-cook

Microwave cooking requires some unexpected changes in routine. One seemingly silly but quite necessary change is learning to set your table before you start cooking! Meals are ready in such a short time that if you don't do this, you will be finding yourself frantically throwing dishes and silverware around during the last minute.

Another pleasant change is that you aren't limited by long cooking periods. If you want to have a roast for dinner but don't care to spend half the afternoon around the house, fine, because with your microwave oven you can cook a tasty roast in less than an hour!

The very first question people ask about doing a roast in the microwave is "will it brown?" The answer is a big "yes." Any meat that takes longer than 10 minutes to cook in the microwave will be brown.

If your microwave oven has a variety of settings, you can cook all the cuts of beef. If your oven has only one setting, then you are limited to the most tender cuts. You can do less tender cuts only if you marinate them.

I HATE TO fill your head with a million "ands, ifs, sometimes and buts." Confusion is what we're trying to avoid, so let's just talk about one cut of beef and how to cook it. Slowly but surely we can cover other cuts and other ideas in future columns and you can add them to your repertoire.

My informal survey around the neighborhood prompted me to choose the rump roast for our discussion today. The rump roast is a slightly less tender cut and so it requires a combination of settings. For the first half of the cooking period, set your oven on "roast" of a setting just a bit lower than the high setting. Then for the remainder of the cooking period you will set your oven on "simmer" or a setting just a bit higher than defrost.

Have your beef at room temperature. Don't salt it before cooking as the salt tends to distort the microwaves and also can hate a drying effect. Other spices are fine to use.

IF YOU DON'T have a microwave roasting rack, you can place the meat on a sturdy inverted saucer. My husband bought us a plastic roasting pan in a microwave specialty store. It was inexpensive and is very handy. I hasten to remind you that you will not be using metal pans of any sort in your microwave oven. Therefore be sure to use a glass baking dish of sufficient size — a 12 x 7-inch dish will probably be fine.

Now you have to figure out how long you'll need to cook the meat. I urge you to aim to finish your roast slightly sooner than you want. This gives you the flexibility of adding cooking time and getting used to doing a roast. If you should overcook meat there is no salvaging it, and you can always cook meat a bit longer if underdone. Figure:

- Rare — 125 degrees when removed from the oven — 11 to 12 minutes per pound;
- Medium — 145 degrees when removed from the oven — 13 to 14 minutes per pound;
- Well done — 155 degrees when removed from oven — 15 to 16 minutes per pound.

COMPUTE YOUR time and then divide it in half. Place the beef fat side down on your microwave roasting rack in your glass baking dish and microwave on the "roast" setting for the first half. Then turn the beef fat side up and microwave for the last half of the time on the "simmer" setting.

Check the temperature of your meat with your regular thermometer after you have removed the meat from the oven because you never can use a regular thermometer in the microwave. Then if the temperatur of the meat suits the above chart, tent the meat with foil for its 10 to 15 minutes standing time beofre serving. When tenting the meat with the foil, put the shiny side in and leave openings at both ends so the meat won't acquire a steamed taste.

If you have suggestions for future topics, write to Eileen Kelly Klehr in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.

THE MAGIC OF microcookery will produce a roast, tasty and brown, in less than half an hour sparing you time in the kitchen.

Uncommon recipes use vegetables

Are you taking advantage of the fresh vegetables of the season? Here are some different recipes for dishes to enjoy during this bountiful time. All are good for picnics, family cookouts or company buffets. A picnic ratatouille, for example, combines zucchini, eggplant, tomato and zucchini for a very special side dish. Corn oysters make use of fresh corn on the cob.

CHILLED PICNIC RATATOUILLE

¼ cup salad or olive oil
2 cloves garlic, minced
1 onion, sliced
1 green pepper, seeded and cut in strips
3 medium unpared zucchini, cut into ¼-inch slices
1 medium eggplant, pared and cut in cubes
2 teaspoons dried leaf basil
1 teaspoon dried leaf oregano
1½ teaspoons salt
1/8 teaspoon peppers
3 tomatoes, peeled and cut in wedges

Heat oil in large skillet, add garlic, onion, green pepper and zucchini. Cook about 3 minutes or until onion is tender, stirring frequently. Add eggplant, basil, oregano, salt and pepper. Cover and cook over medium heat 15 minutes, stirring occasionally.

Add tomato wedges, cover and cook 5 minutes longer or just until tomatoes are heated. Refrigerate several hours or overnight. Pack in container with a tight lid to carry to picnic. Serves 6.

(Note: to remove skins from tomatoes, plunge tomatoes one at a time in saucepan of boiling water for about 30 seconds. Remove. Skins will slip off easily.)

CORN OYSTERS

1 cup fresh corn cut from cob
2 eggs, separated
¼ cup sifted all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
1/16 teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon grated onion
Bacon fat* or shortening

Mix corn and egg yolks in medium bowl. Mix flour with baking powder, salt and pepper. Stir into corn and egg yolks, add onion. Beat egg whites until stiff and fold in. Drop from teaspoon onto a hot griddle greased with bacon fat or shortening. Cook until brown. Makes 20 corn oysters, or serves 5.

*If bavon fat is used, cook 4 strips of bacon for sufficient fat.

New book offers diet alternative

by PATRICIA McCORMACK

"The Alternative Diet Book" may help you live healthier, says the National Institutes of Health.

The diet calls for sharply reduced consumption of meat. It was developed by Dr. William E. Conner at the University of Iowa.

The book tells Americans how to switch from a high meat intake to a very small one in order to help battle coronary heart disease, obesity, high blood pressure, diabetes and gallstones. Other dietary changes also are suggested.

The diet is in three phases:

In Phase One, the aim is to avoid foods high in cholesterol and saturated fat. "Delete egg yok, butterfat, lard, organ meat, skin of poultry and fish and visible fat on meat."

In Phase two, the diet calls for a gradual transition from 16 ounces of meat a day to no more than 6 to 8 ounces.

PHASE THREE proposes that "meat, fish and poultry be used as condiments. The meat dish no longer will occupy the center of the table."

Instead, the "Diet Book" suggests, meat in smaller quantities should be used in vegetable-rice-cereal-legume based dishes "much as it has been doing in Oriental, Indian and Mediterranean cookery for eons of time."

"The total of meat, fish and poultry achieved in phase three should average 3 to 4 ounces per day," the "Diet Book" says.

"Fish and poultry should be stressed instead of meat because of their lower saturated fat content."

The alternative Diet Book was supported in development by grants from The National Health Institutes Division of Research Resources, the National Heart and Lung Institute and the Oregon Heart Association.

THE DIET WAS field-tested on humans at the federally supported Clinical Research Center at the University of Iowa when Connor was director there.

The Diet Book includes sample menus and recipes.

"The nutritional research at the University of Iowa . . . has resulted in the development of a diet plan which may help decrease the incidence of diseases associated with the typical American diet," said the National Institutes of Health statement on the diet book.

"It is now well known that dietary factors from food of animal origin, such as eggs, meat and high fat dairy products, when eaten in large quantities, such as in this country, cause elevated blood cholesterol levels because of their high cholesterol and saturated fat content," Connor says.

"LESSER QUANTITIES of aniaml foods in the diet and greater use of vegetabte food products, such as cereals, legumes, fruits and vegetables, all of which are completely free of cholesterol, will lower blood cholesterol levels."

The alternative diet also may make sense for economic reasons.

"The alternative diet emphasizes the use of direct food crops, which yield the greatest amount of food for the energy invested, and it best utilizes our natural resources," Connor said.

"These foods generally are lower in cost to the consumer and have a higher nutritive value."

Some tomatoes low-acid: study

Recent federal and state university research indicates four varieties of tomatoes may not have high enough levels of acidity to be safe for traditional water-bath tomato canning methods.

Dr. Lloyd Bullerman of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln identifies the varieties as Garden State, Ace, 55VF, and Cal Ace. Bullerman, an associate professor of food science and technology, says all should be pressure-canned, the treatment necessary for safety of low-acid foods.

His recommendations are based on research at the University of Minnesota and the U.S. Department of Agriculture. He said the four varieties were the only ones out of 109 tested that were found to have low acid content. (UPI) syrup is tinted with green food coloring and spiced with cinnamon stick, allspice and mustard seed. Pretty green in color with a crunchy texture and sweet flavor, the pickles are very popular among the Busses' friends.

Cook's canning projects keep her inside all summer

ALSO HIGH IN popularity is Babe's homemade tomato juice, which has a snappy flavor and is great for Bloody Marys, which the Busses serve when they entertain at a brunch. A variety of vegetables and a touch of hot red pepper are the ingredients responsible for the juice's nippy taste.

Tomatoes also are used in a unique celery sauce containing green peppers and onions. This is served as a reslish and is delightful accompaniment for beef or fowl. Also good with poultry are Babe's yellow string beans, which are easy to prepare and have a tangy sweet-sour flavor.

While home-canned relishes embellish the meals served in the Busse home, Babe's beautifully-set tables provide an inviting setting for her good food. She works part-time for Busse florists, and is adept at arranging attractive centerpieces, which she also does for the spring luncheons and Christmas bazaars sponsored by the Ladies Guild at St. John's Lutheran Church. Babe bowls with St. John's league, but her favorite hobby is collecting antique furniture at auctions and refinishing it for herself and her children.

CORN RELISH

16 cups corn, cut from cob
8 cups skinned tomatoes, cut in small pieces
6 large onions, diced
3 red peppers, diced
3 green peppers, diced
2 bunches celery, diced
4 tablespoons salt
2½ cups vinegar
5 cups sugar
1 tablespoon celery salt

Mix all vegetables together in canning kettle. Add remaining ingredients and mix well. Cook until vegetables are tender, about a half hour. Pour into sterilized jars and seal. Makes about 12 pints.

NINE DAY PICKLES

7½ to 8½ pounds pic les, medium size
1½ teaspoons alum
6½ cups sugar
3½ pints white vinegar
1 small bottle green food coloring
1 ounce allspice
1 ounce cinnamon sticks
½ ounce mustard seed

Cut off ends of pickles and cut in ½-inch slices. Put in a salt brine in a big crock for 3 days. Put a plate on top to keep pickles down.

On the fourth day, remove pickles from salt brine and put them in clear water. Change water every day for 2 more days.

On the seventh day, put pickles in a weak white vinegar and water solution in a canning kettle. Add the alum. Let simmer for 1 hour but do not boil. Drain pickles.

Make a syrup of the sugar, 3½ pints vinegar and green food coloring. Put allspice, cinnamon sticks and mustard seed in a cheesecloth bag and place in syrup solution. Heat to boiling point. Pour over pickles in crock and put a plate on top.

On the eighth day, drain off juice, heat to boiling and pour over pickles again. On the ninth day, put pickles and juice in canning kettle. Bring to boiling point and shut off heat. Put pickles and juice in hot, sterilized jars and seal. Makes 10 pints.

TOMATO JUICE

1 bushel very ripe tomatoes
1 bunch celery, including tops, cut up
3 large onions, cut up
1 handful fresh parsley, snipped
6 bay leaves, crushed
2 cups sugar
Salt to taste
1 teaspoon ground hot red pepper
4 green peppers, diced

Wash tomatoes, cut them up and remove core. Divide ingredients among 2 canning kettles or divide ingredients in half and cook 1 kettle at a time.

Mash tomatoes with your hands to extract as much juice as possible. Bring ingredients to a boil, reduce heat and simmer, covered, for 20 minutes. (Make sure heat is low or tomato juice will burn.)

Put all ingredients through a food mill, pour back into kettle and bring to a full, rolling boil. Reduce heat and keep juice simmering while canning. Pour into hot, sterilized jars and seal. Makes about 18 quarts.

CELERY SAUCE

15 large tomatoes, skinned and cut up
5 large onions, diced
4 bunches celery, diced
3 green or red peppers diced
1½ cups sugar
2 tablespoons salt
1½ cups white vinegar
4 sprigs parsley, snipped

Combine ingredients in a kettle and bring to a boil. Reduce heat to simmer and cook, covered, for 2 hours. Pour into hot, sterilized jars and seal. Makes 14 pints. Serve as a relish with beef or fowl.

SWEET SOUR YELLOW STRING BEANS

1 peck yellow beans
3 cups water
3 cups white vinegar
3 cups sugar

Wash beans and cut off ends. Cook them in salt water until tender and drain.

Mix together the water, vinegar and sugar and bring to a boil. Add to drained beans and bring to a boil again. Pack in hot, sterilized jars.

Serving suggestions for yogurt

Yogurt is the newest of the dairy foods to reach popularity. Its sales have increased 537 per cent in the last 10 years. During 1975, yogurt sales totaled $414 million. Part of the rise was due to fruit or preserves being added to the yogurt, and now frozen yogurt may increase in popularity.

An unusual and delightful dressing for fresh fruits is a Lemon Yogurt-Chutney Dressing: Beat one cup cottage cheese on high speed of mixer until smooth, about five minutes. Stir in one cup (8 ounces) lemon yogurt and one-quarter cup of chutney.

Note for dieters: While the non-dieting members of the family lather their baked potatoes with sour cream, calorie counters can use plain yogurt with good results. One tablespoon of sour cream nets 25 calories while the same amount of yogurt provides nine calories.

Convenience stores prove expanding retail element

Convenience stores tend to special- growing element in food retailing, says Harry N. Traugott, a trade magazine publisher.

Traugott says the number of stores increased from 27,905 in 1975 to 30,470 in 1976. At the same time, sales increased from $6,467 billion to a record $7.723 billion.

Conveneince stores tend to specialize in prepared or semi-prepared foods, dairy products, soft drinks, beer and snack foods. Tobacco products are their single biggest seller, accounting for more than $1 billion in sales annually.

Many stores also carry records, magazines and school supplies among their more than 3,100 items.

Thirteen per cent of such stores are open 24 hours a day, he said. The remainder operate 16 hours daily. Most have a seven-day week.

Traugott, who publishes "Convenience Store News," said 56 per cent of convenience store shoppers are adult males, 32 per cent are adult females and 12 per cent are children under 12 years of age. (UPI).

Orange drink claims misleading: expert

A community health and preventive medicine expert says synthetic simulations of orange juice that compete on the basis of vitamin C. content could be misleading consumers.

Dr Willard A. Krehl of Jefferson Medical College in Philadelphia says such competition makes little nutritional sense. He says emphasis on a particular nutrient ignores the total spectrum of nutrients present in natural orange juice. He adds that the potassium-sodium ratio is significant: synthetic drinks invariably have much higher sodium content and lower potassium content than natural orange juice.

WANTED PIANO AND ORGAN MOVERS! Everybody qualifies.
MUST SELL THESE BRAND NAME PIANOS AND ORGANS OR PAY TO HAVE THEM MOVED TO NEW PART OF STORE.
Even though our new music center is under the same roof as our old one, when it comes to moving pianos and organs, our new music center could just as well be in Seattle.
First, the pianos and organs are in the way of the remodelers.
Second, they have to be dismantled to be moved to the new part of the store.
As long as we're taking them apart to move them next door, and as long as we're going to have to take them apart when we do move them to your house, we'll pay you now in the form of handsome discounts for deciding to buy a little sooner than you intended.
Here's the kinds of buys you can make by acting now:

Many fresh melons make delicious eating

Melons are among the most delicious of all fruits, cooling and refreshing. Have you tried all these melons to ennoy the full range?

HONEYDEWS:

Large, smooth-skinned melons with green flesh inside; creamy-yellow outside color and velvety surface show ripeness, but color can vary with origin. Usually melons that have dead-white color, especially with greenish tinge, are unripe. They will not sweeten and are unsatisfactory. The rind of a ripe melon has a soft, velvety feel.

To store and serve: Hold honeydews at room temperature a couple of days before serving. For best flavor, serve at room temperature. Nose test tells ripeness — a pleasant, distinctive fragrance.

PERSIAN MELON:

Globe-shaped, weighing about seven pounds. Rind dark green covered with fine netting; flesh orange, very thick. Rind under netting turns lighter green as melon ripens and rind gives under slight pressure.

To store and serve: Allow time at home for melons to become soft and juicy at room temperature.

CANTALOUPES:

Globe-shaped; when ripe, covered thickly with netting that stands out like whipcord from slightly golden background. Also check ripeness by delicate, developed aroma. Slight rattling of seeds when shaken a sign of maturity. Ripen at room temperature, if necessary. Excellent source of vitamins A and C; minerals.

CRANSHAW, or CRENSHAW:

WATERMELON:

Good quality are firm, symmetrical, fresh looking with attractive waxy bloom; good characteristic color for the variety. Lower side should be somewhat yellowish where melon contacted soil. If very pale green on underside, probably immature. Best to buy watermelon already cut so you can judge from its good red color inside and black seeds that it has reached maturity. Watermelons have vitamins C and A, and minerals.

Planning party? Try garden theme

Here is a charming shower idea for a bride-to-be fortunate enough to be moving into a house with garden space. And it could be the theme for an equally delightful surprise party given for an avid gardener on her birthday or wedding anniversary.

The gifts consist of anything in the gardening line: a shiny new trowel, shears, watering pot, gloves, an assortment of seeds or tiny plants. It's fun, it's original, and of course the gifts would be most welcome to a green-thumb enthusiast. If it's a lovely day, hold the party outdoors in your own garden.

Attractive refreshments are important, for there's something about watching a guest of honor open presents that makes all the other guests hungry! In keeping with the warm summer weather, food and drink should be properly light and refreshing. A lovely cake is a must, and angel food Summer Orange Cake is airy and delicate.

You can't have cake without a beverage, and Orchard Punch — a blend of tea, champagne and orange and grapefruit juices — is sparkling and cool.

SUMMER ORANGE CAKE

1 package angel food cake mix
1 cup sugar
3 tablespoons cornstarch
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup water
1 can (6 ounces) frozen orange juice concentrate, thawed, undiluted
2 egg yolks, slightly beaten
2 cups (1 pint) heavy cream, whipped

Prepare and bake cake according to package directions. Cool thoroughly and cut crosswise into 3 layers. To prepare frosting, combine sugar, cornstarch and salt in a saucepan; mix well. Stir in water and orange juice concentrate. Place over low heat, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens and comes to a boil. Cook 2 minutes longer.

Add a small amount of the hot mixture to the egg yolks, stirring rapidly. Return to saucepan and cook, stirring, until thickened. Cool at room temperature. Fold in whipped cream. Spread between layers and over top and side of cake. Serves 12.

ORCHARD PUNCH

1 quart water
1/3 cup loose tea or 15 tea bags
2 quarts orange juice
1 quart grapefruit juice
1 quart light corn syrup
1 bottle (4/5 quart) champagne, chilled

Bring water to a rolling boil in a saucepan. Remove from heat and immediately add tea. Brew uncovered 4 minutes. Strain. Stir in orange and grapefruit juice and corn syrup. When ready to serve, pour into punch bowl and add a block of ice or ice cubes. Stir to chill. Pour in champagne. Garnish with orange slices. Makes approximately 56 ½-cup servings.

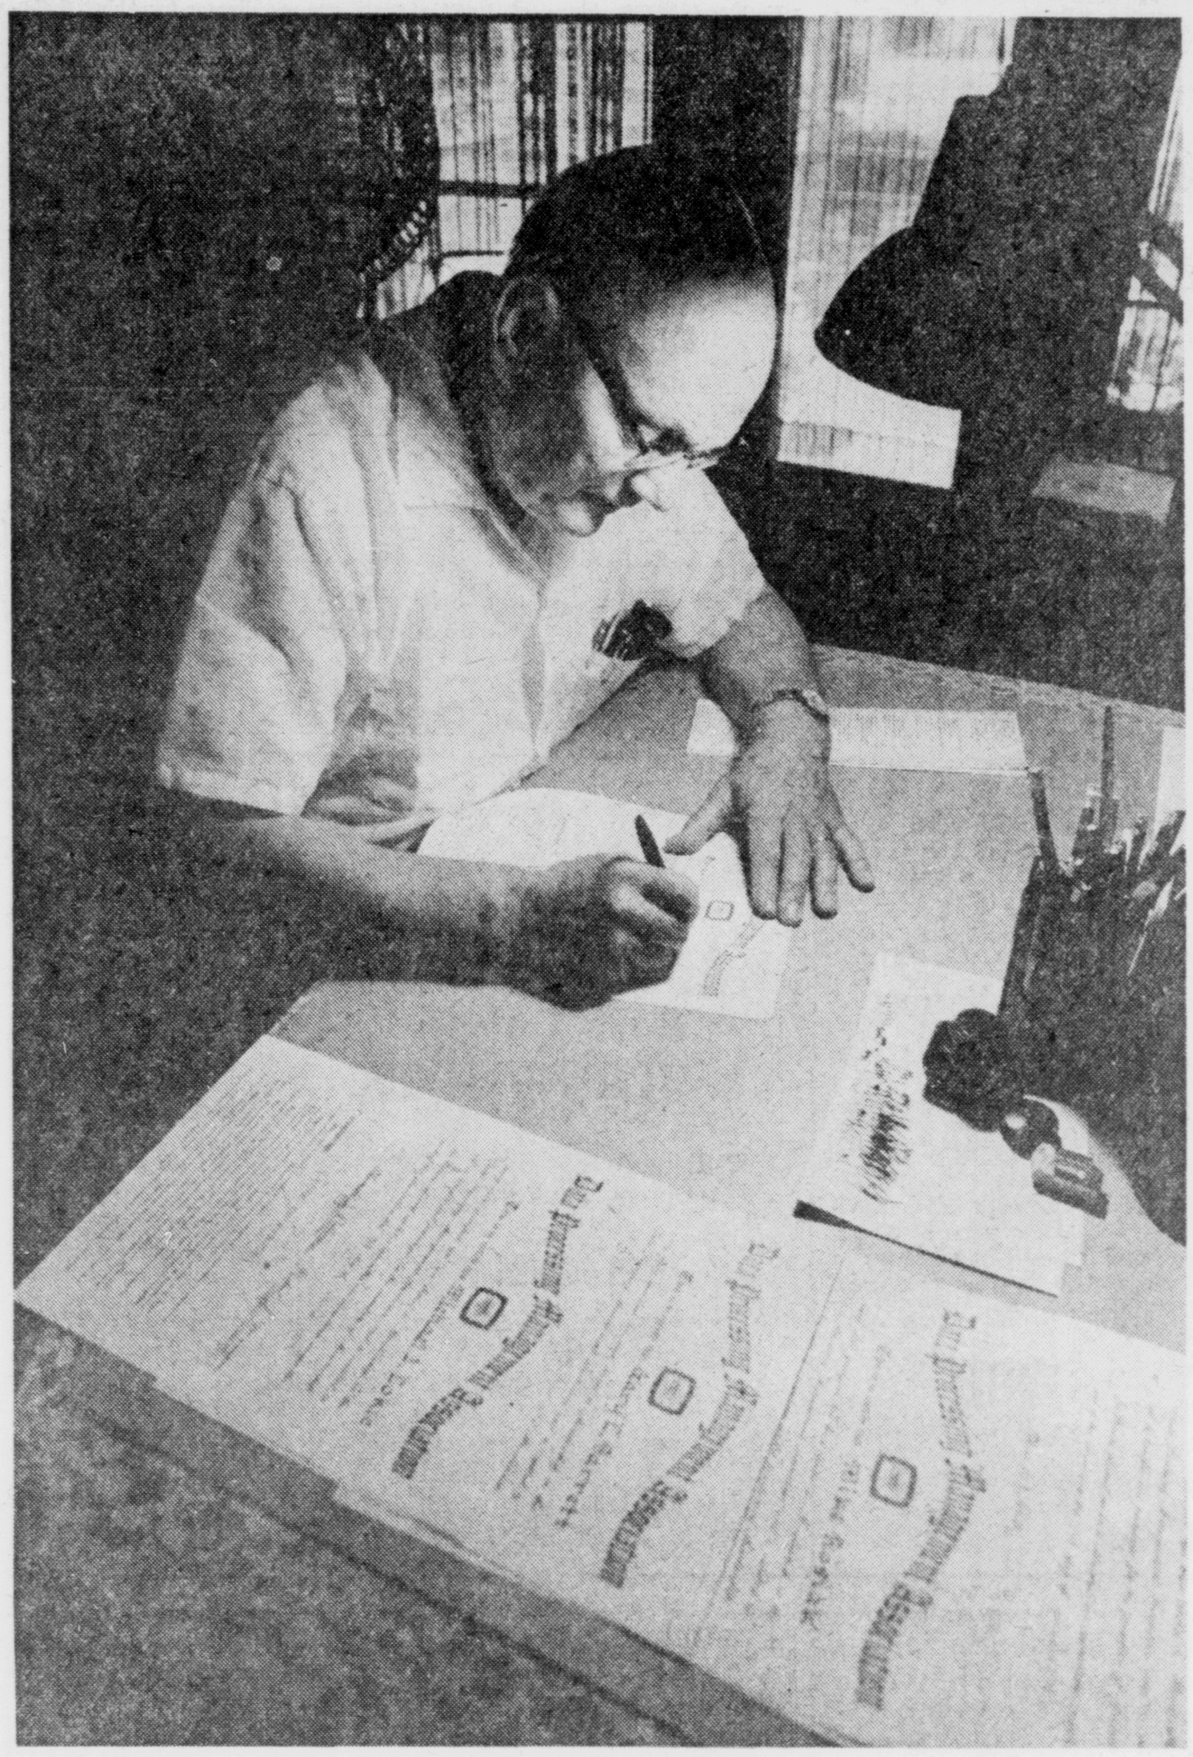
Hugh Harshbarger: artist with the pen



Scribe can't spare time to retire

by ELEANOR RIVES

"Please be patient. God isn't finished with me yet" says the sign on Hugh Harshbarger's work table.

Like the other poems, quotations, certificates, citations, plaques and awards neatly stacked around the workroom of his Palatine home, the words are recorded in perfect hand lettering, and the hand that lettered them is Hugh's.

Harshbarger, retired from the field of education after 45 years, is now 74 and has no intention of retiring from life. Furthermore, he can't spare the time.

He is one of a vanishing breed, those painstaking artists who impart dignity to a diploma, pride to a plaque, by the addition of a hand-lettered name. He is adept at three styles, but customers prefer the Olson Bradley script (a simplified German style) that he developed 40 years ago.

HUGH HAS JUST completed lettering 45 certificates for a financial management program in Toronto.

He letters for four divisions of a worldwide data processing company.

Each month he letters an average of 500 names on membership certificates for a company in Park Ridge.

Recently he added hand-lettered names to 52 special citations for South American pediatricians, lettered a 50-line poster for a print shop and designed a white-on-black, hand-lettered label to be attached to each bottle of a new wine.

He letters for 20 different associations that send his work all over the world. Once he found himself carefully inking his own name on a certificate.

ALL THIS IN addition to lettering names on thousands of diplomas each year.

"There aren't many dull moments; we keep moving pretty steadily," he says in a gem of an understatement.

Though lettering has always been his hobby, teaching was his vocation. With a bachelor's degree from Bradley and a master's from Northwestern, Harshbarger, who once ran for Illinois superintendent of schools, spent 19 years in the public school system, 16 of them at Maine Township High School as head of the industrial arts department.

During that time (1929-1945) he founded Maine Township Adult Evening School, now one of the largest such programs in the state, and served as its principal.

He has written two textbooks, one on signs and poster painting and one on drafting, and since his retirement has revised his sign-painting textbook for home study, soon to be marketed.

DURING WORLD WAR II, Harshbarger administered an in-plant training program at Douglas Aircraft near O'Hare, coordinating the work of 80 instructors. Following the war, he worked for the Veterans Administration, with jurisdiction over vocational training in four states.

In 1950, he joined Greer Technical Institute as superintendent. He designed the school's South Michigan Avenue sign, its catalog, its Christmas card and its courses in automotive technology, refrigeration and air conditioning in its two-year engineering program.

After five years at Greer, he decided to return to his little home town, Atwood, Ill., to try the "quiet life."

"I bought my brother's drugstore and I never worked so hard in my life," said Hugh. He designed his drugstore sign, store lettering, Atwood highway and welcome signs, a map to be placed outside the post office. He founded the Chamber of Commerce and became mayor of Atwood. That was enough "quiet" for him.

IT WAS BACK to Chicago, this time as public relations director of Goodwill Industries on whose behalf he had 200 speaking engagements in 18 months. Then Greer called him back and he stayed another four years.

For the next eight years, he was a consultant for the State of Illinois Department of Vocational and Technical Education, working with public and private schools under the Federal Manpower Training Act. In 1974, he retired from a small electronics technical institute.

Hugh recalls that his interest in advertising and lettering goes back to the late '20s. At Maine, he lettered all the graduation diplomas — about 400 a year — for five years. "I got about 25 cents a name," he chuckled.

Last year he handled the certificates for 28 seminars for 20 different universities. "The mailing lists are unbelievable," he exclaimed. "Top brass from all over the world. I've lettered may a famous name on an honorary doctor's degree."

IN THE COURSE of his lettering labors, Harshbarger has found that there are about 500 different lettering styles in existence. He states that "J" is the most popular initial, William the most popular man's name, with John a close second. He delights in finding an unusual name and keeps a roster of such handles as Kean Heck, E. Z. Million, Faye Hooker, Terry Coldiron.

So much has his business increased that he sometimes directs customers to his favorite lettering protege, his daughter, Diane, who works out of Atwood.

To do the thousands of painstaking lettering jobs he does, Hugh must indeed "be patient." And from his steady hand and good eye, it is obvious that "God isn't finished with him yet."

"AT 74, I'M THANKFUL for a steady hand and good eyes," says Hugh Harshbarger who has lived in Des Plaines, Arlington Heights and Palatine. His retirement after 45 years in the field of vocational education marked the beginning of a full-time, flourishing hand-lettering business.

Tennis elbow common ail

by AL ROSSITER JR.

Tennis elbow is an occupational hazard of tennis players, carpenters, gardeners, dentists and even politicians who shake too many hands.

"The Medical Letter," a doctors' newsletter, reports the growing popularity of tennis has made tennis elbow one of the commonest orthopedic injuries among persons over 18.

In a report advising physicians on treatment, the newsletter said the injury could just as well be called "tennis forearm" because its symptoms often involve the extensor muscles of the forearm.

The most frequent tennis-related complaint is that it hurts to hit backhand. Other activities that produce discomfort to someone with tennis elbow include shaking hands, turning a doorknob, using a screwdriver or carrying a briefcase.

Although it might seem reasonable to temporarily stop playing tennis when the ailment strikes, "The Medical Letter" said this might not be necessary.

TENNIS ELBOW IS likely to persist or recur, but the most painful stage is generally self-limited, with a duration or no more than six to 12 months "even if the patient continues to play tennis," the newsletter said.

It said most patients with tennis elbow find that the pain of hitting a ball is greatest when they begin to play, and it becomes tolerable or even disappears after a few minutes.

Some patients report the initial pain can be minimized by first warming the forearm and elbow in water or with a heating pad. Others have recommended warming up with an isometric exercise.

The newsletter said many players with moderate symptoms find that placing a band several inches in width around their forearms near the elbow diminishes the pain of hitting the ball.

Many orthopedic surgeons recommend exercises to strengthen the forearm, the newsletter said. Surgery can help some with severe symptoms.

THE NEWSLETTER said a couple of aspirin will help tennis players increase their tolerance to the pain. Local injections of corticosteroid drugs can relieve pain for some, but the newsletter said repeated injections can be damaging.

There also are other drugs such as phenylbutazone, oxyphenbutazone and indomethacin which may temporarily relieve symptoms, but the newsletter said they can cause serious side effects.

"Patients with tennis elbow will be pleased to know that their symptoms will generally improve with time even if they continue to play to their limits of tolerance," the newsletter said.

Collectors love old kitchen tools

Collecting

Give a decorator a blank wall and some nails and soon you'll have "an arrangement." People used to hang pictures on the wall — in Victorian days, lots of them, with perhaps a hair (of the deceased) wreath or a comb holder with mirror. Today, anything goes on the wall and especially popular are old kitchen utensils.

The appeal of such old things, I suppose, is in their good sense and utilitarianism, as well as for their decoration. Old graters, sifters, choppers and mashers worked very well, and most modern models are simply an improvement in material, not in function.

You wonder when you see old worn kitchenware: how did the housewife lift that heavy iron kettle, especially when it was filled with hot soup? Imagine the labor expended in using that old churn.

THE SPECIAL thing about these old items is the fact they were used, not just for decoration, or for special company, but everyday in the very necessary processing of food for hungry families.

So today we make them of plastic and aluminum, and they wear out in a few years — if that long — and we buy new ones. Of course, many former hand jobs are now done by electricity, or the food comes from the supermarket. I know very few persons who churn their own butter — but I do know one, in fact!

We hang the kitchen tools of yesterday on the wall, and they become "conversation pieces." That reminds me of an anecdote (my children say anything reminds me of an anecdote.) A friend took a non-antiquer with her to a shop, where they saw a small blue enameled French heating stove. My friend considered it for a conversation piece. "Sure," said the non-lover of antiques, "someone will come in, ask 'what's that?' — you'll answer 'a French heating stove.' End of conversation."

COLLECTING OLD kitchenware, from the very primitive and early relics of colonial days, mostly made of iron, copper and wood, to the Victorian coal stoves and accessories, even up to the '20s and '30s just plain old-fashioned, can be fun and inexpensive. For instance, the pictured items were purchased, mainly at antiques shows and shops, from $2 to $4, none higher.

Starting in the lower left corner, clockwise, are a hand-made copper funnel, a handmade tin and wooden grater, an all-tin grater, a tin sifter, which sifts by means of a coiled wire turned in a circular motion, a steel and wood chopper, a brass milk scale and a wooden potato masher. These hung on the wall of my former house, and sure enough, never failed to start a conversation — of some sort!

Researching the manufacture and history of these old items can be fun, too. Many museums include a country kitchen from bygone days, such as the Chicago Historical Society. If you should go to Williamsburg, the kitchen of the Governor's Palace has been reconstructed, and costumed attendants explain the methods of cooking 200 years ago. There are at least 20 copper dippers hanging there over the fireplace, so perhaps hanging things on the kitchen wall is not so new.

THE WALL SPACE in my present kitchen is quite limited, but I have hung a few goodies, mainly baskets, since they seem to be "in" just now. Baskets both old and new look especially good in windows where the light shines through the interesting patterns of weaving. One of my baskets has a stenciled message "Perkins Pure Pork Sausage."

I will also throw in a decorator hint, which I copied from a decorating book. Instead of a macrame holder use a large "milk scale" such as the one shown in the picture, only larger, suspend a basket (mine is a large round brown basket) with a pot filled with greenery. My greenery is the great-great-granddaughter of a spider plant one of you readers gave me about five years ago, and its progeny are scattered far and wide. Spider or airplane plants are the only kind I seem to have any luck with, for I am not blessed with even the green tip of a thumbnail.

The doctor says

Diet won't correct high blood calcium

I need your opinion and any information you can give me. What causes the parathyroid glands to malfunction and form an excess amount of calcium that flows into the blood stream? How harmful is this excess? It was suggested that all dairy products, liver, fish and vitamins A and D be eliminated from my diet. What can be done to avoid this excess calcium?

The parathyroid glands are on each side of the thyroid gland around your trachea (wind pipe) in your throat. The hormone they form causes calcium to be mobilized from the bones and does increase the calcium content in the blood. The glands to not form calcium themselves. They work with vitamin D and your calcium intake to help regulate your blood calcium level.

Overactive parathyroid glands produce too much hormone that can mobilize calcium from your bones. That results in a high blood calcium and may cause your bones to fracture easily. The excess calcium may also cause kidney stones, and may increase the acid igestive juices from the stomach causing digestive complaints. This combination has led doctors to say the hyperparathyroid state is a disease of bones, stones and groans.

Sometimes this overactivity is caused by some other disease in the body. Some forms of kidney disease and diseases that interfere with the absorbtion of calcium from your digestive system are examples of underlying diseases that may cause an overactive parathyroid gland.

Other cases are caused by a small tumor (rarely malignant) that causes over production of the hormone.

The ideal treatment depends upon the cause. If there is a small tumor of the parathyroid glands, the treatment is surgical.

IF THE OVERACTIVITY is secondary to another underlying disease, the treatment is directed toward trying to correct that abnormality.

I am a bit puzzled by your dietary advice. Cutting down your calcium intake will not help. If surgery is not needed or the underlying problem is not completely correctable, then it is usually wise to direct treatment efforts toward replacing lost chemical salts which may even include replacing calcium and phosphorous. Most important of all it is advisable to drink plenty of fluids every day, spaced throughout the 24-hour period to ensure a continuous passage of dilute urine. This will help prevent kidney stones.

I think you would be wise to ask your doctor to refer you to an endocrinologist for a consultation. I see from your address that the city you live in has a university medical center. You could be referred to the endocrinology section there. Management of such cases is often complicated and they may be able to help your doctor with your case.

Frozen sandwiches safe for summer lunch boxes

Dear Roberta: My children are bored to tears with the peanut butter or cheese sandwiches I pack in their lunch boxes. Since the summer playground program has weeks to go, what can I fix that'll be safe? Audrey Gibson

You're right to be cautious.

Steer clear of spoilable sandwich stuffings, especially those made with mayonnaise, eggs or other dairy products. Try freezing sandwiches made with well-cooked sliced meat or poultry. These will thaw by lunchtime and in the meantime will keep other foods in the boxes cool.

Dear Roberta: How do you make a price choice between frozen vegetables and fruits and canned ones, when the net weight marked on the can also includes the liquid used in packing? — Janet Shearer

You can't. Unless you're willing to experiment by buying some canned foods, draining off the liquid and weighing the remaining product. Unit-price indications are no help if you don't save the syrups and nutrient-rich vegetable liquids for sauces, gelatin molds and stews. I suggest you look for products in cans indicating drained weights.

Dear Roberta: Even though I have 20-20 vision, I went to a reputable optician and bought the cheapest frame they had and clear glasses. Now I feel much safer in using sprays and various cleaning products that contain eye-irritants. — Lucy Manley

A good idea, Lucy. You were wise to avoid the dimestore glasses. You still must use special care with these products.

Sandra Anne Bell–Philip Richardson

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Richardson

A one o'clock wedding June 18 in Meadows Baptist Church united Sandra Anne Bell and Philip Richardson. The bride is the daughter of the Wayne Bells of Rolling Meadows, and the groom's parents are the Philip Wigleys of South Bend, Ind.

Sandra, a nurse's aid, and Philip met while both were working at St. Therese Hospital in Waukegan. He is a Navy corpsman stationed at Great Lakes Naval Training Center and was working at the hospital part-time. She is a graduate of Rolling Meadows High School.

THEY WERE married by candlelight in double ring rites, later greeting 100 guests at a reception at the Pickwick House, Palatine.

Sandra's matron of honor was Mrs. Tom Repede, Mount Prospect, and the couple's sisters, Susan Bell and Sharon Richardson, were bridesmaids.

Philip chose his brother Paul as best man, with Mark Bell, the bride's brother, and Manuel Alcantara as groomsmen.

Phyllis R. Cassese–Michael Marsh

Former Hoffman Estates resident Michael Charles Marsh, now a U.S. Navy hospital corpsman, and Phyllis Rosemarie Cassese of Long Island, N.Y., were married July 3 in the chapel at the Naval Regional Medical Center in Portsmouth, Va.

Mike attended Conant High School, where he was active in band and varsity track.

Phyllis chose Mrs. Steve Martines as her matron of honor, and James A. Cassese served Mike as his best man. Father Gryga, lieutenant commander in the chaplain corps, conducted the ceremony.

The newlyweds traveled to Nebraska for their honeymoon. Following his discharge in 1979, Mike plans to attend the University of Nebraska Medical Center.

Best friend worth losing?

Dear Marian,

My best friend is going out with a guy whom I really like. Lately he's been calling me up a lot and has asked me to go out with him. I didn't tell my friend this, but she has said to me that he seems to be losing interest in her. She really likes him, too, and I know she'd be really upset if I started going out with him. I want to go out with this guy, but I don't want to stop being friends with Tammy. What should I do?

B.J

Dear B.J.,

You want to have a perfect solution and there is none. You have to decide if going out with this guy is worth losing Tammy's friendship. Bear in mind that this guy may pull the same thing on you that he's doing to Tammy some day. Then you'll be out a boyfriend and a best friend.

Dear Marian,

My father is always picking on my friends. He is ruining my social life. My friends don't want to come over any more. Last week this really great guy that I met came over and my Dad told him he looked like a hoodlum and he should get a haircut. I was humiliated and I haven't seen this guy since. What should I do?

D.O.

Dear D.O.,

Sit down with your father and tell him that if he doesn't stop embarrassing you in front of your friends, you won't bring them home any more and he won't have the opportunity to meet the people you go out with. Explain to him that the remarks he makes aren't going to change people; it just makes them angry and you embarrassed.

If you have a problem, a question or just want someone to listen, write to Marian in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006. Only first names or initials will be used in the column. Marian reserves the right to condense letters.

Pair learns about life 'on their own'

"On Our Own" is CBS's answer to ABC's phenomenal hit "Laverne and Shirley," and the new situation comedy no doubt will receive similar support from television viewers when it premieres this fall.

It is the ongoing story of two best friends, recently promoted from the secretarial pool to semi-executive positions in a New York advertising agency.

They are a laughable Mutt and Jeff team struggling through single life in the big city and up the steep ladder of success.

Maria Teresa Bonino, played by Lynnie Greene, is a very tall, very introverted, gangly Italian Catholic girl from Brooklyn. The fantastic thing about this character is her name — it really says it all.

JULIA PETERS, played by Bess Armstrong, is Maria's outgoing, inventive "WASP" girl friend from Connecticut.

The girls live in separate apartments but share all of their personal and professional secrets and dilemmas.

Ms. Greene and Ms. Armstrong, both newcomers to television, do a respectable job of carrying off their lines without support from comedy veterans.

Although the premier episode of the show, which will be seen Sundays at 7:30 p.m., bears an overwhelming resemblance to "Laverne and Shirley," the stars and producer of "On Our Own" deny any common bond between the two shows. A premier date has not been announced.

"We know people will make that comparison. But we feel our show is a more contemporary and more adult comedy. We feel that the relationship of the girls is more intelligent and mature. The thrust of 'Laverne and Shirley' is primarily to the younger viewer," said Sam Denoff, producer of "On Our Own."

"THE GIRLS don't live together. They met at the ad agency. The basis of their friendship is social and work. Their lives don't depend on each other," Denoff said.

Despite all that, the camaraderie between Marie and Julia is unmistakably "Laverne and Shirley."

In the pilot episode, we see the two girls at odds with their first assignment: they are to interview good looking males in their jockey shorts for a television toothpaste commercial.

While the male applicants, obviously used to some pretty bizarre requests when auditioning for an ad job, are carrying on brisk conversation in their jockey shorts, the two girls are shrinking in their shoes.

The two are strange office partners to be sure. Maria is overly self-conscious about being tall while Julia is as assertive and wholesome as good old American girls come.

"I HAVE TO FIGHT the tall problem in real life," said the 5-foot-11 Ms. Greene. "When I was 8-years-old I had to carry a birth certificate to prove I was under 12 to qualify for children's fares."

Her experience in show business has been limited to regional theater and show houses in the East where she was reared and lives today.

And Ms. Armstrong really is wholesome. She grew up in Maryland and did some summer stock in the New York City area. Her studies at Brown University in Providence, R.I., included classical Latin and Greek, the violin and viola.

She also is a familiar face on television commercials for products such as Crisco shortening, Johnson and Johnson baby powder and Final Touch.

"In principle, we are very much like the characters we portray," Ms. Armstrong said. "We are both young and just starting out in our careers and we really have become very good friends."

THERE WILL be all sorts of characters bowing in and out of the fictitious advertising office to give the program an added dimension, Denoff said.

There will be "the coffe and the mail people," the authoritative boss, Toni McBain, and an omniscient, unseen female figure who owns the agency and who is often heard but never seen.

"In many ways," Denoff said, "the show is an extension of the 'Mary Tyler Moore' figure. They are young women on their own who are up against the typical problems of living alone in the big city."

Both Bess and Lynnie know first hand what that's all about. Neither of their agents could get them in the door at first, they said. Acting parts were difficult to get.

"I met the people who were casting this show at a party and he told me to come in and read for the part of Maria. I told him that I've lost more jobs because of my height and that's just what happened," Ms. Greene said.

LYNNIE GREENE

BESS ARMSTRONG

AFTER APPEARING in a small role on "The Andros Targets," Ms. Armstrong read for the part of Julia but was turned down.

"The funny thing about it, though was that the two of us were sitting outside the audition room waiting and thinking about being refused and we started talking. We decided to ask the people casting if we could audition one more time together," Ms. Armstrong said.

"They reluctantly let us audition again. We went in as a team and as strangers. We came out as a team with jobs," she said.

Both 23-year-old actresses feel that even if their new show is not successful, it will open new doors for them in the profession.

The two plan to maintain their homes in the East and "On Our Own" will be one of the few programs CBS will film on a regular basis in a New York studio before a live audience.

IT IS THE duo's way of "bringing television back to New York," they said.

"New York is the home of the theater and we both love the regional theater," Ms. Armstrong said. "You have to be a bit of a fighter to survive the city — to get on the subway, to get into a crowd and land a part in a play and fend for yourself. It's wonderful."

"That's what I feel we're doing in this new show of ours," Ms. Greene said. "It's not difficult playing the part of someone so close to who you are. It's just a little scary that first time around."

TV HIGHLIGHTS:

• The television schedule is saturated with pilot comedies tonight including "Instant Family" at 7 p.m. on Channel 5, about two single fathers who pool their resources and offspring to save on rent — and confusion abounds.

• "Bay City Amusement Company" at 7:30 p.m. on Channel 5 follows the exploits of a local television station's creative staff as they produce a weekly comedy show.

• Bob Hope and Phyllis Diller star in "Eight on the Lam," the 8 p.m. movie on Channel 5, about a widowed bank teller who finds $50,000 and goes on a spending spree.

Pork for a patio dinner

The familiar suggestion "let's eat out" takes on new meaning when days are warm and languid. Rather than implying a restaurant meal, these words conjure up such pleasant pictures as a barbecue grill sizzling in the back yard or a picnic in a park.

A barbecue can combine the best features of both simplicity and splendor when the menu is planned around pork. It is easy to cook a pork roast on the rotisserie or broil chops on the grill. Marinades and sauces add tempting flavors.

Iced Tea by the pitcherful

MADE WITH TEABAGS OR TEA LEAVES AND BOILING WATER:

Bring 1 quart of cold water to a boil in a saucepan. Remove from heat and immediately add 15 teabags or ⅓ cup loose tea leaves. Stir, cover and let stand 5 minutes. Stir again and strain into a pitcher holding another quart of cold water. Makes 2 quarts.

MADE WITH TEABAGS AND COLD WATER:

Fill a quart jar or pitcher with cold water. Add 8 to 10 teabags (remove tags), Cover and let stand at room temperature or in the refrigerator at least 6 hours or overnight. Remove bags, squeezing against side of container. Makes 1 quart. Recipe may be doubled.

MADE WITH INSTANT POWDER OR ICED TEA MIX AND COLD WATER:

Allow 2 rounded tablespoons of instant tea powder for each quart of cold water. Stir to dissolve. If using lemon-flavored iced tea mix, use ½ cup (or 2 small envelopes) to a quart of cold water.

Sausage Pocket Sandwiches

- 3 loaves pita (Arabian or Middle Eastern) bread
- 1 can (16 ounces) baked beans in molasses sauce
- 2 tablespoons catsup
- 1 medium onion, thinly sliced
- 12 slices ham or minced ham
- 12 slices cotto salami
- 12 slices pickle and pimiento loaf
- 1½ cups cole slaw (approximately 1 pound)

Cut loaves in half and enlarge pockets when necessary. Mash beans and mix with catsup to blend. Spread ¼ cup bean mixture inside lower half of each pocket. Separate onion into rings and place an equal portion in each pocket. Roll or fold 2 slices each of ham, cotto salami and pickle and pimiento loaf and insert in each pocket on top of onion rings. Place ¼ cup cole slaw in pocket on top of meat under top crust. Makes 6 sandwiches.

Oriental Pork Chops and Vegetables

- 6 to 8 pork rib or loin chops, cut 1 to 1¼ inches thick
- ½ cup soy sauce
- ¼ cup water
- ¼ cup sherry
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- ½ teaspoon garlic powder
- ¼ teaspoon ginger
- 2 medium cucumbers, cut in 2-inch strips
- 2 small onions, sliced in rings
- 2 cups sliced mushrooms
- 2 cups sliced celery
- 2 cups thinly sliced zucchini
- 12 cherry tomatoes, halved
- 1 tablespoon sesame seed

Combine soy sauce, water, sherry, lemon juice, garlic and ginger in small saucepan and cook 5 minutes, stirring to blend. Cool. Place chops in plastic bag or utility dish; add marinade and turn to coat chops on all sides. Tie bag securely or cover dish and marinate in refrigerator 4 hours or overnight.

Remove chops; reserve marinade and heat. Place chops on grill over ash-covered coals or on rack in broiler pan so surface of meat is 4 to 5 inches from heat. Broil 8 minutes; turn and broil 8 minutes. Continue broiling 5 to 10 minutes or until done, turning and brushing with half the marinade occasionally.

While chops are broiling, combine cucumbers, onions, mushrooms, celery and zucchini and ¼ cup marinade in pan or foil packet and cook, covered, 10 minutes. Fold in tomatoes and sprinkle with sesame seed before serving. Serves 6 to 8.

Broiled Bacon-a-Bobs

- 9 to 12 slices bacon, cut in half
- 9 to 12 water chestnuts
- 9 to 12 kumquats

Wrap half slices of bacon around water chestnuts and kumquats, and thread alternately on skewers. Place kabobs on grill or rack in broiler pan and broil over low to moderate heat 10 minutes or until bacon is done, turning several times. Serves 6 to 8.

Frosty Peaches 'n Cream Pie

- 2 tablespoons orange juice
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 1 package (10 ounces) marshmallows
- 3 to 4 medium peaches, pared and chopped. (approximately 1¼ cups)
- 1 cup heavy cream, whipped
- 1 single baked pie shell*
- ¼ cup orange juice
- ¼ cup sugar
- 1 peach, pared and cut in 6 or 8 wedges

Combine orange juice and lemon juice in medium saucepan, bring to boil, reduce heat and add marshmallows, stirring until melted. Cool slightly; stir in peaches. Fold whipped cream into cool peach mixture and turn into baked pie shell. Freeze for 2 hours or more.

Before serving, remove pie from freezer and place in refrigerator for 1 hour. For garnish, combine orange juice and sugar in small saucepan and cook for 8 to 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add peach wedges and continue cooking 3 to 5 minutes. Remove peach wedges from syrup and drain thoroughly on absorbent paper. Arrange cool glazed slices in pinwheel on top of pie when it is removed from freezer. Serves 6 to 8.

*Single Baked Pie Shell

1½ cups Homemade Pastry Mix
2 to 4 tablespoons ice water

Add water to mix, a small amount at a time, mixing quickly and evenly until dough just holds in a ball. Roll to about ⅛ inch thickness and line 9-inch pie pan, allowing 1 inch pastry to extend over edge. Fold overhanging pastry under crust and crimp edge. Prick pastry with a fork. Bake in 450-degree oven 8 to 10 minutes.

Homemade Pastry Mix

- 7 cups flour
- 4 teaspoons salt
- 1¾ cups lard for soft wheat flour
- or 2 cups lard for hard wheat flour

Mix flour and salt well. Cut lard into flour mixture with a fork or pastry blender until crumbs are about the size of small peas. Cover and store in refrigerator until ready to use. This mixture will keep at least a month in refrigerator. Makes 10 cups pastry mix.

CANNING HAS always been part of Babe Busse's lifestyle. She and her husband, Marv, process some 150 quarts of produce each summer, including relish, pickles and tomato juice.

Canning projects keep cook indoors all summer

While beaches and backyards beckon housewives outdoors during the summer months, Babe Busse of Elk Grove Village spends many a long hour in the kitchen canning a variety of homegrown produce.

Fortunately for Babe, her home is air-conditioned and her husband, Marv, is a willing helper in this ambitious endeavor. Seeing her shelves stocked with glistening jars of relishes, juices, jams and vegetables gives Babe a great deal of satisfaction, and the Busses enjoy the benefits of this effort all year long.

Canning is a part of Babe's lifestyle. She grew up helping her mother with this chore, and not only uses all of her mother's recipes, but has taught them to her daughter and two daughters-in-law, who also have become conscientious canners.

Marv is the gardener in the family, tending a sizeable vegetable garden on the Busses' 1½ acres. Pickles and corn come from their daughter and son-in-law's 300-acre farm, and other vegetables often are supplemented by friends who know Babe's penchant for canning. Interesting foods such as corn relish, pickles, celery sauce, tomato juice and pickled yellow beans can be found among the 150 quarts of produce Babe and Marv process each summer.

Lois Seiler

Cook of the week

BABE DOES GET out to the backyard for the task of cutting 16 cups of corn from the cob for her corn relish. A big cutting board on the picnic table makes an ideal spot. The corn is mixed with tomatoes, onions, green and red pepper and celery, then cooked in vinegar sweetened with sugar, seasoned with salt and celery salt and sealed in sterilized jars. The relish has a savory sweet-sour flavor, and is excellent with pork, hamburgers or any picnic fare.

Pickles, to paraphrase Peter Piper, should be processed when they are plump and freshly picked. Although one must make haste in preparing them while they are fresh, it takes nine days to complete the pickling process for Babe's favorite pickle.

They are soaked in a salt brine for three days, in clear water for another three days, and then in a vinegar-sugar syrup for the final three days. This

Safety precautions vital when canning food at home

Overrun with backyard berries or glutted with garden vegetables? Your huge harvest will last much longer if you can it.

"Canning is a real popular thing these days for people of all ages, both male and female," said Lynn Bredemeyer, Cooperative Extension Service adviser, at a recent canning and freezing demonstration in Arlington Heights. And although some of these persons take to canning out of the belief that home processed food is safer than the store-bought kind, this is a fallacy, she said. "There is much more danger of contamination in home canned foods than in commercially canned foods."

DURING THE canning process, the heat must destroy microorganisms such as enzymes, molds and yeast that cause spoilage, as well as the bacteria that causes botulism poisoning. Boiling will destroy microorganisms in acid foods such as fruit, tomatoes, pickles and pickled vegetables. All other vegetables are low-acid and must be processed at a temperature of 240 degrees in a steam pressure canner.

To can high-acid foods, place filled jars in a water-bath canner and make sure the water level is at least one inch above the tops of the jars. Jars must be placed on a rack with room for the boiling water to circulate around them. Wait until water comes to a rolling boil before beginning to count processing time. Remove the jars from the canner as soon as time is up and complete the seals immediately.

A STEAM PRESSURE canner must be used to process low-acid foods. The gauge must be tested yearly, Mrs. Bredemeyer said, and all parts must be checked to see that they are in working order. A gauge tester may be checked out of the Rolling Meadows extension office or purchased.

After packing the low-acid foods into jars, place two inches of boiling water in the bottom of the canner before jars are set on the rack inside. After the canner is covered and the heat is turned on, steam should be allowed to escape for at least 10 minutes before the weighted gauge is put over the opening.

WAIT UNTIL THE pressure builds up ti 10 pounds before counting processing time. After time is up, take the canner off the stove until the pressure reads 0, slowly remove the weighted gauge and let steam escape before unfastening the cover. Cool jars about 12 hours after seals are completed.

Mrs. Bredemeyer offered some more canning suggestions based upon U.S. Department of Agriculture recommendations:

Use reliable source books and recipes. "Back to earth" books and old family recipes may not give the most accurate or up-to-date information.

- Use only heat-tempered Mason-type jars, not peanut butter jars or the like, and specially made caps for canning. Do not re-use the caps.
- Use only fresh produce and do not use tomatoes that are overly ripe or with mold on top. "That is one of the biggest dangers and that is when the tomatoes are low-acid," she explained.
- Never try to can in the oven or in a microwave. Also, do not process any foods, except jellies, in an open kettle.

Micro-roasting a speedy process

Eileen Kelly
Let's learn to micro-cook

Microwave cooking requires some unexpected changes in routine. One seemingly silly but quite necessary change is learning to set your table before you start cooking! Meals are ready in such a short time that if you don't do this, you will be finding yourself frantically throwing dishes and silverware around during the last minute.

Another pleasant change is that you aren't limited by long cooking periods. If you want to have a roast for dinner but don't care to spend half the afternoon around the house, fine, because with your microwave oven you can cook a tasty roast in less than an hour!

The very first question people ask about doing a roast in the microwave is "will it brown?" The answer is a big "yes." Any meat that takes longer than 10 minutes to cook in the microwave will be brown.

If your microwave oven has a variety of settings, you can cook all the cuts of beef. If your oven has only one setting, then you are limited to the most tender cuts. You can do less tender cuts only if you marinate them.

I HATE TO fill your head with a million "ands, ifs, sometimes and buts." Confusion is what we're trying to avoid, so let's just talk about one cut of beef and how to cook it. Slowly but surely we can cover other cuts and other ideas in future columns and you can add them to your repertoire.

My informal survey around the neighborhood prompted me to choose the rump roast for our discussion today. The rump roast is a slightly less tender cut and so it requires a combination of settings. For the first half of the cooking period, set your oven on "roast" of a setting just a bit lower than the high setting. Then for the remainder of the cooking period you will set your oven on "simmer" or a setting just a bit higher than defrost.

Have your beef at room temperature. Don't salt it before cooking as the salt tends to distort the microwaves and also can hate a drying effect. Other spices are fine to use.

IF YOU DON'T have a microwave roasting rack, you can place the meat on a sturdy inverted saucer. My husband bought us a plastic roasting pan in a microwave specialty store. It was inexpensive and is very handy. I hasten to remind you that you will not be using metal pans of any sort in your microwave oven. Therefore be sure to use a glass baking dish of sufficient size — a 12 x 7-inch dish will probably be fine.

Now you have to figure out how long you'll need to cook the meat. I urge you to aim to finish your roast slightly sooner than you want. This gives you the flexibility of adding cooking time and getting used to doing a roast. If you should overcook meat there is no salvaging it, and you can always cook meat a bit longer if underdone. Figure:

- Rare — 125 degrees when removed from the oven — 11 to 12 minutes per pound;
- Medium — 145 degrees when removed from the oven — 13 to 14 minutes per pound;
- Well done — 155 degrees when removed from oven — 15 to 16 minutes per pound.

COMPUTE YOUR time and then divide it in half. Place the beef fat side down on your microwave roasting rack in your glass baking dish and microwave on the "roast" setting for the first half. Then turn the beef fat side up and microwave for the last half of the time on the "simmer" setting.

Check the temperature of your meat with your regular thermometer after you have removed the meat from the oven because you never can use a regular thermometer in the microwave. Then if the temperatur of the meat suits the above chart, tent the meat with foil for its 10 to 15 minutes standing time beofre serving. When tenting the meat with the foil, put the shiny side in and leave openings at both ends so the meat won't acquire a steamed taste.

If you have suggestions for future topics, write to Eileen Kelly Klehr in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.

THE MAGIC OF microcookery will produce a roast, tasty and brown, in less than half an hour sparing you time in the kitchen.

Uncommon recipes use vegetables

CHILLED PICNIC RATATOUILLE

¼ cup salad or olive oil
2 cloves garlic, minced
1 onion, sliced
1 green pepper, seeded and cut in strips
3 medium unpared zucchini, cut into ¼-inch slices
1 medium eggplant, pared and cut in cubes
2 teaspoons dried leaf basil
1 teaspoon dried leaf oregano
1½ teaspoons salt
1/8 teaspoon peppers
3 tomatoes, peeled and cut in wedges

Heat oil in large skillet, add garlic, onion, green pepper and zucchini. Cook about 3 minutes or until onion is tender, stirring frequently. Add eggplant, basil, oregano, salt and pepper. Cover and cook over medium heat 15 minutes, stirring occasionally.

Add tomato wedges, cover and cook 5 minutes longer or just until tomatoes are heated. Refrigerate several hours or overnight. Pack in container with a tight lid to carry to picnic. Serves 6.

(Note: to remove skins from tomatoes, plunge tomatoes one at a time in saucepan of boiling water for about 30 seconds. Remove. Skins will slip off easily.)

CORN OYSTERS

1 cup fresh corn cut from cob
2 eggs, separated
¼ cup sifted all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
1/16 teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon grated onion
Bacon fat* or shortening

Mix corn and egg yolks in medium bowl. Mix flour with baking powder, salt and pepper. Stir into corn and egg yolks, add onion. Beat egg whites until stiff and fold in. Drop from teaspoon onto a hot griddle greased with bacon fat or shortening. Cook until brown. Makes 20 corn oysters, or serves 5.

*If bavon fat is used, cook 4 strips of bacon for sufficient fat.

New book offers diet alternative

by PATRICIA McCORMACK

"The Alternative Diet Book" may help you live healthier, says the National Institutes of Health.

The diet calls for sharply reduced consumption of meat. It was developed by Dr. William E. Conner at the University of Iowa.

The book tells Americans how to switch from a high meat intake to a very small one in order to help battle coronary heart disease, obesity, high blood pressure, diabetes and gallstones. Other dietary changes also are suggested.

The diet is in three phases:

In Phase One, the aim is to avoid foods high in cholesterol and saturated fat. "Delete egg yok, butterfat, lard, organ meat, skin of poultry and fish and visible fat on meat."

In Phase two, the diet calls for a gradual transition from 16 ounces of meat a day to no more than 6 to 8 ounces.

PHASE THREE proposes that "meat, fish and poultry be used as condiments. The meat dish no longer will occupy the center of the table."

Instead, the "Diet Book" suggests, meat in smaller quantities should be used in vegetable-rice-cereal-legume based dishes "much as it has been doing in Oriental, Indian and Mediterranean cookery for eons of time."

"The total of meat, fish and poultry achieved in phase three should average 3 to 4 ounces per day," the "Diet Book" says.

"Fish and poultry should be stressed instead of meat because of their lower saturated fat content."

The alternative Diet Book was supported in development by grants from The National Health Institutes Division of Research Resources, the National Heart and Lung Institute and the Oregon Heart Association.

THE DIET WAS field-tested on humans at the federally supported Clinical Research Center at the University of Iowa when Connor was director there.

The Diet Book includes sample menus and recipes.

"The nutritional research at the University of Iowa . . . has resulted in the development of a diet plan which may help decrease the incidence of diseases associated with the typical American diet," said the National Institutes of Health statement on the diet book.

"It is now well known that dietary factors from food of animal origin, such as eggs, meat and high fat dairy products, when eaten in large quantities, such as in this country, cause elevated blood cholesterol levels because of their high cholesterol and saturated fat content," Connor says.

"LESSER QUANTITIES of aniaml foods in the diet and greater use of vegetabte food products, such as cereals, legumes, fruits and vegetables, all of which are completely free of cholesterol, will lower blood cholesterol levels."

The alternative diet also may make sense for economic reasons.

"The alternative diet emphasizes the use of direct food crops, which yield the greatest amount of food for the energy invested, and it best utilizes our natural resources," Connor said.

"These foods generally are lower in cost to the consumer and have a higher nutritive value."

Some tomatoes low-acid: study

Recent federal and state university research indicates four varieties of tomatoes may not have high enough levels of acidity to be safe for traditional water-bath tomato canning methods.

Dr. Lloyd Bullerman of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln identifies the varieties as Garden State, Ace, 55VF, and Cal Ace. Bullerman, an associate professor of food science and technology, says all should be pressure-canned, the treatment necessary for safety of low-acid foods.

His recommendations are based on research at the University of Minnesota and the U.S. Department of Agriculture. He said the four varieties were the only ones out of 109 tested that were found to have low acid content. (UPI) syrup is tinted with green food coloring and spiced with cinnamon stick, allspice and mustard seed. Pretty green in color with a crunchy texture and sweet flavor, the pickles are very popular among the Busses' friends.

ALSO HIGH IN popularity is Babe's homemade tomato juice, which has a snappy flavor and is great for Bloody Marys, which the Busses serve when they entertain at a brunch. A variety of vegetables and a touch of hot red pepper are the ingredients responsible for the juice's nippy taste.

Tomatoes also are used in a unique celery sauce containing green peppers and onions. This is served as a reslish and is delightful accompaniment for beef or fowl. Also good with poultry are Babe's yellow string beans, which are easy to prepare and have a tangy sweet-sour flavor.

While home-canned relishes embellish the meals served in the Busse home, Babe's beautifully-set tables provide an inviting setting for her good food. She works part-time for Busse florists, and is adept at arranging attractive centerpieces, which she also does for the spring luncheons and Christmas bazaars sponsored by the Ladies Guild at St. John's Lutheran Church. Babe bowls with St. John's league, but her favorite hobby is collecting antique furniture at auctions and refinishing it for herself and her children.

CORN RELISH

16 cups corn, cut from cob
8 cups skinned tomatoes, cut in small pieces
6 large onions, diced
3 red peppers, diced
3 green peppers, diced
2 bunches celery, diced
4 tablespoons salt
2½ cups vinegar
5 cups sugar
1 tablespoon celery salt

Mix all vegetables together in canning kettle. Add remaining ingredients and mix well. Cook until vegetables are tender, about a half hour. Pour into sterilized jars and seal. Makes about 12 pints.

NINE DAY PICKLES

7½ to 8½ pounds pic les, medium size
1½ teaspoons alum
6½ cups sugar
3½ pints white vinegar
1 small bottle green food coloring
1 ounce allspice
1 ounce cinnamon sticks
½ ounce mustard seed

Cut off ends of pickles and cut in ½-inch slices. Put in a salt brine in a big crock for 3 days. Put a plate on top to keep pickles down.

On the fourth day, remove pickles from salt brine and put them in clear water. Change water every day for 2 more days.

On the seventh day, put pickles in a weak white vinegar and water solution in a canning kettle. Add the alum. Let simmer for 1 hour but do not boil. Drain pickles.

Make a syrup of the sugar, 3½ pints vinegar and green food coloring. Put allspice, cinnamon sticks and mustard seed in a cheesecloth bag and place in syrup solution. Heat to boiling point. Pour over pickles in crock and put a plate on top.

On the eighth day, drain off juice, heat to boiling and pour over pickles again. On the ninth day, put pickles and juice in canning kettle. Bring to boiling point and shut off heat. Put pickles and juice in hot, sterilized jars and seal. Makes 10 pints.

TOMATO JUICE

1 bushel very ripe tomatoes
1 bunch celery, including tops, cut up
3 large onions, cut up
1 handful fresh parsley, snipped
6 bay leaves, crushed
2 cups sugar
Salt to taste
1 teaspoon ground hot red pepper
4 green peppers, diced

Wash tomatoes, cut them up and remove core. Divide ingredients among 2 canning kettles or divide ingredients in half and cook 1 kettle at a time.

Mash tomatoes with your hands to extract as much juice as possible. Bring ingredients to a boil, reduce heat and simmer, covered, for 20 minutes. (Make sure heat is low or tomato juice will burn.)

Put all ingredients through a food mill, pour back into kettle and bring to a full, rolling boil. Reduce heat and keep juice simmering while canning. Pour into hot, sterilized jars and seal. Makes about 18 quarts.

CELERY SAUCE

15 large tomatoes, skinned and cut up
5 large onions, diced
4 bunches celery, diced
3 green or red peppers diced
1½ cups sugar
2 tablespoons salt
1½ cups white vinegar
4 sprigs parsley, snipped

Combine ingredients in a kettle and bring to a boil. Reduce heat to simmer and cook, covered, for 2 hours. Pour into hot, sterilized jars and seal. Makes 14 pints. Serve as a relish with beef or fowl.

SWEET SOUR YELLOW STRING BEANS

1 peck yellow beans
3 cups water
3 cups white vinegar
3 cups sugar

Wash beans and cut off ends. Cook them in salt water until tender and drain.

Mix together the water, vinegar and sugar and bring to a boil. Add to drained beans and bring to a boil again. Pack in hot, sterilized jars.

Serving suggestions for yogurt

Yogurt is the newest of the dairy foods to reach popularity. Its sales have increased 537 per cent in the last 10 years. During 1975, yogurt sales totaled $414 million. Part of the rise was due to fruit or preserves being added to the yogurt, and now frozen yogurt may increase in popularity.

An unusual and delightful dressing for fresh fruits is a Lemon Yogurt-Chutney Dressing: Beat one cup cottage cheese on high speed of mixer until smooth, about five minutes. Stir in one cup (8 ounces) lemon yogurt and one-quarter cup of chutney.

Note for dieters: While the non-dieting members of the family lather their baked potatoes with sour cream, calorie counters can use plain yogurt with good results. One tablespoon of sour cream nets 25 calories while the same amount of yogurt provides nine calories.

Convenience stores prove expanding retail element

Convenience stores tend to specialize in prepared or semi-prepared foods, dairy products, soft drinks, beer and snack foods. Tobacco products are their single biggest seller, accounting for more than $1 billion in sales annually.

Many stores also carry records, magazines and school supplies among their more than 3,100 items.

Thirteen per cent of such stores are open 24 hours a day, he said. The remainder operate 16 hours daily. Most have a seven-day week.

Traugott, who publishes "Convenience Store News," said 56 per cent of convenience store shoppers are adult males, 32 per cent are adult females and 12 per cent are children under 12 years of age. (UPI).

Traugott says the number of stores increased from 27,905 in 1975 to 30,470 in 1976. At the same time, sales increased from $6,467 billion to a record $7.723 billion.

Conveneince stores tend to specialize in prepared or semi-prepared foods, dairy products, soft drinks, beer and snack foods. Tobacco products are their single biggest seller, ac-

Orange drink claims misleading: expert

A community health and preventive medicine expert says synthetic simulations of orange juice that compete on the basis of vitamin C. content could be misleading consumers.

Dr Willard A. Krehl of Jefferson Medical College in Philadelphia says such competition makes little nutritional sense. He says emphasis on a particular nutrient ignores the total spectrum of nutrients present in natural orange juice. He adds that the potassium-sodium ratio is significant: synthetic drinks invariably have much higher sodium content and lower potassium content than natural orange juice.

REMODELING SALE

WANTED PIANO AND ORGAN MOVERS! Everybody qualifies.

MUST SELL THESE BRAND NAME PIANOS AND ORGANS OR PAY TO HAVE THEM MOVED TO NEW PART OF STORE.

Even though our new music center is under the same roof as our old one, when it comes to moving pianos and organs, our new music center could just as well be in Seattle.

First, the pianos and organs are in the way of the remodelers.

Second, they have to be dismantled to be moved to the new part of the store.

As long as we're taking them apart to move them next door, and as long as we're going to have to take them apart when we do move them to your house, we'll pay you now in the form of handsome discounts for deciding to buy a little sooner than you intended.

Here's the kinds of buys you can make by acting now:

NOTE: Don't let the dust and disarray fool you. KARNES is still Chicagoland's most renowned full line music education center. When we're through decorating, it will also be Chicagoland's most beautiful music center.

We're in our 3rd generation of bringing the joys of music to the homes and lifetimes of our customers.

We at Karnes believe, more than ever, that a family that does not make music is, needlessly, a culturally deprived family.

Many fresh melons make delicious eating

Melons are among the most delicious of all fruits, cooling and refreshing. Have you tried all these melons to ennoy the full range?

HONEYDEWS:

Large, smooth-skinned melons with green flesh inside; creamy-yellow outside color and velvety surface show ripeness, but color can vary with origin. Usually melons that have dead-white color, especially with greenish tinge, are unripe. They will not sweeten and are unsatisfactory. The rind of a ripe melon has a soft, velvety feel.

To store and serve: Hold honeydews at room temperature a couple of days before serving. For best flavor, serve at room temperature. Nose test tells ripeness — a pleasant, distinctive fragrance.

PERSIAN MELON:

Globe-shaped, weighing about seven pounds. Rind dark green covered with fine netting; flesh orange, very thick. Rind under netting turns lighter green as melon ripens and rind gives under slight pressure.

To store and serve: Allow time at home for melons to become soft and juicy at room temperature.

CANTALOUPES:

Globe-shaped; when ripe, covered thickly with netting that stands out like whipcord from slightly golden background. Also check ripeness by delicate, developed aroma. Slight rattling of seeds when shaken a sign of maturity. Ripen at room temperature, if necessary. Excellent source of vitamins A and C; minerals.

CRANSHAW, or CRENSHAW:

WATERMELON:

Good quality are firm, symmetrical, fresh looking with attractive waxy bloom; good characteristic color for the variety. Lower side should be somewhat yellowish where melon contacted soil. If very pale green on underside, probably immature. Best to buy watermelon already cut so you can judge from its good red color inside and black seeds that it has reached maturity. Watermelons have vitamins C and A, and minerals.

Planning party? Try garden theme

Here is a charming shower idea for a bride-to-be fortunate enough to be moving into a house with garden space. And it could be the theme for an equally delightful surprise party given for an avid gardener on her birthday or wedding anniversary.

The gifts consist of anything in the gardening line: a shiny new trowel, shears, watering pot, gloves, an assortment of seeds or tiny plants. It's fun, it's original, and of course the gifts would be most welcome to a green-thumb enthusiast. If it's a lovely day, hold the party outdoors in your own garden.

Attractive refreshments are important, for there's something about watching a guest of honor open presents that makes all the other guests hungry! In keeping with the warm summer weather, food and drink should be properly light and refreshing. A lovely cake is a must, and angel food Summer Orange Cake is airy and delicate.

You can't have cake without a beverage, and Orchard Punch — a blend of tea, champagne and orange and grapefruit juices — is sparkling and cool.

SUMMER ORANGE CAKE

1 package angel food cake mix
1 cup sugar
3 tablespoons cornstarch
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup water
1 can (6 ounces) frozen orange juice concentrate, thawed, undiluted
2 egg yolks, slightly beaten
2 cups (1 pint) heavy cream, whipped

Prepare and bake cake according to package directions. Cool thoroughly and cut crosswise into 3 layers. To prepare frosting, combine sugar, cornstarch and salt in a saucepan; mix well. Stir in water and orange juice concentrate. Place over low heat, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens and comes to a boil. Cook 2 minutes longer.

Add a small amount of the hot mixture to the egg yolks, stirring rapidly. Return to saucepan and cook, stirring, until thickened. Cool at room temperature. Fold in whipped cream. Spread between layers and over top and side of cake. Serves 12.

ORCHARD PUNCH

1 quart water
1/3 cup loose tea or 15 tea bags
2 quarts orange juice
1 quart grapefruit juice
1 quart light corn syrup
1 bottle (4/5 quart) champagne, chilled

Bring water to a rolling boil in a saucepan. Remove from heat and immediately add tea. Brew uncovered 4 minutes. Strain. Stir in orange and grapefruit juice and corn syrup. When ready to serve, pour into punch bowl and add a block of ice or ice cubes. Stir to chill. Pour in champagne. Garnish with orange slices. Makes approximately 56 ½-cup servings.

Hugh Harshbarger: artist with the pen

by ELEANOR RIVES

"Please be patient. God isn't finished with me yet" says the sign on Hugh Harshbarger's work table.

Like the other poems, quotations, certificates, citations, plaques and awards neatly stacked around the workroom of his Palatine home, the words are recorded in perfect hand lettering, and the hand that lettered them is Hugh's.

Harshbarger, retired from the field of education after 45 years, is now 74 and has no intention of retiring from life. Furthermore, he can't spare the time.

He is one of a vanishing breed, those painstaking artists who impart dignity to a diploma, pride to a plaque, by the addition of a hand-lettered name. He is adept at three styles, but customers prefer the Olson Bradley script (a simplified German style) that he developed 40 years ago.

HUGH HAS JUST completed lettering 45 certificates for a financial management program in Toronto.

He letters for four divisions of a worldwide data processing company.

Each month he letters an average of 500 names on membership certificates for a company in Park Ridge.

Recently he added hand-lettered names to 52 special citations for South American pediatricians, lettered a 50-line poster for a print shop and designed a white-on-black, hand-lettered label to be attached to each bottle of a new wine.

He letters for 20 different associations that send his work all over the world. Once he found himself carefully inking his own name on a certificate.

ALL THIS IN addition to lettering names on thousands of diplomas each year.

"There aren't many dull moments; we keep moving pretty steadily," he says in a gem of an understatement.

Though lettering has always been his hobby, teaching was his vocation. With a bachelor's degree from Bradley and a master's from Northwestern, Harshbarger, who once ran for Illinois superintendent of schools, spent 19 years in the public school system, 16 of them at Maine Township High School as head of the industrial arts department.

During that time (1929-1945) he founded Maine Township Adult Evening School, now one of the largest such programs in the state, and served as its principal.

He has written two textbooks, one on signs and poster painting and one on drafting, and since his retirement has revised his sign-painting textbook for home study, soon to be marketed.

DURING WORLD WAR II, Harshbarger administered an in-plant training program at Douglas Aircraft near O'Hare, coordinating the work of 80 instructors. Following the war, he worked for the Veterans Administration, with jurisdiction over vocational training in four states.

In 1950, he joined Greer Technical Institute as superintendent. He designed the school's South Michigan Avenue sign, its catalog, its Christmas card and its courses in automotive technology, refrigeration and air conditioning in its two-year engineering program.

After five years at Greer, he decided to return to his little home town, Atwood, Ill., to try the "quiet life."

"I bought my brother's drugstore and I never worked so hard in my life," said Hugh. He designed his drugstore sign, store lettering, Atwood highway and welcome signs, a map to be placed outside the post office. He founded the Chamber of Commerce and became mayor of Atwood. That was enough "quiet" for him.

IT WAS BACK to Chicago, this time as public relations director of Goodwill Industries on whose behalf he had 200 speaking engagements in 18 months. Then Greer called him back and he stayed another four years.

For the next eight years, he was a consultant for the State of Illinois Department of Vocational and Technical Education, working with public and private schools under the Federal Manpower Training Act. In 1974, he retired from a small electronics technical institute.

Hugh recalls that his interest in advertising and lettering goes back to the late '20s. At Maine, he lettered all the graduation diplomas — about 400 a year — for five years. "I got about 25 cents a name," he chuckled.

Last year he handled the certificates for 28 seminars for 20 different universities. "The mailing lists are unbelievable," he exclaimed. "Top brass from all over the world. I've lettered may a famous name on an honorary doctor's degree."

IN THE COURSE of his lettering labors, Harshbarger has found that there are about 500 different lettering styles in existence. He states that "J" is the most popular initial, William the most popular man's name, with John a close second. He delights in finding an unusual name and keeps a roster of such handles as Kean Heck, E. Z. Million, Faye Hooker, Terry Coldiron.

So much has his business increased that he sometimes directs customers to his favorite lettering protege, his daughter, Diane, who works out of Atwood.

To do the thousands of painstaking lettering jobs he does, Hugh must indeed "be patient." And from his steady hand and good eye, it is obvious that "God isn't finished with him yet."

"AT 74, I'M THANKFUL for a steady hand and good eyes," says Hugh Harshbarger who has lived in Des Plaines, Arlington Heights and Palatine. His retirement after 45 years in the field of vocational education marked the beginning of a full-time, flourishing hand-lettering business.

Tennis elbow common ail

by AL ROSSITER JR.

Tennis elbow is an occupational hazard of tennis players, carpenters, gardeners, dentists and even politicians who shake too many hands.

"The Medical Letter," a doctors' newsletter, reports the growing popularity of tennis has made tennis elbow one of the commonest orthopedic injuries among persons over 18.

In a report advising physicians on treatment, the newsletter said the injury could just as well be called "tennis forearm" because its symptoms often involve the extensor muscles of the forearm.

The most frequent tennis-related complaint is that it hurts to hit backhand. Other activities that produce discomfort to someone with tennis elbow include shaking hands, turning a doorknob, using a screwdriver or carrying a briefcase.

Although it might seem reasonable to temporarily stop playing tennis when the ailment strikes, "The Medical Letter" said this might not be necessary.

TENNIS ELBOW IS likely to persist or recur, but the most painful stage is generally self-limited, with a duration or no more than six to 12 months "even if the patient continues to play tennis," the newsletter said.

It said most patients with tennis elbow find that the pain of hitting a ball is greatest when they begin to play, and it becomes tolerable or even disappears after a few minutes.

Some patients report the initial pain can be minimized by first warming the forearm and elbow in water or with a heating pad. Others have recommended warming up with an isometric exercise.

The newsletter said many players with moderate symptoms find that placing a band several inches in width around their forearms near the elbow diminishes the pain of hitting the ball.

Many orthopedic surgeons recommend exercises to strengthen the forearm, the newsletter said. Surgery can help some with severe symptoms.

THE NEWSLETTER said a couple of aspirin will help tennis players increase their tolerance to the pain. Local injections of corticosteroid drugs can relieve pain for some, but the newsletter said repeated injections can be damaging.

There also are other drugs such as phenylbutazone, oxyphenbutazone and indomethacin which may temporarily relieve symptoms, but the newsletter said they can cause serious side effects.

"Patients with tennis elbow will be pleased to know that their symptoms will generally improve with time even if they continue to play to their limits of tolerance," the newsletter said.

Collectors love old kitchen tools

Grace Carolyn

Collecting

Give a decorator a blank wall and some nails and soon you'll have "an arrangement." People used to hang pictures on the wall — in Victorian days, lots of them, with perhaps a hair (of the deceased) wreath or a comb holder with mirror. Today, anything goes on the wall and especially popular are old kitchen utensils.

The appeal of such old things, I suppose, is in their good sense and utilitarianism, as well as for their decoration. Old graters, sifters, choppers and mashers worked very well, and most modern models are simply an improvement in material, not in function.

You wonder when you see old worn kitchenware: how did the housewife lift that heavy iron kettle, especially when it was filled with hot soup? Imagine the labor expended in using that old churn.

THE SPECIAL thing about these old items is the fact they were used, not just for decoration, or for special company, but everyday in the very necessary processing of food for hungry families.

So today we make them of plastic and aluminum, and they wear out in a few years — if that long — and we buy new ones. Of course, many former hand jobs are now done by electricity, or the food comes from the supermarket. I know very few persons who churn their own butter — but I do know one, in fact!

We hang the kitchen tools of yesterday on the wall, and they become "conversation pieces." That reminds me of an anecdote (my children say anything reminds me of an anecdote.) A friend took a non-antiquer with her to a shop, where they saw a small blue enameled French heating stove. My friend considered it for a conversation piece. "Sure," said the non-lover of antiques, "someone will come in, ask 'what's that?' — you'll answer 'a French heating stove.' End of conversation."

COLLECTING OLD kitchenware, from the very primitive and early relics of colonial days, mostly made of iron, copper and wood, to the Victorian coal stoves and accessories, even up to the '20s and '30s just plain old-fashioned, can be fun and inexpensive. For instance, the pictured items were purchased, mainly at antiques shows and shops, from $2 to $4, none higher.

Starting in the lower left corner, clockwise, are a hand-made copper funnel, a handmade tin and wooden grater, an all-tin grater, a tin sifter, which sifts by means of a coiled wire turned in a circular motion, a steel and wood chopper, a brass milk scale and a wooden potato masher. These hung on the wall of my former house, and sure enough, never failed to start a conversation — of some sort!

Researching the manufacture and history of these old items can be fun, too. Many museums include a country kitchen from bygone days, such as the Chicago Historical Society. If you should go to Williamsburg, the kitchen of the Governor's Palace has been reconstructed, and costumed attendants explain the methods of cooking 200 years ago. There are at least 20 copper dippers hanging there over the fireplace, so perhaps hanging things on the kitchen wall is not so new.

THE WALL SPACE in my present kitchen is quite limited, but I have hung a few goodies, mainly baskets, since they seem to be "in" just now. Baskets both old and new look especially good in windows where the light shines through the interesting patterns of weaving. One of my baskets has a stenciled message "Perkins Pure Pork Sausage."

I will also throw in a decorator hint, which I copied from a decorating book. Instead of a macrame holder use a large "milk scale" such as the one shown in the picture, only larger, suspend a basket (mine is a large round brown basket) with a pot filled with greenery. My greenery is the great-great-granddaughter of a spider plant one of you readers gave me about five years ago, and its progeny are scattered far and wide. Spider or airplane plants are the only kind I seem to have any luck with, for I am not blessed with even the green tip of a thumbnail.

The doctor says

Diet won't correct high blood calcium

I need your opinion and any information you can give me. What causes the parathyroid glands to malfunction and form an excess amount of calcium that flows into the blood stream? How harmful is this excess? It was suggested that all dairy products, liver, fish and vitamins A and D be eliminated from my diet. What can be done to avoid this excess calcium?

The parathyroid glands are on each side of the thyroid gland around your trachea (wind pipe) in your throat. The hormone they form causes calcium to be mobilized from the bones and does increase the calcium content in the blood. The glands to not form calcium themselves. They work with vitamin D and your calcium intake to help regulate your blood calcium level.

Overactive parathyroid glands produce too much hormone that can mobilize calcium from your bones. That results in a high blood calcium and may cause your bones to fracture easily. The excess calcium may also cause kidney stones, and may increase the acid igestive juices from the stomach causing digestive complaints. This combination has led doctors to say the hyperparathyroid state is a disease of bones, stones and groans.

Sometimes this overactivity is caused by some other disease in the body. Some forms of kidney disease and diseases that interfere with the absorbtion of calcium from your digestive system are examples of underlying diseases that may cause an overactive parathyroid gland.

Other cases are caused by a small tumor (rarely malignant) that causes over production of the hormone.

The ideal treatment depends upon the cause. If there is a small tumor of the parathyroid glands, the treatment is surgical.

IF THE OVERACTIVITY is secondary to another underlying disease, the treatment is directed toward trying to correct that abnormality.

I am a bit puzzled by your dietary advice. Cutting down your calcium intake will not help. If surgery is not needed or the underlying problem is not completely correctable, then it is usually wise to direct treatment efforts toward replacing lost chemical salts which may even include replacing calcium and phosphorous. Most important of all it is advisable to drink plenty of fluids every day, spaced throughout the 24-hour period to ensure a continuous passage of dilute urine. This will help prevent kidney stones.

I think you would be wise to ask your doctor to refer you to an endocrinologist for a consultation. I see from your address that the city you live in has a university medical center. You could be referred to the endocrinology section there. Management of such cases is often complicated and they may be able to help your doctor with your case.

Do you know what to do if someone near you drops over with a heart attack? You can save lives if you know how. Frozen sandwiches safe for summer lunch boxes

Dear Roberta: My children are bored to tears with the peanut butter or cheese sandwiches I pack in their lunch boxes. Since the summer playground program has weeks to go, what can I fix that'll be safe? Audrey Gibson

You're right to be cautious.

Steer clear of spoilable sandwich stuffings, especially those made with mayonnaise, eggs or other dairy products. Try freezing sandwiches made with well-cooked sliced meat or poultry. These will thaw by lunchtime and in the meantime will keep other foods in the boxes cool.

Dear Roberta: How do you make a price choice between frozen vegetables and fruits and canned ones, when the net weight marked on the can also includes the liquid used in packing? — Janet Shearer

You can't. Unless you're willing to experiment by buying some canned foods, draining off the liquid and weighing the remaining product. Unit-price indications are no help if you don't save the syrups and nutrient-rich vegetable liquids for sauces, gelatin molds and stews. I suggest you look for products in cans indicating drained weights.

Dear Roberta: Even though I have 20-20 vision, I went to a reputable optician and bought the cheapest frame they had and clear glasses. Now I feel much safer in using sprays and various cleaning products that contain eye-irritants. — Lucy Manley

A good idea, Lucy. You were wise to avoid the dimestore glasses. You still must use special care with these products.

(Mrs. Mathews welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to Roberta Mathews in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

Sandra Anne Bell–Philip Richardson

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Richardson

A one o'clock wedding June 18 in Meadows Baptist Church united Sandra Anne Bell and Philip Richardson. The bride is the daughter of the Wayne Bells of Rolling Meadows, and the groom's parents are the Philip Wigleys of South Bend, Ind.

Sandra, a nurse's aid, and Philip met while both were working at St. Therese Hospital in Waukegan. He is a Navy corpsman stationed at Great Lakes Naval Training Center and was working at the hospital part-time. She is a graduate of Rolling Meadows High School.

THEY WERE married by candlelight in double ring rites, later greeting 100 guests at a reception at the Pickwick House, Palatine.

Sandra's matron of honor was Mrs. Tom Repede, Mount Prospect, and the couple's sisters, Susan Bell and Sharon Richardson, were bridesmaids.

Philip chose his brother Paul as best man, with Mark Bell, the bride's brother, and Manuel Alcantara as groomsmen.

Phyllis R. Cassese – Michael Marsh

Former Hoffman Estates resident Michael Charles Marsh, now a U.S. Navy hospital corpsman, and Phyllis Rosemarie Cassese of Long Island, N.Y., were married July 3 in the chapel at the Naval Regional Medical Center in Portsmouth, Va.

Mike attended Conant High School, where he was active in band and varsity track.

Phyllis chose Mrs. Steve Martines as her matron of honor, and James A. Cassese served Mike as his best man. Father Gryga, lieutenant commander in the chaplain corps, conducted the ceremony.

The newlyweds traveled to Nebraska for their honeymoon. Following his discharge in 1979, Mike plans to attend the University of Nebraska Medical Center.

Best friend worth losing?

Dear Marian,

My best friend is going out with a guy whom I really like. Lately he's been calling me up a lot and has asked me to go out with him. I didn't tell my friend this, but she has said to me that he seems to be losing interest in her. She really likes him, too, and I know she'd be really upset if I started going out with him. I want to go out with this guy, but I don't want to stop being friends with Tammy. What should I do?

B.J

Dear B.J.,

You want to have a perfect solution and there is none. You have to decide if going out with this guy is worth losing Tammy's friendship. Bear in mind that this guy may pull the same thing on you that he's doing to Tammy some day. Then you'll be out a boyfriend and a best friend.

Dear Marian,

My father is always picking on my friends. He is ruining my social life. My friends don't want to come over any more. Last week this really great guy that I met came over and my Dad told him he looked like a hoodlum and he should get a haircut. I was humiliated and I haven't seen this guy since. What should I do?

D.O.

Dear D.O.,

Sit down with your father and tell him that if he doesn't stop embarrassing you in front of your friends, you won't bring them home any more and he won't have the opportunity to meet the people you go out with. Explain to him that the remarks he makes aren't going to change people; it just makes them angry and you embarrassed.

If you have a problem, a question or just want someone to listen, write to Marian in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006. Only first names or initials will be used in the column. Marian reserves the right to condense letters.

Diane Mermigas

Pair learns about life 'on their own'

"On Our Own" is CBS's answer to ABC's phenomenal hit "Laverne and Shirley," and the new situation comedy no doubt will receive similar support from television viewers when it premieres this fall.

It is the ongoing story of two best friends, recently promoted from the secretarial pool to semi-executive positions in a New York advertising agency.

They are a laughable Mutt and Jeff team struggling through single life in the big city and up the steep ladder of success.

Maria Teresa Bonino, played by Lynnie Greene, is a very tall, very introverted, gangly Italian Catholic girl from Brooklyn. The fantastic thing about this character is her name — it really says it all.

JULIA PETERS, played by Bess Armstrong, is Maria's outgoing, inventive "WASP" girl friend from Connecticut.

The girls live in separate apartments but share all of their personal and professional secrets and dilemmas.

Ms. Greene and Ms. Armstrong, both newcomers to television, do a respectable job of carrying off their lines without support from comedy veterans.

Although the premier episode of the show, which will be seen Sundays at 7:30 p.m., bears an overwhelming resemblance to "Laverne and Shirley," the stars and producer of "On Our Own" deny any common bond between the two shows. A premier date has not been announced.

"We know people will make that comparison. But we feel our show is a more contemporary and more adult comedy. We feel that the relationship of the girls is more intelligent and mature. The thrust of 'Laverne and Shirley' is primarily to the younger viewer," said Sam Denoff, producer of "On Our Own."

"THE GIRLS don't live together. They met at the ad agency. The basis of their friendship is social and work. Their lives don't depend on each other," Denoff said.

Despite all that, the camaraderie between Marie and Julia is unmistakably "Laverne and Shirley."

In the pilot episode, we see the two girls at odds with their first assignment: they are to interview good looking males in their jockey shorts for a television toothpaste commercial.

While the male applicants, obviously used to some pretty bizarre requests when auditioning for an ad job, are carrying on brisk conversation in their jockey shorts, the two girls are shrinking in their shoes.

The two are strange office partners to be sure. Maria is overly self-conscious about being tall while Julia is as assertive and wholesome as good old American girls come.

"I HAVE TO FIGHT the tall problem in real life," said the 5-foot-11 Ms. Greene. "When I was 8-years-old I had to carry a birth certificate to prove I was under 12 to qualify for children's fares."

Her experience in show business has been limited to regional theater and show houses in the East where she was reared and lives today.

And Ms. Armstrong really is wholesome. She grew up in Maryland and did some summer stock in the New York City area. Her studies at Brown University in Providence, R.I., included classical Latin and Greek, the violin and viola.

She also is a familiar face on television commercials for products such as Crisco shortening, Johnson and Johnson baby powder and Final Touch.

"In principle, we are very much like the characters we portray," Ms. Armstrong said. "We are both young and just starting out in our careers and we really have become very good friends."

THERE WILL be all sorts of characters bowing in and out of the fictitious advertising office to give the program an added dimension, Denoff said.

There will be "the coffe and the mail people," the authoritative boss, Toni McBain, and an omniscient, unseen female figure who owns the agency and who is often heard but never seen.

"In many ways," Denoff said, "the show is an extension of the 'Mary Tyler Moore' figure. They are young women on their own who are up against the typical problems of living alone in the big city."

Both Bess and Lynnie know first hand what that's all about. Neither of their agents could get them in the door at first, they said. Acting parts were difficult to get.

"I met the people who were casting this show at a party and he told me to come in and read for the part of Maria. I told him that I've lost more jobs because of my height and that's just what happened," Ms. Greene said.

LYNNIE GREENE

BESS ARMSTRONG

AFTER APPEARING in a small role on "The Andros Targets," Ms. Armstrong read for the part of Julia but was turned down.

"The funny thing about it, though was that the two of us were sitting outside the audition room waiting and thinking about being refused and we started talking. We decided to ask the people casting if we could audition one more time together," Ms. Armstrong said.

"They reluctantly let us audition again. We went in as a team and as strangers. We came out as a team with jobs," she said.

Both 23-year-old actresses feel that even if their new show is not successful, it will open new doors for them in the profession.

The two plan to maintain their homes in the East and "On Our Own" will be one of the few programs CBS will film on a regular basis in a New York studio before a live audience.

IT IS THE duo's way of "bringing television back to New York," they said.

"New York is the home of the theater and we both love the regional theater," Ms. Armstrong said. "You have to be a bit of a fighter to survive the city — to get on the subway, to get into a crowd and land a part in a play and fend for yourself. It's wonderful."

"That's what I feel we're doing in this new show of ours," Ms. Greene said. "It's not difficult playing the part of someone so close to who you are. It's just a little scary that first time around."

TV HIGHLIGHTS:

- The television schedule is saturated with pilot comedies tonight including "Instant Family" at 7 p.m. on Channel 5, about two single fathers who pool their resources and offspring to save on rent — and confusion abounds.
- "Bay City Amusement Company" at 7:30 p.m. on Channel 5 follows the exploits of a local television station's creative staff as they produce a weekly comedy show.
- Bob Hope and Phyllis Diller star in "Eight on the Lam," the 8 p.m. movie on Channel 5, about a widowed bank teller who finds $50,000 and goes on a spending spree.
